'MISS ROHNERT PARK'

Founder's Day In Full Swing

A 15-year-old high school sophomore, who plans to be a ground hostess at an airport, was crowned "Miss Rohnert Park" last night.

Stephanie Bodi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.S. Bodi of 7498 Burton Avenue, was selected from 11 contestants. She is reigning over the city's 11th Founder's Day celebration this weekend.

Miss Bodi, whose hobbies are sewing and outdoor sports, received several awards, including a crown, trophy, silver charm bracelet, $125 cash and gift certificates from local merchants.

She is a sophomore at Rancho Cotate High School.

First runnerup was Renee Gerrans, 16, a junior at the school. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gerrans, of 407 Bruce Avenue.

Annette Roberts, 15, daughter of Mary Roberts, 7719 Burton Avenue, was chosen second runnerup.

Guerrillas Surrender In Kuwait

KUWAIT (UPI) —Five Arab guerrillas surrendered without a fight to Kuwaiti troops who surrounded their airliner today after a four-day kidnaping and hijack odyssey that began last Wednesday at the Saudi Arabian Embassy in Paris.

The guerrillas also freed the four Saudi diplomats they had held during a series of flights around the Middle East. First reports said the hostages seemed to be in good condition.

"All the guerrillas have surrendered without a fight," said Dr. Abdul Hamid, chief airport physician. Neither he nor other officials were able to say immediately under what terms the Arabs gave up.

The guerrillas said they staged the 27-hour occupation of the Saudi Arabian embassy in Paris and the subsequent air drama with the four Saudi diplomat hostages in an attempt to force the release of Abou Daoud, a guerrilla leader serving a life sentence in Jordan. Jordan early in the drama had refused.

The anticlimactic ending to the 95-hour international kidnaping followed a frustrating daylong effort Saturday by the Kuwaiti government. At one point, it appeared an amnesty offer would end the talks with freedom for both guerrillas and hostages.

That possibility went sour in midafternoon when the guerrillas seized Ali Yassin, an official of the Palestine Liberation organization who had been negotiating with them. They released Yassin four hours later, but threatened to blow up the plane if their full demands were not met.

His seizure convinced the Kuwaitis to call out the troops and tank-like armored cars.

One of five guerrillas surrendered as soon as he saw 40 troops, bayonets fixed on their rifles, and a dozen armored personnel carriers surround the plane on the tarmac of Kuwait airport.

The other four men remained aboard the Kuwaiti Airlines jetliner with the five Saudi Arabian diplomats for only 90 minutes before they too gave up.

Ambulances and fire trucks stood by near the airport buildings as the army siege of the aircraft began at dusk.

Kuwait radio interrupted its regular program to announce the surrender.

Officials gave no explanation for the guerrillas' action in holding the PLO official at a moment when he appeared to be on the verge of negotiating the release of the hostages.

But after Yassin was seized, they summoned troops, ambulances and doctors to the airport and put the airport fire brigade on emergency standby.

The guerrillas had asked for a car to drive to Syria via Iraq

New Plan On Energy Crisis

Nixon Outlines Goals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon said today the administration will relax air quality standards and encourage states to follow suit to keep an energy problem from becoming a crisis this winter.

Nixon told newsmen after a two hour meeting with the top energy officials in his administration, "in the short term we face a problem, but long term prospects for adequate energy for the United States are excellent —as good as they are for any industrial nation in the world and perhaps better."

The President's top energy official, John A. Love said the meeting discussed the possibility of rationing or directing the allocation of home heating oil. But he said there will be no decision on the question until the end of hearings concerning allocation of propane and other fuels. He said officials are considering heating oil rationing in a "contingency plan" for an energy emergency, but not in any other context right now.

The President also announced the administration "gave the go ahead this morning for a sharp step up in the development of peaceful uses of atomic energy."

Relaxed emission standards would mean utilities and industries might continue to use high-polluting energy sources rather than relying on sources in short supply such as low-sulphur oil and natural gas.

The effect would be to make available more oil for home heating this winter.

Love, will meet with governors —he did not say which ones — next week to discuss relaxation of the air quality standards.

Love, who briefed the officials at today's White House meeting, confirmed the government would be disposed to

Protests Set On Gas Prices

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Many filling stations across the country will close today and Sunday to protest the government's newly imposed limit on the price of gasoline. (See another story, page 36)

"Don't call it a boycott," said one service station operator in Detroit, where gasoline dealers are staging what they call a "sick-in." He asked, "Can the government tell us we can't all get sick at the same time?"

Marin service stations surveyed were open and pumping gsoline at lower prices today. Most dealers will be open tomorrow, except for those who usually close on Sundays.

(Robert W. Moore, executive secretary of the Marin Independent Service Station Association, said Marin dealers will participate in a protest march to the Federal Building in San Francisco Monday, starting at 10 a.m. at the Jack Tar Hotel.)

In Spokane, Wash., Cliff Robinson, president of the Inland Empire Gas Dealers Association, said the price limit has shut off the dealer two ways: The gas companies limit the dealer's supplies while the administration "limits gas prices to the Jan. 10 level."

"We're back down to seven cents a gallon in this area," Robinson said. "You subtract the rent from that and you're looking at a profit of 4-½ cents a gallon. We used to get that in the 1950s."

South Carolina Exxon dealers agreed to close their 60 stations in Greenville and 25 stations in Spartanburg for the weekend to protest a one-cent per gallon hike in wholesale gasoline prices.

In Connecticut, the brand-new State Petroleum Products Control Commission voted Friday to ask Exxon to suspend the increase, which it made without telling the commission in advance. It also referred the case

Texas Cholera Case Confirmed

ATLANTA (UPI) —The first confirmed case of cholera in the United States since 1911 other than labratory-acquired illness, was reported today by the National Center for Disease Control, (NCDC).

The case involved a 51-year-old man from the Gulf Coast town of Port Lavaca, Tex. The NCDC said the victim came down with the disease on Aug. 25 and was admitted to a hospital in shock.

The examining physician recognized the symptoms of cholera and appropriate treatment was started, including the use of an antibiotic, tetracycline.

According to the NCDC, the patient's condition improved dramatically within 24 hours after admission and he was discharged in good health one week later.

The cholera-causing bacteria was identified by the Texas State Health Laboratory from a culture obtained on admission of the patient and the case was reported to the World Health Organization.

But how the man contacted the disease remained a mystery. The NCDC said an investigation revealed the patient had not left the country since serving in the military in the 1950s. He had not been away from home for several months. And he had no known contact with persons with a history of recent foreign travel, the NCDC said.

It added that an extensive search has revealed no additional cases of suspected cholera in the area. Further investigations are underway to determine the source of the patient's infection, the NCDC added.

The NCDC said the absence of cholera cases reflects the "minimal potential for spread of cholera in areas with safe food and water supplies, such as those commonly encountered in the United States."

Because more than 10 days have passed since hospitalization of this single case, the area where the Texas patient resides is not a cholera-infected area under provisions of international health regulations, according to the NCDC.

Holland Tops DeMont In 1,500 Freestyle

BULLETIN

BELGRADE (UPI) — Rick DeMont of Terra Linda was defeated today by Australia's Steve Holland in the 1,500-meter freestyle in the World Aquatic Championships as both swimmers shattered the previous world record.

Holland, 16, swam 15:31.85 to carve some six seconds off his previous world mark of 15:37.8, while DeMont, 17, came home in 15:35.44.

Nixon To Go On Radio Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will review highlights of his new State of the Union message to Congress in a nationwide radio address tomorrow, the White House said today.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon will make the broadcast at 11 a.m. (PDT) to stress the legislative proposals he considers vital for Congress to pass in this session.

The President's message will be submitted formally to Congress at noon Monday after he holds a breakfast meeting with Speaker Carl Albert, House leader Thomas O'Neill of Massachusetts and Republican leader Gerald Ford. The meeting had been originally scheduled for Tuesday but was changed at the request of the Congressmen.

Warren made the announcement shortly before Nixon flew to his Camp David, Md. mountaintop retreat for the weekend.

Earlier in the day he presided at a two hour meeting of top administration officials to tackle "short term" problems of energy shortages, particularly of home heating oil and gasoline.

The President also issued a statement in connection with the departure today of the U.S. delegation for Tokyo where a new round of multilateral trade negotiations will begin September 12.

The delegation was headed by Secretary of Treasury George P. Shultz and Ambassador William D. Eberle, special representative for trade negotiations.

Nixon noted that later this month another delegation, also headed by Shultz will leave for Nairobi to attend the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank.

Speaking of the monetary system, Nixon said "basic reforms are long overdue" and while "substantial progress has been made, there is much still to be done."

He said the United States has four basic objectives in the trade negotiations:

To continue the 40-year move-

A New Fuss Brews Over Hahn Center

Corte Madera Citizens for Recall charged yesterday that a town official lied to the Marin County Board of Supervisors to get the board to withdraw its objections to the proposed Hahn regional shopping center.

The group said Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels told supervisors that the developer's plan to reduce the size of the center from 79 to 45 acres had been approved by the town council after public discussion.

The recall organization contends that the smaller plan was not approved and that no public hearing was held.

(Supervisors recently voted 4-to-1 to withdraw their objection to a fill permit for the center.)

The group also claims that either Councilman Edward W. Colthurst or Hahn attorney James Barrett gave supervisors the impression that most Corte Madera residents support the shopping center.

Barrett or Colthurst allegedly said a citizen survey in February and March showed residents favoring the center by a 3-1 margin, the recall group charged. Actually, only 45 per cent of the residents surveyed favored the Hahn project as the best use for the site.

Colthurst and Bartels were not available to comment on the charges. But Mayor Holmes S. Norville said one of the group's claims is false. He said the reduced shopping center plan was aired by Hahn himself at the council's last meeting, where it received conceptual approval.

The recall group hopes to oust Norville, Colthurst and Harold B. Wagstaff in a Sept. 18 recall election. The councilmen's support of the shopping center has been one of the major issues in the recall.

The town will vote on the recall Sept. 18.

A CHOICE FOR ART CONNOISSEURS

Artwork by nature — a display of ornamental shrubbery — and by man — paintings by Northern California artists — compete for attention at Walnut Park in Petaluma. Eugenie Amaral of Napa, flanked by her husband Melvin's paintings, whiled away an Indian Summer morning today as she waited for the browsers, art show regulars and, perhaps, a customer or two. Photographer Jim Kean captured her as she waited out the lull.

Resort Proposed On Bolinas Mesa

By PAUL LIBERATORE

A San Rafael development firm has proposed a 200-unit condominium resort on the Bolinas Mesa, on property which Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini would like to see included in the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

The plans, by Mesa Ranch Ltd., are two of several alternatives suggested in a feasibility study for development of a 210-acre oceanfront parcel west of Mesa Road and north of Poplar Avenue.

"The feasibility study contains a plan for a lodge-resort for 100 units and 200 units, but we could come up with a plan for 300 units or 50 units," said developer Anton Holter. "We don't have any set plan."

Although the condominium apartments would be privately owned, they would be available for rental by the general public at certain times of the year, Holter said. The study also contains plans for an amphitheater, swimming pool and tennis courts.

Bolinas Community Public Utility District directors learned of the magnitude of the proposed project after the development firm applied to the state water resources control board for permission to build a 40-acre-foot dam on an unnamed creek at the site, ostensibly for agricultural purposes.

"A dam that size is almost sufficient to supply all the water needs of Bolinas," said director Paul Kayfetz.

The utility district board has protested to the water control board because the dam would eliminate one of three potential water sources being explored in a long-range water plan for Bolinas, Kayfetz said. The board will discuss the development proposal at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the utility district office.

Holter told the Independent-Journal that he has discussed the study informally with several county officials, including Planning Director Werner von Gundell and Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni and Giacomini.

Giacomini, whose district includes Bolinas, said he favors no development whatsoever for the property, which remains in private ownership as a result of the "asinine conformation of the park boundaries."

Giacomini said he wants the parcel to be purchased by the federal government as part of the recreation area, but has been rebuffed at all levels of discussion with governmental representatives.

Holter said he is willing to discuss selling the property to any government agency, federal, state or local, but has received no offers.

Von Gundell and Arrigoni were not available for comment.

According to county policy, any consideration of a development proposal would have to begin at the local level, with the Bolinas planning group and the utility district, said Harvey Bragdon, county chief of current planning.

Both groups in the past have vehemently opposed any massive development and the planning group has recommended a limit of seven new houses per year on the Mesa, a number consistent with growth limits in the Countywide General Plan.

The utility district and planning group are flatly opposed to any project that would turn Bolinas into "a Sausalito-type tourist trap," Kayfetz said.

He pointed out that a 200-unit development would be half the size of the present town, which contains between 400 and 500 houses. "Such a development would totally change the area," he said. "The people impact would overwhelm our local services."

"I understand this is a sensitive issue to Bolinas," said Holter. "But I am sensitive about private property rights, too. I hope we can meld property rights and the common desires of the people. I am looking at this as a business proposition, but it also will be done on an environmentally sound basis.

Medical Leader Indicted In Banking Loan Probe

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) —The much-honored board chairman of the American Medical Association was one of six North Carolinians indicted yesterday by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy and misapplication of nearly $1.8 million in bank funds.

Dr. John R. Kernodle, 58, of Burlington, and the others were accused in various indictments with making "unsound indirect loans for their own interests," with paying checks not covered by sufficient funds for corporations they controlled, and with conspiracy.

The indictments stemmed from an FBI investigation into the North State Bank of Burlington, of which Kernodle and three others named were former officers.

Kernodle, a prominent gynecologist who had amassed a number of medical honors, is owner of a clinic in Burlington. He had been a member of the

DR. JOHN KERNODLE
AMA board chairman

AMA Board of Trustees since 1968, is former president of the North Carolina Medical Society, and a former Duke University medical school instructor.

Neither Kernodle nor the others indicted were available for comment. All were free pending arraignment in 30 days.

Federal officials said the investigation began as a result of a Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. audit, and the FBI was called in when the scope of the alleged conspiracy began to emerge.

Others indicted included a former member of the North Carolina State Banking Commission, Norman Graham Smith of Burlington, former president of the North State bank; Marshal Steward Jr., of Raleigh, president of Ketteridge Industries; H. Calloway Pollard Jr. of Burlington, a director of Ketteridge; Houston P. Sharpe of Burlington, president of five small textile firms, and Charles M. McMillan of Burlington, treasurer of the firms in which Sharpe was involved.

All but McMillan and Stewart were former directors of the North State bank.

Ehrlichman Pleads Innocent To Ellsberg Break-In Charges

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —John Ehrlichman has joined two other former White House aides in pleading innocent to charges of burglary in the "plumbers squad" ransacking of the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

The former chief domestic adviser to President Nixon was released on his own recognizance yesterday after surrendering to custody before Superior Court Judge James G. Kolts.

Ehrlichman told newsmen afterwards that he would have an "unvarying policy of not making any comment until the disposition of the case." He referred all queries to his attorney, Joseph Ball.

Egil (Bud) Krogh and David Young, the supervisors of the break-in to get a "psychiatric profile" of the Pentagon Papers defendant, previously had pleaded not guilty and been released without being required to post bail.

Ehrlichman was also charged with perjury as a result of his testimony before a Los Angeles County grand jury that he had no foreknowledge of the burglary of the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding.

The Watergate investigation in Washington produced a memo initiated by Ehrlichman okaying a covert operation of surveillance of Fielding so long as it could not be traced back to the White House.

In Washington special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox issued a statement indicating impatience wiht the speed of the prosecution of the Fielding burglary.

"This office has from its beginning been investigating the events leading to the breakin at Dr. Fielding's office, both specifically and as part of a wider inquiry into other possibly illegal activities purportedly undertaken in the name of national security," Cox said.

"In our view, the federal interests in dealing with any possible illegal activities by White House employees is clearly predominant."

Snag Could Develop In Nixon's European Visit

LONDON (UPI) —The United States has threatened to postpone President Nixon's planned visit to Europe in the fall if Western allies fail to reach agreement on how transatlantic relations should develop, diplomatic officials said today.

The test comes next week after foreign ministers of the European community meet in Copenhagen to discuss a joint approach to the President.

Nixon is unlikely to come to Europe unless "something worthwhile" emerges for negotiations with the United States, the diplomats said. They rated chances for agreement on a joint policy 50-50 at best.

U.S. officials, the diplomats said, have told European allies Nixon will make the planned October-November visit only if he sees the trip will produce tangible results.

Washington wants a declaration of principles, setting out a future transatlantic relationship reflecting changes since the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) was set up a quarter of a century ago.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Flays Nixon

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy said last night that President Nixon was using the Watergate affair as an excuse for the failings of his administration.

Speaking at a dinner to celebrate the birthday of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., Kennedy said, "It's time for the President to stop blaming all the country's problems on Watergate and Congress and the press. It's time to start providing solutions and more responsible leadership on all the critical national challenges facing us today."

Threats Grow

BELFAST (UPI) — Bombs damaged a pub and injured a soldier in Belfast today and destroyed a boat at Portrush. Security forces planned a close watch on Roman Catholic churches following bomb threats from Protestant extremists, an army spokesman said.

A bomb in a beer barrel in the trunk of a car damaged the Dunsilly Arms in Belfast's Antrim road early today and injured a soldier's hand. An army spokesman said the man was not badly hurt.

Anne Eliminated

KIEV, USSR (UPI) — Princess Anne, the defending champion at the European Equestrian championships, fell head over heels off her horse Goodwill during the cross-country event today and was eliminated from competition.

Anne came up shaking and limping after the fall on her first attempt at a jump that claimed eight of the first 17 riders.

Ban Gains

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Efforts to ban big game hunting throughout East Africa gained momentum today when Tanzania outlawed all types of shooting.

Kenya and the Ivory Coast stopped elephant hunting in the last few days in a bid to save their herds of elephants.

Bomb Check

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI has sent an explosives specialist to London to deliver to British authorities a laboratory analysis of the letter bomb which injured an employee opening mail at the British embassy Aug. 27.

FBI Director Clarance M. Kelley said yesterday the bomb appears to have been similar to several which British authorities are already investigating, following a recent series of terror bombings in London.

Pompidou Visit

PARIS (UPI) — French President Georges Pompidou flies Monday to Peking on a week-long state visit during which he will hold three world policy talks with Chinese leaders.

He will be the first top West European chief of state to visit China and the first foreign statesman to come to Peking since the 10th Communist party congress last week reasserted the authority of Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Hopeful Signs

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller yesterday said the state's tough, new law against the heroin trade seems to be eliminating the drug from the city.

However, he added in a television interview, "this may be temporary, it may be permanent." In his appearance on the NBC "Today" show, the governor said "heroin seems to be disappearing, drying up in the city."

Kissinger Baits Senate Panel On His Far-Ranging Policies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry Kissinger has gone through the White House gates into the public domain, but the era of lightning American diplomacy shows no sign of abating.

Even before his confirmation as secretary of state is assured, Kissinger has begun talking of new American initiatives in the Middle East, a diplomatic thrust to solidify U.S. ties with Latin America, a State Department shuffle to bring talented young men to the fore and another trip to China, on top of the impending negotiations on European security and arms control.

Kissinger gave no details of his plans in any of these areas and furnished few clues. But in his four-hour appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday, he roused members out of a deep, four and one-half- year sleep in which they had to content themselves with Secretary of State William P. Rogers' gentle blandishment while the real foreign policy business went on in Kissinger's shop at the White House.

It was Kissinger's first appearance as a witness before any congressional committee, and the Senate panel liked it so well they asked him back for another session Monday.

There are a few obstacles to Kissinger's confirmation. Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., and Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., said they would seek to delay a vote until the committee gains access to the results of wiretaps conducted on Kissinger's aides during the search by the "White House Plumbers" for national security leaks. Fulbright planned to call in Attorney General Elliot Richardson Monday morning to demand an FBI report on the wiretaps as the price for Kissinger's confirmation.

But few committee observers doubt that, if faced with the choice between Kissinger as secretary of state and the FBI documents, the committee will choose Kissinger.

The secretary-designate made it clear that any delay in his confirmation might upset his plans to meet with Arab and Israeli foreign ministers and chiefs of state Sept. 24 before the United Nations General Assembly convenes.

In addition, Kissinger said a date for his trip to China would be held in abeyance until confirmation.

Youth Indicted In Sex Slayings

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two more murder indictments have been returned against a teenager accused in the sex and torture slayings of 27 young men.

The Harris County grand jury Thursday indicted Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, in the deaths of Homer Garcia, 15, and Frank Aguirre, 19 both of Houston.

Henley now faces murder indictments in six of the slayings.

Luggage Firm Warns About Winter Floods

An attorney for a luggage manufacturing company has warned the Town of Corte Madera it may be liable for damages if the firm again sustains heavy flooding this winter.

Richard H. Breiner, attorney for H. Koch and Sons, told the town council that graded portions of the site of the stalled Madera del Presidio subdivision contributed to flooding last winter.

In an Aug. 22 letter, Breiner said work must begin immediately on temporary drainage improvements to the site. "We are relying on the good faith of the city to do what it has the obligation to do," the attorney said, adding that the company had never suffered from flooding before the grading began.

The Cal-West Communities' development has been snagged in legal hassles. A reduced master plan for the project was recently submitted by the Palo Alto developer.

Arthur N. Morrison, Corte Madera public works director said he has advised Koch that further development at the site before winter rains is unlikely. He has directed Cal-West to take steps to prevent a recurrence of last year's flooding.

Morrison has recommended increasing drainage pipe size and replacing an existing culvert with a 72 inch drainage pipe.

Corte Madera Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels said yesterday that most of Koch's previous flooding resulted from record high tides and not from runoff from the graded portions of the project.

But he said the town and the developer plan to increase the size of an existing pump station to alleviate the problem. Work should be completed before rains begin, Bartels said.

The town manager disputed the claim that flooding of the luggage firm began with the grading. "They have had flooding problems every winter," he said.

Lessons Of A Student Bartender

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Student bartenders can learn to recognize and possibly help the alcoholics who drink at their bars.

That's why alcoholism detection and prevention are being taught by Charles Ninos at the Bartenders Institute of Pittsburgh under the sponsorship of United Mental Health Inc., of Allegheny County.

Though graduates of the institute have yet to report any cured alcoholics, some say the course has given them insight into their customers' drinking habits, along with a better ability to tell when another drink would be one too many.

Ninos, who also is the director of consultation and education in St. Joseph's Hospital Alcohol Treatment Center, is undaunted by the fact that none of the approximately 125 student bartenders he has taught in the past year has made any referrals to alcoholism centers.

"It's very easy to get caught in the statistics game," he said, "but I don't believe that's our role. If one bartender refers one alcoholic in a year's period of time, that's one alcoholic that would not have gotten treatment any other way.

"We're not necessarily looking for instant results, nor miraculous results. One of the things I personally feel about the program is, if you talk about the problem with bartenders and they know what's available as resources in the community, that's sufficient result for me."

Ninos believes that alcoholics often will talk to casual acquaintances such as bartenders or barbers before they will talk to professionals. And he encourages bartenders to turn those conversations into serious discussions of the drinker's problem and that help is available.

Martin Rubenstein, a suburban Greentree bartender, said he nearly succeeded in helping a wealthy retiree with a "very heavy daytime habit" —until the man was banned from the bar for not paying his bills.

"He made quite a bit of fun about his drinking habits," Rubenstein said. "My reaction was to more or less broach the subject."

Sometimes, Rubenstein said, he would ask the man if he should "shut him off" —stop serving him.

A woman bartender in the city's East Liberty section said the course gave her the courage to suggest a cup of coffee when another drink would incapacitate her customer.

For other students, Ninos' course simply has been for thought. "It's given me the ability to see certain problems," said Rich Shields, who tends bar in a swinging nightspot in suburban South Hills, "but I haven't gone out to try and rectify them."

These things take time, Ninos said, and tells his class:

"The pattern will only work with your regular customers. This may extend over a period of months."

Dystrophy Benefit Carnival Planned

A carnival to benefit muscular dystrophy research has been scheduled for Sept. 29 by a group of Marin schoolchildren.

Games, a fortune teller and rummage sale will highlight the four-hour event, beginning at 11 a.m. at 81-A Clark Street, San Rafael. Prizes have been donated by local merchants.

A Free Boating Course Announced

A free course in boating techniques will begin Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Strawberry Point School, Mill Valley.

The class, sponsored by the Coast Guard auxiliary will meet for twelve consecutive Wednesdays. Topics will include seamanship, maneuvering, rules of the road, navigation and equipment.

Appointment Of Planner Set Tuesday

Fairfax Mayor E. Ross Parkerson will announce an appointment to the planning commission when the town council meets at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Fairfax Women's Club.

Five citizens are seeking the seat, vacated by the resignation of commissioner Gloria Duncan.

Parkerson will also announce appointments to the parks and recreation commission and the design and environmental review board on Tuesday.

In other business, the council will consider a tough new dog control ordinance, a teen dance proposed by the park and recreation commission and formation of a performing arts board.

Some garden vegetables, like corn, okra, peppers, tomatoes, squash and greens need extra nitrogen for best results.

Auto Theft Charge Possibility Probed

Further investigation is needed before the Marin District Attorney's office decides whether to prosecute Carl Joseph Adelhardt, 40, of San Rafael for allegedly stealing a car

Adelhardt, stopped by San Rafael police Thursday in an auto not registered to him, was not charged in Marin Municipal court.

Judge Throws Out Drug Haul As Case Evidence

By GEORGE NEVIN

An estimated $1 million in illegal drugs seized in a raid on a Ross house may not be used as evidence against two persons, Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson ruled yesterday.

But Deputy Dist. Atty. Michael A. Gridley said he will appeal immediately, and Wilson refused to throw out the case against William Richard Paris, 29, of Ross, and Virginia MacGregor, 19, of Sausalito. Both face felony drug charges.

If Judge Wilson's ruling is upheld on appeal, dismissal of the case is a virtual certainty, as there is no other evidence.

Wilson is the third Marin judge to dispute an affidavit which Ross police used to obtain a search warrant to raid Paris's Shady Lane house on July 19.

Two municipal court judges previously declared the affidavit invalid on the same point Wilson cited: that Ross Police Sgt. Leavins Hinnenberg did nothing to verify the identity of the man who told him he had seen bricks of marijuana at the house.

In making his ruling, Wilson said the affidavit Hinnenberg used to justify the warrant contained a "disclaimer," which said, in effect, "I don't know this to be true; this is what Mr. Martin (the informant) told me."

Attorney William O. Weissich hammered at that point: "For all we know, the informant could have been the governor of California or a nut out of Napa state hospital. There was no evidence of his reliability."

Had Hinnenberg verified that Monty Martin, the telephone installer who saw bricks of marijuana at the house, was indeed an installer and a reserve police officer in San Rafael, as he claimed, the warrant would have been valid, Wilson said.

(To obtain a search warrant, a policeman must receive information from an informant, verify the informant's reliability and present an affidavit stating the facts to a judge.)

In the earlier cases, Municipal judges Robert A. Smallman and Peter Allen Smith ruled a Mill Valley man, Raymond Anthony Hossbach, 25, could not be prosecuted for charges arising from the same raid.

Hossbach, accused of possessing 10 pounds of an illegal depressant, was fighting his case in municipal court at the time. The rulings by Smallman and Smith did not affect the case of Miss MacGregor and Paris, who were in superior court after being indicted by the Marin Grand Jury.

Hossbach, freed by Judge Smallman, was immediately rearrested and recharged by the district attorney's office. The case then went before Judge Smith, who also tossed it out.

Seized were 30 kilos of marijuana and quantities of LSD, PCP a depressant/ amphetamines and the materials to manufacture it.

Fairfax Woman To Head Board

Adelaide P. Wilson of Fairfax has been elected to a one-year term as chairman of the Community Action Marin board.

Mrs. Wilson, who resides at 189 Cascade Drive, was elected Wednesday, succeeding Barbara Eaton of San Rafael.

She has been a member of the antipoverty agency board for several years.

John H. Telfer of Novato was elected vice chairman.

Ban On Topless Dancers Is Hit

NEW YORK (UPI) — A federal court judge Thursday ruled unconstitutional a North Hempstead, N.Y., town ordinance prohibiting topless dancing.

Judge John Bartels said the law, which prohibits any display of breasts in public, was so broad as to be "constitutionally invalid as an infringement on first amendment freedoms."

A suit challenging the law was brought by the owners of three taverns in the town. In a lengthy decision Bartels said the ordinance, passed earlier this year, would prevent the performance of the "Ballet African" or the musical "Hair."

GOP Chairman Critical Of Too Many Hopefuls

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —The California Republican chairman said today too many "would-be candidates" are running for the party's 1974 gubernatorial nomination and those who show up poorly in the polls should get out.

In unusually strong language, state chairman Gordon Luce told 2,000 delegates and party faithful attending the Republican state central committee's fall convention that:

"Candidates at this convention are asking you if they should run. It's your turn to be the kingmakers. Let's honestly evaluate the field. We've seen resources diluted and unity suffer with too many candidates in the primary.

"Advise would-be candidates," Luce continued in his prepared remarks. "To step aside if polls and other evaluations show they can't win. There may be others that you should encourage to run."

Luce did not specify who he thought who should step aside.

But under his criteria, Sate Controller Houston I. Flourney conceivably would be a voluntary dropout.

In a California Field Poll released Thursday, only three per cent of 39 Republican voters surveyed chose Flournoy as their top choice for the nomination. When matched against Democratic contenders in a Field Poll released yesterday The controller finished last among among other republicans.

An aide said Flourney was in the race to stay.

Luce told Newsmen, "I think two or three candidates would give the voters a real good choice. We have two or three right now."

Asked who they were, Luce said Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger and Flournoy.

He added, "Sooner or later, some will have to make up their minds."

It was an obvious reference to former Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch, who announced Friday it would take him until late this year to decide whether to run for governor or the U.S. Senate." The states are so high for me," he told reporters. "That I'm being very hard-nosed."

"I've asked for his decision for about six months now," said Luce.

Reinecke, Younger, Finch and Flourney all were here lobbying delegates for support and hosting cocktail receptions in their hotel suites. A fifth would-be candidate, HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, was in Europe on vacation —An indication to most party leaders that he had given up the thought of running for governor.

In his remarks to delegates, Luce proudly cited former Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty —a lifelong Democrat —as a "new convert" to Republicanism "who can't live with the new left elite now in control of the other party."

Yorty was expected to announce his defection to the GOP here tomorrow.

"Our party is very broad and he has a big following in Los Angeles and we certainly welcome him," said Luce. "Anybody who wants to join our party is welcome. Particularly a well known national figure, and Sam Yorty is."

However, state Republican vice chairman Paul Haerle said of Yorty, who in May was defeated in a third term mayoral bid: "He doesn't turn me on. He just lost an election."

Watergate was on the minds of many Republicans.

Janet Johnston, a Californian who this year was elected Republican national co-chairman, said: "The party has been through difficult times the last few months, but I can tell you the worst is over. The Republican Party suffered far less damage from Watergate than some had expected. The public is not going to blame the gop for the acts of a few misguided men."

Session Set On Prices On Petroleum

BEIRUT (UPI) —Oil sources said today ministers of the world's 11 major petroleum producing countries will meet in Vienna Sept. 15 to plan revisions of the chief international agreement governing petroleum prices.

The accord, drawn up in Tehran in 1971 between the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and the major oil companies, is "dead or dying" and needs revising, Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani said in an interview published Friday.

The pact was supposed to apply through 1975, but oil sources said the Sept. 15 OPEC session in Vienna will seek ways to improve it.

"There should be a sizable lump sum increase in posted prices...so as to permit them to resume their function as realistic tax reference prices," Yamani told the newsletter Middle East Economic Survey.

The Tehran agreement set posted prices and regulated changes. The posted price of crude oil is the one which producing countries use to calculate taxes paid by petroleum companies.

Yamani said the Tehran accord should be changed to include a mechanism "which would serve to maintain posted prices above realized prices at all times."

The current posted prices of crude oil average around $2.50 per barrel, while actual prices range as high as $4.90, oil sources said. Any change in the posted price will be bound to affect consumers, they said.

Belvedere Adopts Stiffer Zone Checks

The Belvedere City Council has adopted stricter zoning controls for property in the city.

The major zoning change is to outlaw building on substandard lots by homeowners who own adjacent land, according to City Mgr. William L. Cavalli.

The amendments to the zoning ordinance, approved Thursday, also create two new zones, open space and cove multiple-family dwelling. In addition to multiple-family residences, the latter permits churches, club buildings and apartment offices.

Height limits for structures are reduced from 42 to 36 feet in the multiple zone and from 32 to 28 feet in all other zones.

The new zoning incorporates suggestions by the consulting firm of Livingston and Blayney contained in a study completed in November, 1971. The amendments will take effect in 30 days.

The council also approved the purchase of a $670 public address system for council chambers and adjourned until 8 p.m. Sept. 19 when it will consider bids for two sewer projects, Cavalli said.

First Third Term

When Democrat Calvin L. Rampton took the oath of office on New Year's Day, 1973, he became the first governor in Utah's history to begin a third term.

$200,000 Won In Damage Suit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A superior court jury has awarded $200,000 to two former Canyon, Contra Costa County, residents who were injured and whose property was damaged in a 1969 aviation fuel pipeline explosion.

Plaintiffs Henry Viverros and Nancy McHone were awarded the money Thursday.

The defendant was the Shell Oil Co., which operated the line. The plaintiffs charged the pipeline was constructed in a dangerous manner.

Court To Decide On Birth Records

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —The state Attorney General has asked the state Supreme Court to decide if a Fort Wayne newspaper may search birth records to determine if Sen. George McGovern is listed as the father of an illegitimate child.

Atty. Gen. Theodore L. Sendak asked the court to overturn a ruling by Circuit Judge Hermann F. Busse ordering the state Board of Health to open its records for inspection. Sendak contended Busse's court lacked jurisdiction.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Recreational Plan For Desert Would Ban Off-Road Vehicles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The U.S. Bureau of Land Management proposed a recreational plan for the Southern California desert today that would ban off-road vehicles from 22 areas while allowing them virtually unlimited access to 15 other zones.

In the bulk of the 12 million desert acres administrered by the BLM, off-road vehicles would be put under some form of restriction, such as confinement to existing or designated roads and trails.

The proposals were contained in a preliminary California Desert Off-Road Vehicle Management Plan formulated under the BLM's long-range California Desert Plan.

"This draft plan provides a management framework for the maximum recreational use of the California Desert consistent with protection of natural resources and environmental values," said J.R. Penny, California state director for the BLM.

The preliminary plan was put together following discussions by BLM personnel with local governments, off-road vehicle organizations and other desert users. Penny invited the same organizations and the public to comment on the draft by Oct. 16.

Four mobile exhibit units containing maps and a summary of the plan were to tour Southern California cities beginning Sunday.

Penny said the off-road vehicle plan was in line with President Nixon's executive order last year directing federal agencies to come up with programs for off-road vehicle management on all federal lands.

The desert was a particularly critical area because use there is growing faster than the recreational use of any other environment, he said.

Approximately 70 per cent of the 11 million visitor days of recreational use of the desert last year involved off-road vehicles in some way, Penny said.

Southern California had 500,000 four-wheel drive vehicles registered last year and 1.2 million of the state's 1.8 million motorcycles.

The number of dune buggies in Southern California is impossible to determine because they generally are not registered, Penny said. But he estimated as many as 5,000 buggies use the major sand dune areas of the desert on heavy use weekends.

Penny said full enforcement of the rules and policies of the plan will be in effect initially only in a few critical areas because of limited manpower and funding capabilities.

"Additional areas will be placed under full management with necessary enforcement as our capability develops for such things as posting restricted areas, signing designated roads and trails, and providing patrol," Penny said.

"Meanwhile, effective protection of desert resources will depend largely on the willingness of desert users to follow the plan and treat the environment responsibly."

Areas closed to all off-road vehicles under the plan include: Darwin Falls, Desert Tortoise Preserve, Amargosa Canyon, Clark Mountain, Kelso Dunes, Turtle Mountains interior, Bigelow Cholla area, Whipple Mountains, Orocopia Mountain, Sal Creek, Desert Lily area, San Felipe Creek, Coyote Mountain, Painted Gorge, Fossil Canyon, Yuha Basin, Imperial Sand Hills north of Highway 78, Saline Valley north end, Plank Road historic site, Crucifixion Thorn area, Amboy Crater and Mecca Hills interior.

The open areas with virtually no restrictions include: Olancha, Dove Springs, Rand Mountain-Rademacher area, Devils Playground, Stoddard Valley, Melville Lake, Cadiz Valley, Danby Lake, Shavers Valley, Palen Valley-Ford Dry Lake, Little Chuckwalla, Plaster City, Imperial Sand Hills south of Highway 78, Buttercup Valley and Dumont Dunes northwest portion.

Additionally, 17 areas were recommended for "special design" for intensive management to ease conflicts among users—such as vehicles and campers—and to protect natural resources.

Of the 12 million desert acres administered by the BLM, Penny said, slightly more than 1 million acres would fall in the "open" category, 825,000 would be closed, a little more than 1 million would be in the "special design" category and the balance would have off-road vehicle restricted to designated or existing roads and trails.

Women Weren't Newsworthy In The Early Days Of Marin

By BARBARA HOSMER

With San Rafael's centennial year fast approaching, we looked back at the faded, small-type pages of the 1874 Marin Journal to see what women might have been doing then. And we looked and looked.

Women in those days just weren't judged very newsworthy. Perhaps because there weren't very many of them and their pursuits were deemed ordinary. The 1870 census showed only 1,855 women of the total 6,903 population for the county.

One mention of a woman in the 1874 Marin Journal was a brief one on Sallie Hart — of Oakland: "Sallie Hart, the female lobbyist for women's rights, is invested with the rights and powers of a police officer in Oakland, having become a member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

The fact that Sallie was redundantly but explicitly identified as female may be the clue that the item was the exception to the usual male-oriented news carried at the time.

BY THE 1880s the Marin Journal was reporting that Mrs. May Crockett, one of San Rafael's first women employees, was driving the wagon that sprinkled down the dusty streets, at $40 a month, $10 more than the town paid the night watchman.

Following the custom of filling its columns with stories from other newspapers, by 1893 the Journal did give Marin readers insights into lives of a few women elsewhere, often in romantic style:

"One of the most successful ranchers in the West is Emma Perry, a young widow slight of stature, refined in manner, and fair of face. She is also a clever conversationalist, intellectual in her tastes and very fond of painting, to which she devotes the leisure she can secure after attending to the large estate she manages entirely herself. She is a daring rider and rides miles over the prairie on fair days or stormy ones, followed by her greyhounds.

"In Winter, wrapped up warmly and mounted on a pony, she personally superintends the roundup of her cattle, facing the driving show for hours until the last horned head is in a place of shelter."

THIS ROMANTICIZED account of the heroine in the snow is followed later that year in the Marin Journal by an account of a woman miner from the Tacoma Call:

"To look at her one would not suppose Mrs. Emily Knight of Tacoma was the kind of woman who would face the hardships of a miner's life, going far beyond the plae of civilization, away from all refining influences, going in previously untraveled regions, where many men would fear to go. . . yet that is what this lady accomplished.

"For over a year Mrs. Knight has been aware of extensive mineral deposits in the Gold Hill District but it was not until recently that she decided to bond the 17 claims in the district for $50,000. She has now returned from her properties and decided to make improvements for taking out the ore. Even during her absence she declares that she cannot afford to lose any time in the work, and has a cook and three shifts of men engaged and steadily improving the Blue Bell, her most promising prospect.

"The different prospects owned by Mrs. Knight (also the Emma and Union mines) have veins that carry both gold and silver ore that run from $170 to $280 the ton.

"Why do I follow this kind of life?", she was quoted. "Because I like it. There is a certain amount of fascination in mining and dealing in mines that appeals to me. Think, one might be rich tomorrow, although comparatively poor today." Obviously a woman with business acumen, it turned out that Mrs. Knight had been all over the U.S. to observe mines and was in the San Diego real estate boom earning "considerable money."

PERHAPS MARIN had no women to match that ones story, and perhaps the local women of prominent families believe that "ladies did not have their names in the paper except at birth, marriage and death." But by the turn of the century surely something newsworthy was going on among Marin's women.

When the question of incorporating towns within Ross Valley came up in 1907, the widows Barber, Kittle, Allen Coffin, Roe, Moore, Ross, Worn, Griffith, Dibblee, Latham, Kent and Marton owned over three-fourths of the land involved and opposed incorporation, but had no say in the matter because as women they could not vote. Yet their stablemen and gardeners could.

By 1908, "The women of Marin County who favored equal suffrage held a meeting in Mill Valley Tuesday," cryptically reported the Marin Journal.

And when San Rafael drew up its City Charter in 1913 it contained Section 10: "Nothing in this charter shall be construed as prohibiting the election or appointment of women to any office, and the words in this charter in the masculine gender shall include the feminine." This obviously resulted from some concerted effort on the part of local women.

Reporting of activities of Marin's women began to improve at the turn of the century, and things are a bit better now than they were in 1874.

Sausalito Nursery School Set

The Sausalito Nursery School will begin the 25th year of its existence with sessions on Wednesday. Morning sessions for children 2½ to 3½ years old will be held from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., and afternoon sessions for children 3½ to 5 years old from 12:30 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Susan Platt of Tiburon is the director, with Carola Frazier of Mill Valley and Paulette Cormack of Sausalito, assistants. Mrs. Platt, who received her degree in supervision and administration of nursery schools from Sonoma State College was assistant director of the school last year. Mrs. Frazier, a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, completed the early childhood credential program at Sonoma State College. Mrs. Cormack is a graduate of Iowa State University in Ames, Iowa, with a major in elementary education, and holds teacher's certificates in the states of Iowa and Minnesota.

The school, which is open five days a week, Monday through Friday, offers art, music, dance and the development of awareness for pre-school age children.

Lines Are Dropped From Wedding Story

Several lines of type were dropped from a story in Friday's Independent-Journal which identified Deborah Karen Hoyt as the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Caine of Berkeley.

Deborah is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Hoyt of San Rafael. The Caines are parents of Laurence Eliot Caine to whom Deborah was married on Sept. 1.

Yoga Classes To Begin On Monday

A new series of yoga classes is beginning Monday at the Unitarian Fellowship of Marin, 240 Channing Way in San Rafael.

The eight sessions will be held Mondays and Fridays.

Mrs. C. K. Sigler is in charge of registration.

Yacht Christening Set Wednesday

By MOLLY MARIN

Commodore and Mrs. Leonard Delmas of San Rafael have invited 350 guests, including many Marin friends, to attend the christening of their new yacht, Another Girl, at 6 p.m. Wednesday at the guest dock at St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco. Their Newport 41S class sloop, will be the flagship for St. Francis Yacht Club, of which Delmas is commodore.

The four Delmas daughters, Cinde Lou, Michele, Denise and Suzanne, are the inspiration for the yacht's name. The girls will assist with hostess duties at the champagne christening. The Rev. Donald O'Gara, a longtime personal friend of the Delmas family, will give the blessing at the lauching.

The new yacht will be raced for the first time in the City of San Francisco Perpetual Series for yacht 40 feet and over, sponsored by St. Francis Yacht Club, the week following the christening.

IT'S BEEN a busy summer for Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hudson of San Rafael who have spent vacations and weekends near Sierra City where they are building a vacation home.

TWELVE FAMILIES from Paradise Harbor Yacht Club in Tiburon rendzevoused over Labor Day weekend at Potato Slough on Fig Island in the Delta.

They rafted their yachts together for swimming, floating in truck-size inner tubes and for Laser and El Toro races.

In mid-August Dr. and Mrs. Burt Richardson, who planned a 10-day family vacation on the delta for themselves, held a "Delta Planning Party" at their Larkspur home for other club members to show them delta charts.

The cruise turned into one of the biggest family outings the club had had in a long time, said Mrs. Richardson. They were joined by Mrs. Eleanor Carlson of Lake Tahoe, Messrs. and Mmes. Ronn Hill of San Anselmo, Michael Russell of San Rafael, Joseph Zajac of Oakland, Charles Ecker of Daly City, Paul Osborn of Los Altos, Ron Bernhard of Concord, Ken Piper of Tiburon, Michael Fitz-Gerald of Mill Valley, George Gianandrea of San Rafael and Mr. Art Roberts of Fairfax.

Last Sunday they sailed to Carquinez Straits to join other boats from Paradise Harbor which were participating in the club's three-day Glen Cove Marina Cruise. They joined Mrs. Art Roberts of Fairfax, Messrs. and Mmes. John Scott of Tiburon, William Bedford of Sausalito, Phil Jones of San Rafael, Bob Fedderson of San Rafael, Jim McCann of Tiburon, Harold Steele of San Rafael, Ed Merrick of Fairfax and Messrs. Ralph Hendricks of San Anselmo and Steve Blumenthal of San Rafael.

ATTENDING THE San Francisco Opera Guild Ball last night after the opening night of the opera season was Horace Hayes of Sausalito. The party was given at the War Memorial Theater in the Veterans Building next door to the Opera House, attended by opera general director Kurt Herbert Adler, his wife, and a group of noted opera artists. The San Francisco opera season opened with "La Favorita".

MARRIED AT St. Rita's Church in Fairfax, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis J. Lestenguet greeted friends afterward at the Aug. 18 reception at the Corte Madera Recreation Center. The bride is the former Patricia Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Evans of Fairfax.

Dennis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean F. Lestenguet of Fairfax. He is the grandson of Mrs. Jean Lestenguet and Mrs. Michael Garvey, and the great grandson of Mrs. J. M. Fanlo, all of San Anselmo.

Patricia's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Evans of Douglas, Ga.

MR. AND Mrs. Lewis Sarasy have just returned to Belvedere after a month's driving trip across the United States.

With their two sons, the Sarasys visited historic spots and relatives and friends. Highlights were Yellowstone National Park, Mount Rushmore, a stay in a Manhattan townhouse and a week in Cornwall, Conn., where they had lived 19 years ago.

They sometimes fished and cooked outside along the 9,000 mile route.

MRS. HARVEY L. Lowenthal of Ross is among the provisions to be honored at a welcoming luncheon Tuesday by the Little Jim Club of Children's Hospital in San Frncisco. The new members will have luncheon at the hospital and begin preparation for volunteer work for the hospital and the Mardi Gras Ball in February.

SEW SIMPLE

Preshrink All Fabrics Carefully

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Second of a series on handling sweater knits.)

By EUNICE FARMER

(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

Preshrink all fabrics according to manufacturers care directions unless you plan to have your garment dry-cleaned. Before preshrinking, baste lengthwise edges together, then wash just the way you will handle the knit after it has been worn.

Do not use the original fold in the fabric. Use a lengthwise rib as a grainline guide. Most of the stretch goes around the body, not up and down.

Make a full pattern from your half pattern when you are working with plaids or stripes that are more difficult to fold. Cut all pieces in the same direction.

If possible, eliminate any center back seam, side seams may also be eliminated in cardigan jackets by placing the seam lines at the sides over each other, unless side darts are needed. If darts are desired for a full-busted figure, the amount of the dart should be added across the entire front.

INTERFACING IS rarely necessary in knits. Should you desire an interfacing, we recommend the featherweight, all bias pellon or lightweight nylon marquisette cut on the bias. It is not necessary to cut knits on the bias. There is enough stretch on the crosswise grain.

Never cut notches into the knit, or clip the knit for markings, it can cause runs to develop. Markings are impossible to find. Cut the notches in a triangle that extends beyond the edge of the pattern, always mark the shoulder on the sleeve cap, center front and back. Use sharp scissors for cutting knits to avoid ragged edges.

DEAR EUNICE,

I just discovered my error in marking pleats, and I'm sure others have discovered the same thing. I used colored chalk to mark the pleat lines on the wrong side of the fabric. When I placed the pleats in place, they turned out to be the wrong direction according to my pattern. What did I do wrong? You have told us never to use the colored chalk on the right side of our fabric.

MRS. E.B.S.

DEAR MRS. E.B.S.,

Pleats must be placed into position from the right side of your fabric or they will turn out in reverse, as you have discovered. Since you should never use the colored chalk on the right side of your fabric, you must mark the pleat in another method. I prefer making tailor tacks on the crease lines as well as the lines where the pleats will meet. It takes a few minutes longer but it will always be accurate.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have noticed that buttons are becoming larger, at least that's the case in some of the fashion pictures I have seen. When we have a very favorite pattern for a coat that uses small buttons, is there any reason why we can't make larger buttonholes?

NANCY V.

DEAR NANCY,

No, there is no reason why you can't make larger buttonholes. However, unless you have a wider extension from the edge of the buttonhole to the front edge of your garment, you will be in deep trouble because the fronts won't lap correctly. The edge of your button will extend beyond the edge of the garment.

A good rule of thumb would be to remember that the space between the end of the buttonhole and the edge of your garment must be one half the width of your new button, plus five-eighths inches. If your garment has the facing cut in one with the front section, cut your pattern on the fold line.

DEAR EUNICE,

DEAR NANCY,

However, unless you have a wider extension from the edge of the buttonhole to the front edge of your garment, you will be in deep trouble because the fronts won't lap correctly. The edge of your button will extend beyond the edge of the garment.

Separate the pattern twice the amount that you actually need since half of this width will be needed for the facing. Your new fold line would be at the exact center of the space you have added.

Try your calculations on a piece of paper before you cut the garment. Actually trace off part of the pattern and work it all out carefully, it will save many problems in the end.

Actually, these same instructions would also be used if your dress or any garment needs larger button. Remember that a coat is always more comfortable if it laps at least 1 inch. I personally prefer at least 1-inch space between the end of the buttonhole and the edge of the garment.

DEAR EUNICE,

Will you please tell us when we should put creases in pants and when not to?

MRS. J.Y.

DEAR MRS. J.Y.,

This all depends on the fabric and the style of the pants. With the new very wide leg pants that are made of soft knits, you wouldn't use a crease, also with velvets. However, the tailored slacks are for the most part, still using a crease.

You can be more aware of what to do if you shop for better ready-to-wear and see what is being done with the more expensive pants. Naturally, knits won't hold a crease like woven fabrics and since woven fabrics have made a strong comeback in the fashion picture, you will also see a sharper, more tailored look in all details of the garments.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Teen Can't Figure Out People Who Refuse To Become Involved

RAP:

I'm 16 and can't figure people out. I mean nobody wants to get involved.

My girlfriend and I went to an auction the other day and when we got ready to leave, we saw a man lying on the ground.

People kept driving by but wouldn't stop to help. We finally got an ambulance, but that man might have died if we hadn't been there. He'd had some sort of heart attack.

Why are people so uncaring? — B. AND M.

B. AND M.: Many people want to help but are afraid. We've been taught as youngsters not to talk with strangers. When we begin driving, we're warned not to pick up hitchhikers. We're told to walk only in well-lit areas and trust no one who calls out. . .and never to unbolt our doors when someone unknown is on the other side.

You see, caution has been drummed into us since babyhood. It's necessary, of course, but it also keeps us "uninvolved." I wonder how many of those people passing by thought this heart attack victim was either a wino, or a con artist waiting for a sucker with a fat wallet?

But there are ways we can help without taking big risks. You found one when you called an ambulance. You can also ask passersby to stop — they'll usually listen when you show concern. A loud scream will bring help in a hurry — and if you carry a whistle in your purse, using it might even save you from attack some day.

I think you see what I mean: don't blame others too much, but be glad you are not afraid to get involved. And don't ever lose that quality! — SUE

DEAR RAP:

Reading letters from mothers who think their children have let them down (because they wanted independence) I wonder why it is that parents dote on helplessness? These mothers rave about how sweet their kids were as babies. Do they want them to remain babies all their lives?

They should be pleased that their children develop some form of self-expression besides crying or cooing. Sure, a baby can't answer back, but neither can he or she be a real companion and friend — and that's what parents and older children should be.

I think the age of realization is beautiful when a teen-ager matures into a young adult and has a mind of his own. Incidentally, so does my Mom! — I.V.A.

DEAR I.:

. . .And so do we! — HELEN AND SUE

RAP:

Whenever I see a boy looking at me I go into my act. Can't seem to help it. I'm a show-off and a smiler, and I try to flirt but come off silly. Afterwards I hate myself, but the next time — there I go again! Why do I do this, and —

How can a 14-year-old act natural around a boy? — B.L.B.

B.L.B.:

When you aren't sure of yourself, you try to be somebody else. But this isn't all bad — at least you don't disappear into the woodwork as many boy-shy girls do. — SUE

DEAR B.:

"Acting natural" comes with practice. It will come faster if you realize the boys are trying too hard, too, and they'll feel more at ease when they see you aren't putting on an act. — HELEN

The Bare Shoulder Evening Dresses

For a while there, the evening dress that bared only one shoulder was what the fashion industry calls a "Ford" best seller.

Then it waned, only to return for fall in several collections from New York and Paris. Dior, in Paris, showed it in black crepe georgette. Gustave Tassell, the Designer at Norell's, did it in column-shaped sheer wools either black or white.

Fall Colors Now Big In Fashion

Fall is the time when everyone is reminded of the wonder of the changing leaves, with reds, yellows, greens and so many shades of soft brown dominating the landscape. The same colors will dominate the smart woman's new wardrobe — but in ladylike fashion. The accent is on tweeds and plaids, the traditional fall wear, and you'll never go wrong in camel's hair.

Tops on the plaid list is glen plaid, the same design so popular again these days in men's wear.

The Jumper Popular Dress For School

Jumpers are popular with little girls returning to school which are coordinated with cuffed anklets, lacy knee socks and patterned tights.

Long sleeved knit shirts are worn with the jumpers. Popular colors for the outfits are forest green, gray, camel, red plaid and jacquard patterns, reports Women's Wear Daily.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, Sept. 8, the 251st day of 1973 with 114 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Sen. Robert A. Taft, R-Ohio was born Sept. 8, 1892. He died in 1953.

On this day in history:

In 1565, the first permanent settlement of what is now the continental United States was founded at what is now St. Augustine, Fla.

In 1900, more than 6,000 persons were killed when a hurricane and tidal wave struck Galveston, Tex.

In 1934, the U.S. liner "Morro Castle" burned off Asbury Park, N.J., taking 137 lives.

In 1943, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced the unconditional surrender of Italy, one of the World War II Axis powers. The others were Germany and Japan, whose defeat came later.

A thought for the day: German philosopher Arthur Schopenhauer said: "Hatred comes from the heart; contempt from the head; and neither is quite within our control."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, clean air.

Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Prescription Arrest Made

A Woodacre man posed as a doctor yesterday and telephoned a San Rafael pharmacy to order a prescription pain killer, San Rafael police said. They arrested him when he came in to pick up the drugs.

David George Peterson, 26, of 40 Madrone Avenue, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of forging a prescription, a felony, and held in lieu of $1,000 bail to appear Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said Peterson ordered the drugs from Merrill's Pharmacy, 866 Fourth Street.

to the state attorney general for possible civil action.

The Wisconsin Retail Gasoline Dealers Association also called for a weekend-long protest. A spokesman said he expected about 60 per cent of the state's stations to close. Sales were reported well over average Friday as motorists stocked up for the weekend.

Motorists driving through the hot Mojave Desert from Los Angeles to Las Vegas had further difficulties Friday when as many as a dozen dealers posted angry "no gas today" signs. Owners whose stations stayed open said they were "super busy."

"We're being forced to lower our prices while everything else goes up," fumed Standard Oil dealer Hal Keller. A fellow owner said that a gallon of gas should cost 53.9 cents "if we'd raised our prices in accordance with the cost of living rise."

Jack W. Houston of the Georgia Association of Petroleum Retailers predicted that at least one in 10 gas stations in the state will go out of business in a week. The Phase IV rules, he said, have "the effect of holding a gun against the heart of gas retailers while an oil company robs them."

Fri Sets Sail Again

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — The Sausalito-based, nuclear protest yacht Fri completed repairs at Moorea Island Thursday and set sail.

French Navy boats towed the Fri from the safety zone around the French nuclear test zone at Mururoa Atoll before the first 1973 atomic blast in July.

Leaving Moorea, an island near Papeete, Capt. David Moodie of Sausalito, Calif., said that if there were further blasts, the yacht would return to the Mururoa area to take supplies to another protest ship, the Spirit of Peace.

Marinite Lands In Trouble On Jury Duty

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A Mill Valley woman was one of three persons arrested yesterday by U.S. marshals and taken handcuffed into U.S. District court for repeatedly ignoring summons to appear for jury duty.

Marilyn V. von Wandtke, 26, of 25 Loring Avenue was released after a 45-minute hearing before Chief Judge Oliver J. Carter when she agreed to answer future jury calls.

William N. Thompson, 27, of San Francisco, also agreed to answer future summons and was released. A third person, Nancy V. Horton 21, of San Francisco, was excused because she is a college student.

Four Hurt In Accident On Freeway

A San Francisco man, trying to avoid a wrong-way driver on Highway 101, crashed into a guard rail last night, injuring himself and three members of his family.

The wrong-way driver, Joseph Edwin Schumacher, 60, of Boulder Creek, Santa Cruz County, was not hurt. He was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of felony drunken driving.

The most seriously injured of the Paul Gardner family was 3-year-old William Gardner, reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with a head injury.

Gardner, 39, was in satisfactory condition with cuts of the face and hand. His wife, Merilee, 29, also was in satisfactory condition with scalp cuts and a broken arm and foot. A second son, Michael, 1, suffered cuts and bruises.

The California Highway Patrol said Schumacher was driving north in the freeway's southbound lanes at 11 p.m. on California Park Hill south of San Rafael when the Gardner car swerved into a steel guardrail to avoid his auto.

Schumacher continued along the freeway to the vicinity of the San Rafael overpass, where the highway patrol stopped him.

A Housing Cooperative To Be Eyed

A controversial plan by 16 families to build a housing cooperative on a hillside in Homestead Valley will be considered Tuesday by Marin County Supervisors.

The families have proposed 18 dwellings, a central lodge, tennis courts and swimming pool on 12 acres between Ridgewood Avenue and Homestead Boulevard.

The planning commission recommended approval of the project over the protests of nearby residents who fear the development will increase drainage problems.

Supervisors, who will meet at 10 a.m. at Civic Center, also will consider a master plan for a campground-recreational facility adjacent to Gnoss Field in North Marin.

The aviation commission has appealed planning commission approval of the project and has asked for a full review of the proposed development and its relationship to proposed airport expansion.

Supervisors have cancelled their 9 a.m. meeting as the board of the regional park district because of a lack of agenda items.

Crop Damage From Delia: $200 Million

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — More than $200 million worth of crops have been battered by tropical storm Delia, and the damage estimate could climb even higher if the coast does not dry out.

"If the weather is nice for the next few days we'll have minimal losses. If the weather turns back bad and we don't pick up what is down, that could be bad," rice buyer Fernan Roy of El Campo said yesterday.

grant leeway occasionally even in pollution standards related to health, if it meant overcoming an energy problem.

Nixon said there was "quite spirited" discussion and some disagreement at the meeting but Love added the disagreement had faded by its end.

"We have heard a lot about the crisis," the President said. "I do not use that term because we do not face a crisis in that sense of the word; we face a problem."

Nixon said his administration would not be "Pollyannish about it."

He announced four administrative actions approved by the meeting:

The relaxed emission standards.

Development for domestic use of the oil reserves in the Elk Hills Naval Reserve.,

The accelerated effort for more use of nuclear power generation.

Renewed efforts in research on clean techniques for use of coal.

President Nixon also said he and his aides and Cabinet are concentrating on getting Congress to pass four bills "of the highest urgency."

The Alaska pipeline bill that is in a conference committee.

Legislation to pave the way for deepwater port facilities.

Removal of government control on the price of natural gas at the point of production.

Regulation of strip mining.

Love announced that the Cost of Living Council has approved regulations allowing increased prices for foreign heating oils to be passed through to retail prices in the United States.

It was expected that move would boost the retail price of heating oil this winter by two cents a gallon. Charles J. DiBona, a special presidential consultant on energy, estimated the nation will need 200,000 to 400,000 barrels a day of additional fuel this winter, even if weather is not severe.

The President emphasized the need for solving American energy problems with American energy resources.

He said "the United States must be in a position so that no nation in the world has us in the position where they can cut off our oil."

Love said he thinks the United States could become self-sufficient in energy in three to five years, but even then would expect to be importing "some oil —certainly from this hemisphere and probably from the Middle East."

Campground Trailer Site To Be Opposed

The Novato City Council has decided to oppose a trailer campground proposed for part of a commercial recreation development south of Gnoss Field.

City Mgr. Chrles A. Brown said the council on Thursday agreed the trailer facility is not desirable.

The project will be reviewed by county supervisors Tuesday.

The county planning commission has already approved developer Peter Lind's plans to build a 45-space trailer campground, boat moorings, a restaurant and related shops on 48 acres along BlackJohn Slough.

Brown said that the council thought the campground use was incompatible with the nearby airport.

Concrete In Park Area To Be Eyed

The Gallinas Community Services District board will meet at 6 p.m. tomorrow at its small park on Adrian Way to lay out lines of an area to be filled with concrete.

The board will also formally call for bids for paving the park area above La Pasada Way, secretary Marguerite F. Clark said.

Directors at their Thursday meeting agreed to meet with local teen-agers at 8 p.m. Sept. 19 in the recreational center to discuss the fall recreation program.

The board also recommended that 32 acres along Gallinas Creek owned by William Scott be developed in low density cluster fashion, rather than purchased as open space, according to Mrs. Clark.

SPORTS ANALYSIS

Softball: A Popular Sport

By RON LENT

Question: The most popular participatory recreation department sport for Marin County adults is (A) football, (B) basketball, (C) swimming, (D) softball.

Answer: (D) softball.

Some 1,100 men over age 18 particiapte in "D" from April through September at Albert Field in San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department-sponsored leagues. Fifty-two teams registered for the fast-pitch, nine-man summer play, 40 for spring, according to San Rafael rec figures.

San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Department has about 30 teams. Corte Madera has seven, while Novato has between eight and 10. Additionally, there is a 12-team Marin fire department loop and a league operating in Ross. The area has a new recreation department to run it, directed by part-timer Stacy Walker.

"As far as adult participation goes, it's the most popular playing sport in Marin," said Ralph Dannenberg, assistant recreation supervisor with San Rafael Recreation and Park Department. He continued, "Softball is second only to swimming in overall participation." In age-group swimming, some 50,000 people (based on unit computations) take part in the San Rafael rec program. By Dannenberg's unit system, swimmers who compete twice a week, for example, are counted twice. Composite county swimming figures are not known, but it is estimated that there are about 2,000 Marin softball league players.

The latter figure is a healthy one and it appears to be on the upswing. The average age for the participants is 22-26. This indicates that the 12-year-old league is stocked with young players who can continue to play in years ahead.

San Rafael rec, which provides the county's largest softball program of its kind, has an added touch — fans.

"On a good night (meaning good weather), we have up to 300 fans watching our games at Albert Park. It's free and it offers a good form of passive recreation. The fans are enthusiastic, too. They yell, and they follow certain teams."

Dannenberg, who has been directing the San Rafael league system for two years, does it all. He schedules the games and hires the umpires — two for each game. Games are played Monday through Friday starting at 6:30 p.m., 8, and 9:30. Sundays, games commence at noon and conclude at 10:30. Contests run seven innings or one hour and twenty-five minutes, whichever comes first. This format enables all the teams to play weekly and insures a quick, smooth flow of action from one game to the next.

The fast pace is also reflected in the pitching styles. "We tried slow pitch last spring, but there wasn't enough interest. So we now just have the fast pitch. The players think it's more action-packed this way. And the games go quicker," Dannenberg noted.

Softball is also enjoyed by non-Marinites who trek to Albert Field to play. To reduce the number of non locals in the San Rafael loop, a rule was recently passed whereby 50 per cent of the teams' rosters must be San Rafael residents. And

Rosie Casals: A Small Netter With Big Power

Sausalito Star's Success Due To Her Consistency

By PHIL ELDERKIN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEWPORT, R.I. — She is so small she could hide in a match box. But there is power in her legs and a dash of Pancho Gonzales in her serve. And with an elastic head band holding her black hair, she looks as though she might have wandered off some cowboy and Indian movie set.

Most of her career so far has been spent chasing the two top stars on the women's pro tour — Billie Jean King and Margaret Court. Their matches are always close, eye-compelling, and highly competitive. And right now, according to her rivals, Rosemary Casals of Sausalito is playing the best tennis of her career.

"Rosie has always been tough for me," said Valerie Ziegenfuss, who lost to Miss Casals in the 1972 Oklahoma City Open. "She has a great serve and volley game and tremendous mobility. She seems able to beat everybody consistently now except Margaret Court. And I think the only reason Margaret beats her is because she is bigger and stronger."

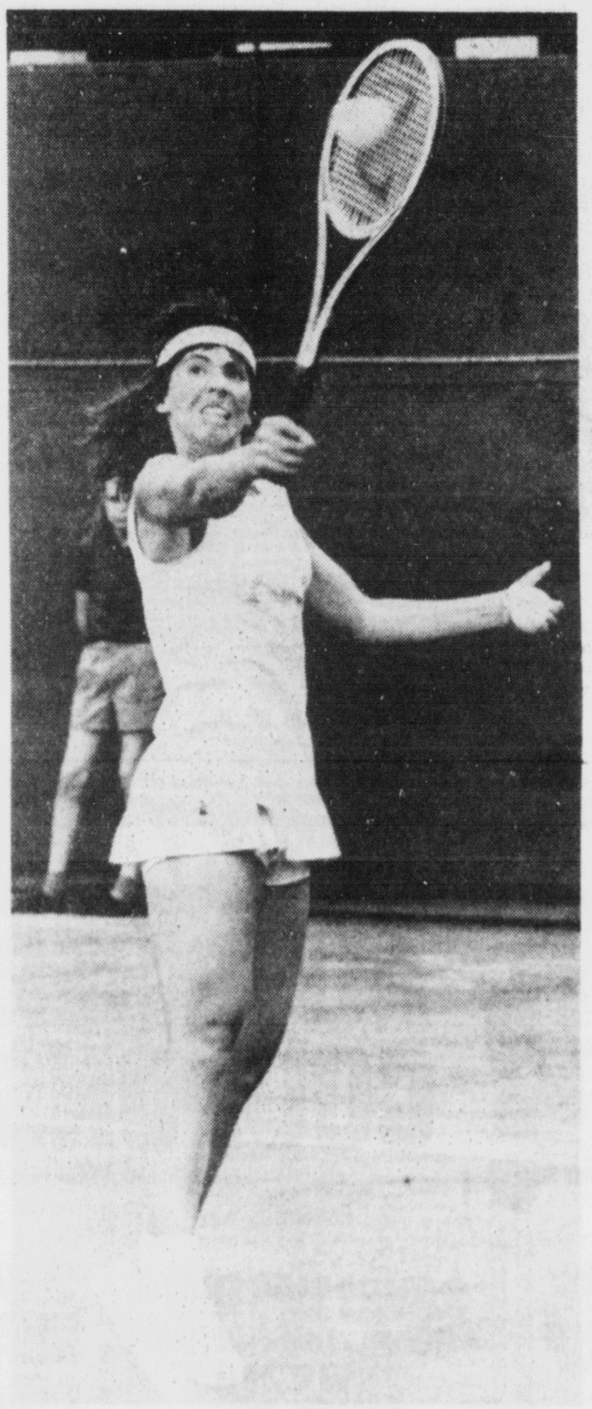
Could Miss Casals explain her improvement?

"I think you can trace it to the fact that I've been a lot more consistent this year," she replied. "When you're able to make your whole game work, the confidence begins to flow and you feel you can beat anybody. I'm also getting older and I think maturity can sometimes be a plus in this game.

"Other years, too, I've always felt I played too much tennis," she continued. "I'd get tired and maybe start missing shots I generally make. But this year I've been very very eager to play. And despite what some people say I don't have a hang-up on Margaret Court. I know I can beat her."

Miss Casals, who may have the fastest legs in women's tennis, says that any slow surface is great for her game and great for the spectators.

"If you've got a lot of shots and know how to use them, you have to want to play on a surface which will let you have some rallies — like clay," Rosie explained. "I don't like hard surfaces where somebody hits the ball bang-bang and it's all over. And I hate to play on grass. In fact, you have no control on grass.



Sausalito tennis star Rosie Casals.

(UPI Telephoto)

"I don't think the spectators like the bang-bang game, either," she continued. "They want to see two people duel each other a little, get the ball back a lot, move their opponent around, and use some strategy. I love clay, but I also like most of the synthetic surfaces, where the ball bounces and stays in the air for you."

Asked exactly how she goes about winning a match, the Marinite replied:

"First you have to remember that most of the time we are competing against people whose strengths and weakness-

Backhaus' Relay Team Sets Record

Combined AP & UPI

BELGRADE — Robin Backhaus, enjoying an outstanding meet will bring at least a quarter of a world record back to San Rafael when he returns from the World Aquatic Championships.

Backhaus was part of the U.S. 800-meter freestyle relay team which yesterday chopped eight seconds off the mark with a time of 7:33.32, after nearly failing earlier to qualify for the event.

Backhaus, who also has won the 200-meter butterfly, was scheduled to swim today in the 100 fly, and if he is the fastest American in the race, he will swim the same distance tomorrow in the 400 medley relay.

Marin Aquatic Club teamamte Rick DeMont, meanwhile, was to clash today with Australian Steve Holland in a "dream" confrontation of the world's two best 1,500-meter freestylers.

Backhaus yesterday swam his leg of the relay in 1:53.27. Kurt Krumpholtz of Irvine, Calif., led off in 1:53.34, Rick Klatt of Albuquerque, N.M., did 1:53.08 and Jim Montgomery of Madison, Wis., finished up in 1:51.13 — and all of these times came in the slow outside lane, which the Americans were given after qualifying eighth (last) earlier yesterday.

U.S. coach Gus Stager entered a second-string team in the morning heats to keep the best freestylers fresh, but the tactic nearly backfired as Rex Favero of Sacramento developed an upset stomach but failed to tell anybody.

Favero swam six seconds slower than his personal best time, and the U.S. team came within one spot of failing to qualify.

In developments today, Rosemarie Kother of East Germany set the 10th world record in the meet when she swam a 200 fly heat of 2:15.45, some .12 below American Karen Moe's showing in last year's Munich Olympics.

Teammate Roswitha Beier swam 2:18.87, Lynn Collela of Seattle did 2:20.36 and Nina MacGinnis of Bryn Mawr, Pa., did 2:23.87.

Heather Greenwood, a 16-year-old high school sensation, yesterday outswam the world record holder, Keena Rothhammer of Santa Clara, Calif., to win he 400 free in 4:20.28.

Melissa Belote of Springfield, Va., broke away to an easy victory over Enith Brighita of The Netherlands in the 200 backstroke and was clocked in 2:20.52 — 3 seconds off her world record.

RAYMOND-SEMPLE

A Competitive Marin Racing Team

By LEW CODDINGTON

"If they banned automobiles, we'd race locomotives," says Dick Raymond, not needing to add that he and Pat Semple would willingly spend the time and money needed to adapt the locomotive to Can-Am specifications.

Raymond, who moved to Novato from San Jose in June, and Terra Linda's Semple are co-owners of an automobile which they will race in the A Sports division at the Rough Rider Nationals at Sears Point Raceway Sept. 15-16.

"It's a competitive auto," insisted the enthusiastic Raymond. "We won the pole the last time out in a regional race. Of course, the Nationals are different, but we have a chance."

The blue Lola T-163, newly fortified with a 600-horsepower Chevrolet engine, was built in 1969 and raced on the Can-Am circuit that year by Peter Revson. Dave Causey drove it to fourth place in the 1970 standings.

Any residue of skill they may have left clinging to the steering wheel dissipated, however, when the car vegetated two years in a garage in Sacramento.

"The guy bought it just for the aluminum Chevrolet engine," Raymond said. "We bought it from him sans plumbing and wiring. It's taken it a year to make it go".

"I think we've got our act together now," said Raymond, citing a first-place finish in a regional race at Sears Point Aug. 17, in which the car qualified first, started last and still won by a 31-second margin.

"The starter wouldn't work, and we had to be push-started, which meant dropping to the back of the field," said Raymond. "It was working fine the day before, and nobody touched it, so I can't figure out what happened. Must have been the 'race car fairy.' "

At the Nationals, as in most other races, Raymond will drive, and Semple will run the operation in the pits, take photographs, lead cheers, and "hope the car stays together."

Semple is also a licensed driver, however.

Semple, 41, is an independent real estate appraiser. Raymond, 42, is a loan officer for Fidelity Savings in San Rafael, which is sponsoring the car for the Sears Point race. Both men have been racing fans since childhood ("I got a car for my 16th birthday, immediately cracked the cylinder head, and I've been working with 'em ever since," Raymond said) but didn't become deeply involved until joining together six years ago.

They co-owned a Triumph and an Elva before the Lola (Raymond once owned a Triumph by himself), and never won, but consistently took home second and third-place hardware.

Along the way, Raymond also managed to become a director of the Sports Car Club of America's (SCCA) San Francisco Region for a one-year term two years ago, and he has been doing publicity regularly for the organization.

Raymond does most of the work on the Lola and Semple provides most of the money, both acknowledge. "It's not the sort of thing you do for a profit," Semple says, "but if we could finish in the top 10 in the two West Coast Can-Ams this year, we could show a profit."

In addition to the Sears Point race, which offers little prize money, the car is entered at Laguna Seca in early October and at Riverside later that month. It will be driven by professional Tony Settember of Penngrove, near Cotati.

The real motivation is not money, but the thrill of the chase, as Raymond so aptly noted. Besides, Can-Am vehicles are quite a bit better than locomotives on the curves.

HERZOG FIRED

Glum Rangers Whip A's, 10-8

Combined AP & UPI

ARLINGTON, Tex. — The Texas Rangers downed the Oakland A's 10-8 last night, but except for interim manager Del Wilber, no one in the clubhouse was smiling.

Wilber, who was managing the Rangers' AAA Spokane farm club to the Pacific Coast League championship 24 hours earlier, took over for the deposed Whitey Herzog only an hour before game time following a hastily-called press conference in which the Rangers' popular rookie manager was fired by owner Bob Short.

"I'm in a fog," said the 54-year-old Wilber, who had never managed a major-league game before. "I don't know if I'll be back in the dugout Saturday night or not. No one has told me anything beyond the fact that Whitey was fired and I was in the dugout tonight."

The Rangers have called a press conference for today at which time former Detroit manager Billy Martin is expected to be named as Herzog's successor.

Meanwhile, the Texas players were in a state of shock.

"I was stunned," said Texas second baseman Dave Nelson.

"I don't think anyone seriously thought of Whitey being fired. He had done a great job of putting together a ballclub. It took him all year and we didn't win as often as maybe people would have liked, but all of us learned a lot of baseball from him."

Shortstop Toby Harrah noted:

"I don't know what to say. I've never respected a man as much as I respected Herzog."

While the Rangers were losing a manager, the A's were losing a half-game of their all west lead. Jeff Burroughs' 25th homer, a 450-foot blast into the leftfield seats, triggered a six-run Texas fourth-inning splurge that was capped by Jim Spencer's run-scoring double.

The Rangers and A's continue their three-game series tonight with Texas' Charley Hudson scheduled to face Oakland's Ken Holtzman 20-11. By then the Rangers will probably have their third manager in less than 24 hours.

The A's announced yesterday the recall of infielders Manny Trillo and Rich McKinney and pitchers Glenn Abbott and Dave Hamilton from their Tucson farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

The four were scheduled to join the A's in Arlington last night in time for the game against the Texas Rangers.

Also added to the roster was infielder Phil Garner, who hit .289 with 73 runs batted in and 14 homers with Tucson.

the non-residents pay $5 extra per man. Thus, a team, which usually carries 17-18 on the roster, pays a $100 league fee — plus non-residents dues when applicable.

"We've had players from as far north as Ukiah," Dannenberg pointed out, "and as far south as San Jose."

He explained, "Many of the guys who play are former high school athletes. And this offers them a chance to continue." They compete in the spring league, April through July, and summer loop, July to September. Foul weather prohibits play in winter months.

Regardless of weather conditions, teams cannot practice on Albert Field. There are 700 games played there from April through September, plus 50-75 Little League tilts from April to June. "For these reasons," Dannenberg explained, "there is not time for softball teams to practice there. You just can't have it there."

What Dannenberg and Marin County do have is a recreational softball program that's a big hit.

Raider Veteran Clears Waivers

BUFFALO (UPI)—When the Oakland Raiders call on Buffalo tonight in their final 1973 exhibition test, they will be without one of their most familiar players.

Defensive end Ben Davidson will not be in uniform although the mustachioed veteran has cleared waivers and apparently is headed for the Raiders taxi squad. Davidson sat out last season with an injury.

The Raiders also won't suit up rookie tight end Kent Gaydos, who also cleared waivers.

The Raiders will bring a 3-1-1 exhibition mark in against the O.J. Simpson-led Bills, who are winless in five pre-season starts.

Boston's Babe Ruth unleashes pitch.

TIME MACHINE

Ruth, Red Sox In World Series Win

BOSTON — President Woodrow Wilson is assuring the nation in October, 1916 that the United States will not get involved in the European war.

Ominous headlines cast a shadow over his public optimism. They report that ships have been sunk off Nantucket by U-boats just fifty miles from here.

The war creeps closer to home but not close enough to stop a World Series from taking place.

This year, it's the Boston Red Sox squaring off with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

In Boston's three previous World Series appearances, they emerged the world champions.

The Dodgers have never been in this annual finale.

In a losing cause in the first game, a young Brooklyn outfielder named Casey Stengel has the distinction of being the first Dodger ever to score a run in World Series play.

Boston lefthander, Babe Ruth, is the starting pitcher for the Red Sox in the second game. He won 23 games during the regular season and led the American League with an earned run average of 1.75.

The Babe gives up an inside-the-park home run to Hi Meyer in the first inning. He helps his own effort on the mound in the third inning by batting in the tying run.

Ruth and Brooklyn's Sherry Smith battle each other for fourteen grueling innings. In the bottom of the 14th, with dusk rapidly turning to darkness, the Red Sox score another run and Ruth wins the game 2-1.

The Red Sox, with the aid of the hot bats of Duffy Lewis and Harry Hooper, go on to win the series in five games and are again the world champions of baseball.

The high points of this Series are the hitting of Brooklyn's Stengel and the sensational pitching of Boston's great left-hander, Babe Ruth.

Peacock Gap Has No Club Pro Today

Peacock Gap of San Rafael has no club pro today.

Longtime pro Harry Lawrence, who recently replaced Rob McQuade as club pro, Thursday was promoted to advisor by Nitto America Company Limited, the new owners of the course.

Stan Napora, pro shop manager since Aug. 15, retains his post.

Lawrence, eight-time club pro — a record in Marin County, will help select a new pro.

"We're going back to our old three-man setup, said Napora, referring to the club's golf hierarchy format used two and one-half years ago.

However, the new pro won't be selected immediately, "Because the new people are trying to get their feet on the ground. They're taking their time, and the want to do it right, Napora said yesterday about the new owners.

Napora believes "The new owners mean business. They've had architects out here already. They plan to lengthen the golf course." The course is currently 6,011 yards.

Masters, Mitchell Sign With Broncos

DENVER (UPI) —The Denver Broncos yesterday announced the signing of veterans Leroy Mitchell and Billy Masters. A spokesman also said veteran offensive tackle Rick Sharp cleared waivers.

Mitchell, a starting cornerback, is a six-year veteran from Texas Southern. Masters, who alternates at tight end with Riley Odoms, is a seven-year man from Louisana State.

ASTROS FALL, 9-6

Giants Only 4 Games Out Of First

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Shades of 1951?

Could be, the way the 1973 San Francisco Giants are playing these days.

Back in 1951, with Leo Durocher the manager and the club based in New York, the Giants could do no wrong coming down the stretch and they finally won the National League pennant in a dramatic playoff with the Dodgers.

This time the Giants are chasing two clubs. A week ago, 8 ½ games behind the Dodgers and 5 ½ behind the Cincinnati Reds, no one gave them a serious chance.

After winning seven straight games since then, including a come-from-behind 9-6 decision over Houston last night, the Giants today are only four games behind the now first-place Reds and 1 ½ behind the slumping Dodgers, and all of a sudden there is a real race in the NL West.

Last night's game was another one of those implausable ones. The Astros took a 4-1 lead in the second, widened it to 6-2 by the seventh and the Giants seemed out of it.

Then the electric scoreboard first flashed the word the Reds lost to Atlanta. A few minutes later, word came from Los Angeles that the Dodgers have dropped their eighth straight game to the Padres.

"When we saw that," said the 35-year-old Willie McCovey, "Everyone became excited. Guys started slapping each other on the back and saying things like 'we can do it, let's go.'

"I felt a little tired coming to the park for this game," added McCovey, "But you can't help getting excited when you realize you have a chance to gain on two clubs."

Bobby Bonds opened the seventh with a double and following doubles by Garry Maddox and McCovey made it 6-4. That finished starter Dave Roberts and in the eighth, the Giants went to work on reliever Ken Forsch, who walked the first three batters and left in favor of Jim Ray.

Ray got Bonds on a short fly but Tito Fuentes singled to score one run and leave the bases filled. Maddox followed with another single, scoring two runs for a 7-6 lead and when leftfielder Bob Watson threw poorly to third, Fuentes also scored with Maddox making it to third. Doug Rader juggled Watson's throw and then as Maddox raced home, Rader threw wild for another error and an insurance San Francisco run.

"These guys believe in themselves," said Giants Manager Charlie Fox. "There is no telling how far they can go when they feel like that. Sure, it's wonderful. I hope it never stops."

The Astros and Giants meet in single games today and tomorrow. The pitching matchups are James Rodney Richard (5-2) vs. Ron Bryant (21-9) and Jerry Reuss (15-10) vs. Jim Barr (11-14).

Meanwhile, the Giants announced yesterday the recall of 12 players from their minor league organization — all of whom are to report to the club next spring at Casa Grande, Ariz.

Recalled from the Phoenix Club in the Pacific Coast League were infielders Damaso Blanco and Jeff Mason, catcher Jake Brown and pitchers Frank Reberger, Gary Lavelle and Charlie Williams.

The Giants also purchased from Phoenix pitchers Clarence (Butch) Metzger, Frank Ricelli and Don Rose, while brought up from Amarillo of the Texas League were infielder Gene Cook and pitchers Wilfred Prall and John Sielicki.

es we already know. So if they have a known weakness, you go out and attack it. And if you don't know what to do, you play their backhand.

"I hit a flat first serve and when it's going in I usually do well. Even though I'm only 5-2, I don't buy all that stuff about small people not being able to serve well. Taller people do have an edge because of the angle. I'll concede that. But even my second serve, on which I use a lot of spin, is better than most of the girls' on the tour."

Rosie becomes incendiary when you talk about Bobby Riggs and his upcoming match against Billie Jean King in the Houston Astrodome on Sept. 20.

"Riggs is a pest," Miss Casals said. "He's also a loudmouth who has no business knocking women's tennis. Margaret Court should have beaten him and will the next time she plays him. And Billie Jean King will take him in three straight sets. In fact, I can tell you the scores. They'll be 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

"I hope she blows him off the court and I think she will if she starts hitting right through him. Riggs may have been great years ago. I saw some old film in which he looked pretty good. But he's not so hot now."

One Design Title Near For Wosser

Jake Wosser of Tiburon was in position to win the Internation One Design regatta today, even though he was in position for a collision yesterday.

Wosser, representing the San Francisco Yacht Club of Belvedere (the event's host), need only finish third in today's sixth and final race to eliminate any chance that he can be caught by challenger Bill Widnall of Marblehead, Mass.

Wosser and third-place contender Jim Davies of San Rafael had a port-to-starboaard collission 100 yards from the finish yesterday. Davies came in second but Wasser did not finish the race, won by Thornton Clark of Boston.

Widnall, who was fourth, protested Davies' finish, but the protest was disallowed.

Yesterday's finishes were the worst of the series for Wosser and Widnall, each bidding for an unprecedented third title, but the worst race may be thrown out in computing final point totals. Wosser has 5½ points to Widnall's 8½ and Davies' 10 on that basis under the reverse scoring system.

Hank Mettier of Belvedere was third yesterday and Eric Schou of Sausalito was fifth on the 11-mile course on San Francisco Bay near Berkeley and Richmond.

ABA Tabs Storen As Commissioner

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — The American Basketball Association, which changes commissioners about as often as it switches franchises, has made what it hopes is its last move towards gaining dynamic leadership.

The ABA yesterday officially named Mike Storen, a young energetic "alley fighter" who helped build the Indiana pacers and Kentucky Colonels into powerful teams, as its fourth commissioner. Storen, 37, succeeds Robert Carlson, who resigned to return to provate law practice. George Mikan and Jack Dolph preceded Carlson, with Jim Gardner serving for several months as an interim commissioner.

In naming Storen, the ABA thinks it has chosen another Al Davis, an action guy who will make things happen. Davis, the man who directs the fortunes of the Oakland Raiders of the National Football League, served a brief term as commissioner of the old American Football League and was one of the leaders in pushing through a merger between the two leagues.

Storen is cut from the same mold. He was responsible for getting the ABA an air of respectability by signing such bug name stars as Artis Gilmore, Mel Daniels, Roger Brown and Dan Issel, and he has earned a reputation as a fighter who will go to great lengths to get what he wants.

"I'm confident we can build the finest pro basketball league that exists," Storen said yesterday at a news conference. "There are a number of things we have to do. My most immediate goal is to provide leadership and straighten out the teams at the bottm."

said Georgia Athletic Director Joel Eaves, who is expected to recommend that McCarthy's top assistant, John Guthrie, be named head coach.

Track-Field

EDINBURGH, Scotland — East Germany's Olympic champion Ruth Fuchs smashed her own world javelin record in the Europa Championships yesterday with a throw of 216-feet, 10-inches.

The toss shattered her previous best — set last year — of 213-feet, 5-inches.

Golf

COLUMBUS, Ga. — John Schroeder yesterday fired a 65 for a two-stroke lead after the second round of the $100,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament.

DALLAS — Defending champion Jane Blalock yesterday carded a three-under-par 69 for the first round lead in the Dallas Civitan Women's Open golf tournament.

Football

SAN JOSE — A high school football player collapsed on the sideline after a pregame workout last night and died three hours later in a hospital here where doctors said he suffered a cardiac arrest.

Scott Smith, 17, a defensive back and flanker for San Jose Mitty High School, was stricken after a brief warmup prior to theWest Catholic League Jamboree at Buck Shaw Stadium at the University of Santa Clara in which six teams perform briefly as a preview of the upcoming season.

Evonne Vs. Margaret In Forest Hills

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Evonne Goolagong, who played the "Perils of Pauline" to get there, today faced Margaret Court in the finals of the U.S. Open championships at the West Side Tennis Culb.

The 22-year-old Evonne, the Wimbledon and French Open winner in 1971 but a distinct disappointment in her Forest Hills' debut last year, had to string five straight games together on yesterday to overcome West Germany's Helga Masthoff, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4, to the gasping delight of the crowd of 12,878.

Mrs. Court also had to go the full three sets before handing 18-year-old Chris Evert the most galling loss of her career.

For the third straight year, it was Chris' fate to lose in the semifinal of America's premier tennis event. This time, the score was 7-5, 2-6, 6-2. A year ago, the crowd-pleasing teenager had gone out to Kerry Melville, and in her glittering Cinderella year of 1971, it was Billie Jean King who sent her to the sidelines.

When either Miss Goolagong or Mrs. Court get the $25,000 check and the car that goes to the women's winner, the men's semifinals get underway.

Ken Rosewall, the astonishing 38-year-old who has yet to lose a set in these championships, faces fellow Aussie John Newcombe, and then America's lone hope for a title here, Stan Smith, meets the champion of the watered-down Wimbledon, Czechoslovakia's Jan Kodes.

Newcombe and Rosewall tuned up for their battle on yesterday by playing in the men's doubles final, where Rosewall, paired with Rod Laver, lost a fine match, 7-5, 2-6, 7-5, 7-5 to Newcombe and Owen Davidson. Prize money was $4,000 to the winning team, $2,000 to the losers.

Rosewall, who made his Forest Hills debut 21 years ago, is seeking his third title here, having won as an amateur in 1956, and then returning to capture his second crown 14 years later, defeating Tony Roche in four sets.

Newcombe won here in the last amateur event in 1967. He has had great and bitter clashes with Rosewall over the years. He beat Ken in a dramatic five-setter for the Wimbledon crown in 1970, but then fell to Kenny in the semis here the same year.

For Smith, today and tomorrow are his golden opportunity to emphatically underline his position as the world's No. 1 player. Miffed at the Open's seeding committee for designating Ilie Nastase as co-seed with him as No. 1 here, Stan watched Nastase go down in the second round to unseeded Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia.

Stan has had a relatively easy path with his sharpest match having come against a fireballing Roscoe Tanner in the third round. He dropped the first set at the break to Tanner, won the second set tie break and then raced home. His quarterfinal victory over New Zealand's Onny Parun was hardly more than a practice session.

Miss Evert stoutly insisted her third failure in the semis "was not frustrating. I just played three tough players (each year.) I played out of my mind when I beat Margaret at Wimbledon this year, but Margaret didn't play well at all in that macth."

Miss Goolagong, noted for going "walkabout" when she is ahead, did just that with a vengeance against Mrs. Masthoff. The six-foot German girl seemed to have her foe at her mercy, until the blazing five game run by Miss Goolagong.

LAST EXHIBITION

49ers Humbled By Rams—Again

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams beat the San Francisco 49ers 38-10 last night in their last pre-season game but that's not unusual.

The Rams now have a 13-6 lead in the pre-season series. The way they won before a crowd of 57,687 at Memorial Coliseum was rather unusual. The Rams went 2-3-1 in the pre-season, the 49ers were 4-3.

The Rams intercepted five 49er passes. Dave Elmendorf accounted for three and ran one back 72 yards for a touchdown. Isiah Robertson ran one back 30 yards for a score.

John Hadl threw two touchdown passes for the Rams—a 39-yarder to Harold Jackson and a four-yarder to Bob Klein. Tony Baker got the first Ram score on a one-yard smash at 6:31 in the first quarter. A 63-yard end run by Lawrence McCutcheon set this one up.

John Brodie threw a 25-yard TD pass to Ted Kawlick with eight seconds to go in the half. The Rams scored all their points in the first half. The 49ers got a 44-yard field goal from Bruce Gossett in the third period. David Ray contributed a nine-yard field goal to the Ram cause in the second period.

The 49ers got slapped with three 15-yard penalties for unsportsmanlike conduct — on Dave Wilcox, Cedrick Hardman, and Forrest Blue.

Hardman was called for roughing the passer in the second quarter. He threw his helmet on the field in disgust and was tagged for an additional penalty. As the crowd booed he was taken from the game by Coach Dick Nolan and kicked his helmet en route to the bench.

"As far as playing Hardman in the second half, I didn't because we don't need that kind of stuff out there—getting penalties against ourself," said Nolan.

"It has to be the worst first half the 49ers have ever played. Some individuals lost their poise but the team didn't. I'll have to look at the films before I decide who played badly and whether they will start against Miami in the league opener a week from Sunday."

The Miami game will be played at the Dolphins' home—the Orange Bowl. The Rams also open the regular season on the road against the Kansas City Chiefs.

"We put it together pretty well against the 49ers," said Ram Coach Chuck Knox. "Our defense has definitely improved, but we've still got a lot of work to do."

Knicks' Monroe Set For Ankle Operation

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)— Guard Earl Monroe of the New York Knicks will have surgery for removal of bone spurs in an injured ankle for the second time in the past year after an exaamination yesterday by orthopedic surgeon Dr. Don O'Donoghue.

Monroe, a six-year veteran, has been troubled by bone spurs and will be operated on as soon as possible but the exact time of the operation was not released. Monroe will be sidelined for eight weeks.

Younger Agrees to Tax Summary

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger has changed his mind and agreed to Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr's demand that he write a new ballot summary for the governor's tax limit initiative.

Brown yesterday reported that Younger has corrected the "most serious distortions" in the summary. Because of the action, Brown said, he has ordered the state printer to resume preparation of ballot pamphlets which will be mailed to voters for the special statewide election on the measure Nov. 6.

On Tuesday, the Democratic secretary of state—the state's chief election officer—ordered a halt to the pamphlet printing because he contended the ballot summary Younger had written contained "distortions and misleading statements."

Younger had declined to rewrite his official summary, saying it was "accurate and proper."

Brown said Younger's revised summary will allow California voters to "receive a ballot pamphlet which gives a reasonably accurate description of Gov. Reagan's tax initiative ..."

Brown said Younger "corrected" a statement in the original summary which contended the initiative would reduce 1973 income taxes by 20 per cent. Brown said that statement was "highly misleading" because a recently enacted law already reduced 1973 income taxes by at least 20 per cent and the initiative will not give any additional cuts this year.

The secretary of state said Younger also deleted a statement from the summary which indicated the initiative would "eliminate" income taxes. He said the new summary states "the initiative will reduce taxes in 1974 and subsequent years, which is a true statement, and makes no reference to anybody's taxes being eliminated."

Brown said the revised summary "is somewhat ambiguous but it is a vast improvement over the original version."

In another development on the initiative, backers of the measure yesterday accused Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post of violating the state elections code in his critical analysis of the tax plan.

Californians for Lower Taxes, the group promoting the initiative, made the charge in a letter to Brown. It urged Brown to direct Post to revise his cost analysis which will be part of the voters' pamphlet mailed to Californians.

It labeled as "distorted and inaccurate" Post's analysis which contended the initiative would lead to a $620 million slash in state spending next year and either reduced local services or higher property taxes.

In the letter, Richard Kazen, executive assistant of the initiative group, said Post violated the section of the elections code which prohibits the legislative analyst from basing cost analyses for ballot measures on "assumed future legislation."

Kazen said Post did such when he stated that passage of the initiative would make it "highly probable" that the state would have to reduce its aid to local governments, thus forcing local governments to cut spending or increase taxes.

Reagan's Signature Will Help Cheerleaders Lead Their Teams

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan tomorrow will sign a bill designed to put more zip in the names of four state universities and help out the school's cheerleaders, his office announced Friday.

The measure (SB381) by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, easily moved through the Legislature with its supporters arguing "there's no way to work out football yells" for the schools' current names.

The legislation affects campuses in San Diego, San Jose, Arcata and San Francisco. Currently, they are known as "California State University, San Diego (or San Jose, etc.)"

Alquist's bill will change their names to put the city first such as San Jose State University or San Francisco State University.

When Alquist introduced the bill last March, he said, "Who in their right mind would be stirred by a yell: C-S-U-commaS-J-rah."

The initials refer to the San Jose campus.

During debate on the bill, Senate President Pro Tem James R. Mills, D-San Diego, declared, "There's no way to work out football yells for the new names."

Mills is a graduate of San Diego State.

The 19 state college and state university campuses used to be known as California state colleges. But under 1972 legislation by former Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes, R-San Diego, fourteen have since been renamed California state universities.

Sen. Dennis E. Carpenter, R-Newport Beach, opposed Alquist's measure, complaining, "This is the kind of silliness that results from us making the change in the first place."

The San Diego and San Jose campuses were among the leading backers of the name change last year and also supported Alquist's bill to alter their names once again this year.

Reagan plans to sign the measure during a ceremony at Town and Country Center in San Diego, where the Republican state convention is being held.

A spokesman for the governor said the bill signing is being held in San Diego because one of the affected campuses is there and because Reagan will be attending the GOP convention in the city this weekend.

Alquist's office said the senator did not plan to attend the ceremonies.

More Help Thrown Into Fighting Timber Blaze

EUREKA (UPI) —Reinforcements were thrown in early today in a battle against a fire that has scorched 800 acres of timberland.

The California Division of Forestry said 324 men were now on the line in the rugged Finley Creek Area, about 50 miles south of here.

Air tankers bombed the flames with fire retardants yesterday but had little effect because winds reaching 35 miles per hour pushed the blaze along at a high speed.

The CDF last night announced containment of a 130-acre fire on a picturesque hillside in Big Basin State Park about 75 miles south of San Francisco. Some 150 firemen were on the scene for three and a half hours before they corraled the blaze.

The area is popular for hiking and camping, but officials said no one was reported to have been in the area at the start of the fire which a CDF spokesman said was deliberately set.

The two fires were the first major ones in the West since last month when more than 200,000 acres were burned in hundreds of fires in California, Oregon, Washington, Montana and Nevada.

Our reputation is on the line

– BELTONE HEARING AID SERVICE

We sincerely want to provide the best possible service to the hearing handicapped of this area. We ask, therefore, that you get in touch with us if you have a problem with a hearing aid—Beltone or any other make.

If you feel you are not getting full benefit from your aid, please bring it in to our offices and let us clean it and make any minor adjustments that may be needed. Often, that's all it takes to get a quality hearing aid back into good operating condition, and we're happy to do it without charge.

If you'd rather just sit down and talk about your hearing problem and some of the ways hearing problems can be helped today, we'll take the time to do it. And again, we'll do it without any charge whatsoever.

We strongly feel that every unsolved hearing problem—every unresolved complaint about a hearing aid could affect our reputation. We are jealous of that reputation and we know that if you are unhappy with the service you are receiving or with the hearing aid you have, word gets around. It eats away at our good name.

So if you have a problem with your hearing aid or the service you are receiving, please call or come in. We sincerely feel we can show you the better way to better hearing.

Teen-Ager Admits To Burglary

A Larkspur teen-ager yesterday admitted burglarizing a neighbor's home.

In exchange for his guilty plea, Patrick Alan Douglas, 19, was promised no more than 60 days in jail and two years' probation by Judge Charles Read Best of Marin Superior Court.

If he successfully completes probation, the offense will be reduced to a misdemeanor as part of the plea bargain. Douglas will be sentenced Tuesday.

Douglas is the second teen-ager to admit burglarizing the Sharon Anderson home on Piedmont Road May 14. Michael McPherson, 18, of San Rafael, drew a 30-day sentence from Judge Best on Aug. 20.

Douglas lives at 66 Piedmont Road, a few doors away from his victim.

Marin County—1800

"I sold our house myself. But I'd never try to do it again!"

"You know how it is. You hear you can save money if you sell your home yourself. Well, I tried it, and learned a painful lesson the hard way.

I ran an ad and before I knew it, my family's life was turned upside-down. Our phone rang at all hours and total strangers appeared at the door demanding to be shown through. Our flowers were trampled and one day, as we came home, people were sitting on our doorstep.

I thought I had the house sold, but problems of the escrow impounds, closing costs, title insurance, pre-payment penalty, termite work, eliminating deed encumbrances — delayed everything. (How can this stuff be so complicated!)

Then after all this, the buyer couldn't qualify for a loan. The house was finally sold, but while we were suffering by doing it ourselves, our neighbor's house across the street was sold for 15% more than ours. And it was essentially the same house! His sale was quick, smooth and professionally handled through a Realtor, who knew the true market value of the house. Sell your own home yourself? Take my advice and use a Realtor. You'll be glad you did."

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

MYSTERY CELEBRITY — Win a prize by guessing the name of today's famous person who was 81 years old on his last birthday (September 4th). See contest rules below.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO — ? A great man of music. But if you think it's Bach, Brahms or Beethoven, then try again with a more uo-to-date name, because this birthday celebrity is a great modern composer.

BORN in 1892 in an ancient village in Southern France, he showed musical talent as a child. He proved it as a student at the Paris Conservatory and later in public performances before he was 30.

FINDING it difficult to get original compositions played, he joined other young French musucians to give concerts of their own music. They called themselves The Six. It ultimately led to success. Today this French composer has given the world 12 symphonies, 10 operas, numerous ballets, chamber pieces and compositions for movies.

AMERICANS got to know him as a teacher. For 30 years he was on the music faculty at Mills College in Oakland. As a teacher he influenced the musical development of Burt Bacharach, Peter Rugolo and Dave Brubeck. Last year he retired to his home in France.

WHAT'S MY NAME? (Contest Rules): A birthday prize and 10 tickets to Frontier Village will be given the first person to identify today's celebrity. Send your name with your birthday, home address and phone number to: Gordon Greb, P.O. Box 6566, San Jose, Calif. 95150.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY (Sept. 9-15): SUNDAY — Alfred M. Landon, 86; MONDAY — Arnold Palmer, 44; TUESDAY — Hedy Lamarr, 58; WEDNESDAY — Frank McGee, 52; THURSDAY — Claudette Colbert, 68; FRIDAY — Gardner Dickinson, 46; SATURDAY — Jackie Cooper, 51; John Mitchell, 60.

USE TRUMP

West should have opened a trump. Instead he opened a club and East won with the king. East promptly returned a trump.

At first glance, the hand seemed easy. South could ruff two clubs in the dummy and could eventually give up a spade and a diamond.

DUMMY PROBLEM

Then declarer wondered how he would get out of dummy after he had ruffed a club. He would have to give up a spade or a dimaond to the opponents. They would then return another trump, and South would be unable to ruff any more clubs in the dummy.

Dummy had, after all, started with only three trumps. If the opponents took two trumps out of the dummy, declarer would be able to ruff only one club.

LONG SUIT

Resigning himself to this defense, South had to play for dummy's long suit.

Declarer won the second trick with the king of hearts and led his singleton spade. West took the queen of spades and led another trump.

WINS IN DUMMY

Declarer won in dummy with the ace of hearts, ruffed a spade, ruffed a club in dummy and ruffed another spade. Now he could draw the last trump, lead a diamond to dummy and ruff still another spade.

By this time, dummy's last spade was good. South could get to dummy once more with a diamond to cash the last spade. This was his tenth trick, and the contract was safe.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:

♠ - J
♥ - K Q J 7 5 3
♦ - 9 7 3
♣ - J 7 5.

ANSWER: Pass.

Change one of the small cards to an ace, and you'd have a minimum opening bid. You need more than a fairly good suit for an opening bid.

WEE PALS

Burglary Denied By Santa Rosan

A Santa Rosa man has denied burglarizing a San Anselmo record shop on Aug. 18.

A preliminary hearing for Bruce Allan Gavazza, 20, was set for Sept. 18 in Marin Municipal Court Wednesday by Judge David R. Baty.

Gavazza was arrested by San Anselmo police after a predawn chase through backyards near Red Hill Avenue. He had been found inside Family Records, 87 Red Hill Avenue, but fled when officers approached, according to police.

Board's Pay Raise And Related Items

Last May 25, a majority report of the Marin County Grand Jury recommended that county supervisors' salaries be increased from $1,100 to $1,400 per month — or from $13,200 to $16,800 per year.

Noting, however, that "some of the supervisors" expressed preference for having administrative aides rather than salary hikes, the grand jury recommended that any supervisor granted a "part-time administrative assistant" be given only a 5 per cent cost-of-living pay boost.

The supervisors, not surprisingly, accepted the grand jury's finding — and improved on it a little. They set their salaries in the 1973-74 budget at $1,400 per month, except for Gary T. Giacomini, who was the member preferring an administrative aide. Giacomini received a 5 per cent boost to make his salary $1,155 per month. And his campaign coordinator, Judy Ainsworth, was hired as his administrative assistant — not part-time, however, but full-time, with salary and fringe benefits totaling over $12,000 for the year.

The supervisors also raised pay and fringe benefits for their five secretaries. The result of all this was to increase the salary budget for supervisors and staff from $120,360 actually spent last fiscal year to $167,503 budgeted for the new fiscal year. That's an increase of $47,133, or almost 40 per cent.

(Incidentally, because passage of an ordinance was required to raise the salaries, the supervisors did not get their raises until August.)

Down in Santa Barbara County, things turned out differently, we noted from a recent news item.

County supervisors there were going to hike their own salaries, too, from $14,244 per year to $18,000 (keeping a little ahead of Marin). But Santa Barbara County supervisors do not vote final budget approval until August — a practice that was followed here also until recent years. And when the final showdown came, the board reversed itself by 3-to-2 vote and cancelled its proposed pay hike.

The news item said the vote brought a chorus of cheers from a large audience. That's not hard to understand.

Marin County supervisors haven't given us taxpayers much to cheer about lately.

MORE LIKE MARIN — On the other hand, Mayor Joseph L. Alioto of San Francisco recently added another publicist to his staff, an assistant to his "director of communications." (That, in case you've forgotten, was also the fancy title that Herbert G. Klein held at the White House until his resignation this summer.)

The new aide to Mayor Joe, who needs more publicity since he's seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, will be paid $9,568 per year. But Mayor Joe has a gimmick: the money will come from Federal Emergency Employment Act funds.

PHONE'S-EYE VIEW — Here is a small view of how bureaucracy works in Marin County:

Wishing to check on a matter which is within the purview of the county administrator, we called his office the other day, and without identifying ourselves as with the newspaper, asked to speak with John F. Barrows, the administrator, saying it would take only a minute.

The reply was that Barrows was working on the agenda for next week's meeting of the board of supervisors and could not be disturbed. His assistant, Michael Chrystal, likewise was working on the agenda and could not be disturbed. Nis No. 1 assistant, Thomas F. Campanella, was on vacation. So there was nobody available to answer our question.

We just thought you'd like to know.

"ALL OF THE PEOPLE" — We close with a quotation from a Christian Science Monitor editorial last month. The editorial was criticizing the secret bombing of Cambodia, but this paragraph applies equally to many other matters:

"People high up in government in Washington seem to forget whose government it is. After all, in the United States the people — not the people in authority, but all of the people — are sovereign. The people running the government are not special, and above the people. They are the servants of the people."

Yes, that is something that those high up in government too frequently seem to forget — and not only in Washington.

— BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Dirty Water

Editor Jack T. Pickett, writing in the California Farmer, recently stated: "Water is the most sweet, dirty, controversial, vital, political and hysterical substance in California."

We know he was thinking about other places when he wrote these words, but suddenly they apply to Marin. Water — that vital substance, the sustainer of life — has become a political football, a means to a debatable end, a subject of bitter controversy.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court for his ruling that the City of Sausalito must issue a permit for a four-lot subdivision which meets all city ordinance criteria. The growing practice of some city councilmen and planning commissioners of denying permits merely because they personally do not like what's planned is eroding the law. Judge Wilson's ruling may help put a stop to it.

BRICKBATS to all those responsible for tearing up the Marin Veterans Memorial Building parking lot on the eve of the county fair to install irrigation pipes. Not only do we now have to pay twice for surfacing the lot, but the timing could not have been worse.

A BOUQUET for the grave of M. Frank Donohue, longtime faithful public servant who died this week. He served his native Marin County as tax collector from 1930 to 1961 and as treasurer also for the last 10 of those years. He is remembered with affection by those who knew him then and since.

"Since there's nowhere else to go, let's start some constructive policies."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Letters for "What Our Readers Say" are welcomed. To be published, they must bear the writer's signature and address (only the city will be printed, but street or post office box address must be included.) Try to limit letters to 200 words. The editors reserve the right to cut long letters, or to reject any that may be libelous or in bad taste.

Well-Publicized Fair Now Part Of History

The 1973 Marin County Fair is now a matter of record and the success it enjoyed is due in great part to the support we received from your editors and staff.

It has been demonstrated once more that the fair is an important event for the Marin community, and while it may seem natural for your paper to provide coverage, your degree of interest is, to my knowledge, unmatched for any other county fair.

Bob Strebeigh, Jeff Greer, Barbara Hosmer, Don Keown, Andy Anderson, Jim Keane, Fred Arn, Joan Lisetor, Betty Frost, Ada Garfinkel — in fact, you entire editorial staff deserves tremendous credit for their significant and highly professional reporting of this year's fair.

Thank you so very much!

Congressman Mailliard And HAFB Commissary

Perhaps Congressman Mailliard is an ex-Navy officer and will benefit under one of those gold nugget laws, receiving a retirement through reserve participation and correspondent courses after age 60 entitling him to commissary privileges along with this pay, also free medical care. This may explain that comment a few days ago about the Navy opening up the commissary again at Hamilton Field. All this with the most generous pay and allowances the military will ever receive along with an early retirement!

However, one must admit at times that one can buy cheaper and obtain better medical care somewhere else.

On top of this we may be going for broke anyway, but I cannot understand why the Navy is moving in. Perhaps a military market survey shows it to be good location.

It would be interesting to know the cost of this government housing as that offered under the private citizen sector and tax base to worthy welfare recipients which may be that $20,000 or $30,000 house across the street.

We might add the congressman will receive this on top of his most generous other government retirement pay if it be true.

Yes, I agree with that written letter to the editor by an elderly pensioner: "How about a chance to buy there?"

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

A night watchman on duty in West Virginia fell asleep while his wife was talking to him on the telephone — and the lady called the cops.

Even night watchmen have to sleep sometime.

Nobody does so little talking as the fellow who's talking to his wife.

If wives called the cops every time husbands goofed off, police would get very little sleep.

The moral: Night watchmen whose wives telephone them at the office had better watch out.

Meet Fitzhugh Fitzgibbon, Hooked On Watergate Wallowing

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has said there are many people in this country who would rather wallow in Watergate than get on with the business of the country.

The only person I know who is really wallowing in Watergate is my friend Fitzhugh Fitzgibbon.

He told me the other day, "I've tried. God knows I've tried. But I just can't seem to get out of the wallow of Watergate."

It's that bad, huh?"

"IT'S TERRIBLE. I've tried to think of inflation, the cost of food, the energy crisis, but none of it gives me the pleasure that Watergate does. It's a terrible thing to admit, but I really enjoy Watergate, and I look forward to every new scandal it produces. I don't get that feeling when I read about pollution."

"But the President has said we have to keep this thing in perspective. We just can't get sidetracked by Watergate."

"He can't get sidetracked by Watergate, but I can. I tell you, its made my life. Some people like to read about Cambodia, the Middle East or the fall of the dollar But I can't wallow in those things. They just don't have the mud and slime that Watergate has produced. I could take a bath in it every day."

"Well, at least you're honest about it," I said. "Most people who wallow in Watergate won't admit it."

"DON'T GET ME wrong. I'm not a wallower by nature. But Watergate is something else again. You've got the corruption of the White House, the Justice Department, the FBI, the CIA, the indictment of a former attorney general and a former secretary of commerce and one of the great election frauds of all time. Now anyone who isn't wallowing in that just doesn't know how to enjoy himself."

"When did you first start wallowing in Watergate?"

"Probably after President Nixon announced he had just received new evidence involving members of his White House staff in the Watergate affair. I felt this warm surge come over me like nothing I had ever felt before. Then when the Sam Ervin hearings started and I watched the long parade of witnesses who all gave details on how the American people had been hoodwinked by the Committee for the Re-Election of the President, I found myself waist-deep in the mud. After Haldeman's and Ehrlichman's testimony, I was up to my neck. And now that there is a court fight over the President's tapes, I have to fight to keep my head above water."

"WHEN WILL YOU stop wallowing?" I asked him.

"When Martha Mitchell shuts up, when Charles Colson tells all he knows, when we get the true story on San Clemente, and when Vice President Agnew is cleared of all rumors about corruption in Maryland."

"Good grief, man," I said. "That could be forever."

"It's not my fault. I had nothing to do with Watergate, and if I want to wallow in it, that's my own affair."

"Even if the President of the United States asked you not to?"

"He can't just ask us not to wallow in Watergate. He has to give us something else to wallow in. But it has to be big. Americans are spoiled after wallowing in this for so long. Once you've wallowed in the Watergate swamp, you just can't get out and dry yourself off."

Remnants Of New Left Strive To Attain Unity

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The end of summer was not a good time for the radical movement "heavies" — those who, either through theatrics or their past daring, have become darlings of the media and identified in the public mind as the personification of the movement.

First, Elizabeth McCalister Berrigan, wife of former priest-activizt Philip Berrigan and one of the defendants in the Harrisburg kidnaping plot trial, was arrested for shoplifting in suburban Maryland.

Then, Abbie Hoffman, a founder of the Yippies and a defendant in the Chicago conspiracy trial that grew out of 1968 convention demonstrations, was arrested for alleged possession of a half million dollars worth of cocaine.

And Rennie Davis, a founder of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and one-time epitome of the radical movement leader and organizer, reappeared — promising peace through submission to a touring teen-aged Indian guru.

BUT AS THE HEAVIES fall aside, the remnants of what once was called the New Left — the nolonger-so-young people who were radicalized by the civil rights and antiwar movements — are struggling to pick up the pieces and keep alive their vision.

Their biggest problem is not government repression or even lack of money, but political factionalism and ideological feuding.

They have a hard time trying to be civil with one another, much less working together.

But recently some tentative steps have been toward a more co-ordinated if not unified left.

DAVID MCREYNOLDS, an influential former leader of the Socialist Party and now on the staff of the War Resisters League, announced that he was making the "symbolic but not quixotic" gesture of applying for membership in four radical groups — the Socialist Party, USA; the People's Party, the New American Movement and the Democratic Socialist Organizing Committee.

McReynolds said he was making the move "as one eager to speed the unity of forces, and as one willing to accept 'ideological impurity' as the necessary price of moving towards political power...."

Perhaps more important is the tentative talk of a merger of some groups on the "democratic left" — specifically the New American Movement (NAM) and the People's Party.

NAM was organized in 1971 out of the shattered SDS when the latter organization was taken over by the militant Weather People. The People's Party is a loose coalition of radical independent parties which ran Dr. Benjamin Spock for President in 1972.

Both organizations have similar critical analyses of American society, in particular the corporate capitalist economic structure, the racism and sexism both groups feel continues to dominate American society and both argue that democratic socialism means that government has to become decentralized with people taking control at the local level of the institutions that affect their lives.

AT ITS RECENT convention in DeKalb, Ill., NAM adopted a resolution affirming a "tentative but interested" approach to the "merger question."

The People's Party, at its national conference in Denver, also endorsed closer contacts between the two groups.

Local chapters of the two groups now will begin to talk politically on the local level. If they do achieve a "working" political framework, native American radicalism could be re-energized in a way the left has not seen since the early days of Students for a Democratic Society.

BIG THREE POWER PLAY

China, Russia Harvest Fruits Of U.S. Foreign Policy Initiative

By GEOFFREY GODSELL

The United States, the Soviet Union and China have been openly playing a triangular balance-of-power game for over a year now. It was a game largely initiated by the new foreign policy carefully and brilliantly initiated by the United States — and more precisely by the Nixon-Kissinger team in the White House.

But, ironically, as the fall of 1973 approaches, it is American rather than Soviet or Chinese foreign policy that finds itself in disarray.

THE CHINESE have just held their 10th Communist Party congress. The gathering endorsed the foreign policy pursued by Chairman Mao and Premier Chou En-lai for the past couple of years — a policy whose central themes are controlled detente with the United States and a more cooperative line with the rest of the world in all international forums.

Underlining the party's support for the new policy was the appointment to vacancies on the Politburo of men who have been involved in working out the new relationship with the United States, including the current heads of the Chinese liaison office in Washington.

The policy has born fruit for China: the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Indochina; U.S. abandonment of "two Chinas" policy and U.S. recognition of Taiwan as a legitimate part of China; U.S. willingness to do business with China; U.S. acquiescence in China's tacitly using its new relationship with Washington to offset the threatening shadow of the Soviet Union, and a remarkable swing in the American public back toward traditional American sympathetic interest in all things Chinese.

IN MOSCOW, the situation is not dissimilar. Back in April, Leonid Brezhnev, still basking in the triumph of President Nixon's visit to the Soviet Union the summer before and preparing for his own foray to the United States in June, got the seal of approval from the Soviet Communist Party's Central Committee for his foreign policy — based of course on detente (his version of it) with the United States.

There were changes in the Soviet Politburo, too, reflecting commitment to Mr. Brezhnev's foreign policy line. Dropped was Pytor Shelest, long considered a hardliner opposed to better relations with the United States, and promoted to Politburo membership was Andrei Gromyko, faithful executor of the Brezhnev line.

Like China, the Soviet Union has reaped a harvest already from the policy Mr. Brezhnev has been pursuing: U.S. recognition of the Soviet Union's right to parity (in fact parity plus) in nuclear missile-launchers; U.S. recognition of a division of Europe with all territory east of the Elbe a Soviet sphere of interest — a recognition withheld ever since Yalta; recognition of continued partition of Germany and of the Soviet right to lock East Germany into its sphere of influence, while conceding that East Germany is a soverign independent state; U.S. acquiescence in a European Security Conference aimed at putting Europe's seal on these divisions; and U.S. and West German willingness to explore ways of providing the Soviet Union with the technological know-how, credits, and advanced equipment that it sorely needs.

There also are the whopping grain purchases from the U.S. on favorable terms to make good the shortage that threatened hardship at home.

AND WHAT ABOUT the United States? President Nixon, happily and rightly, does have a broad consensus of support for what Secretary-of-State-designate Henry Kissinger has called the "important and . . . revolutionary changes" in American foreign policy since the Republicans took over in Washington in 1969.

Paraphrasing Mr. Kissinger: The foundations have been laid but what has been started "is still very tender."

People were all set, of course, once U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war was over, to see some kind of superstructure going up on those foundations — not only involving Moscow and Peking but embracing Europe and the Middle East.

Instead we have had a summer marking time — punctuated admittedly by Mr. Brezhnev's visit to the United States. Marking time, instead of more of the creative diplomacy that ended bipolar confrontation between the U.S. and the Soviet Union and introduced the flexibility of the triangular balance hinged on Washington, Moscow and Peking.

There should have been fruits for the United States beyond ending the agony in Vietnam, greater East-West trade, more firmly underwritten access right to West Berlin, and a SALT agreement.

Christians Caught In Between In Mideast Crisis

By BARRY JAMES

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Christians in the Holy Land are suffering from a deep-rooted identity crisis that has churchmen worried and poses problems for the Israeli govenment.

Church leaders say the Christians of the Holy Land — nearly all of whom are Palestinian Arabs—have been thrown between the anvil and the hammer in the Middle East conflict.

Elsewhere in the Middle East, Christians often fear the hostility of Islam. Here, churchmen say, the conflict has driven some Christians into a radical alliance with their Moslem neighbors.

One Protestant clergyman said such Christians feel the only way to be accepted as Arabs is to outdo the Moslems in nationalism and political extremism.

"It's the old Jewish problem in reverse," he said. "They feel they have to prove something, to be better than their neighbors."

Educated Christians, who have long formed the backbone of the Palestinian middle class, tend increasingly to seek a more promising and more neutral future in Europe, the United States and South America.

So many Christians are leaving that one churchman, Greek Catholic Archbishop Joseph M. Raya, a former parish priest in Birmingham, Ala., called the exodus "a distressing stampede without hope or joy." He and other churchmen fear the end of an effective Christian presence in the Holy Land if it continues.

"Unless there is an international statute to protect the Christian community ... there will be no Christians in Jerusalem within 20 years," a Roman Catholic priest said. "We shall have to bring in a force of ecclesiastical 'blue helmets' from Europe and the United States to look after our holy places."

The exodus is reinforced, many churchmen questioned by UPI said, by Israeli policies of rehousing Jewish families in and around Jerusalem at the expense of Arab inhabitants who are being evicted under special housing and security laws. Church welfare agencies estimated that about one quarter of the Arab population of old Jerusalem—5,000-6,000 persons—is in the process of being evicted to make way for Israelis and give access to the "Wailing Wall" — holy to Judaism.

The Roman Catholic community of Jerusalem alone reports a drop from 15,500 members in 1948 to 7,700 in 1967 and about 3,300 now. Other churches report similar declines.

Despite a generally high birth-rate among Arab Christian families, there are now by official Israeli estimate not many more than 110,000 Christians in the Holy Land—half as many as there were in 1948.

But Israeli officials said the Christian exodus is general throughout the Middle East and even more pronounced in Moslem countries. A foreign ministry spokesman said the government is sponsoring an independent survey of the phenomenon in various countries.

"It is the fault of the churches themselves that Arabs are leaving," one Israeli official said. "They trained the Arabs to be strangers in this land."

A Jesuit priest agreed. "We have not served the Arabs rightly nor have we properly understood them," he said. "In our Christian schools we taught them they were not Moslems, but we never taught them they are Arabs just the same.

"We gave them Gothic churches, we taught them about the grandeur of France or Britain, but we never instilled in them any patriotism for their own land."

The priest said Arab Christians are now gaining consciousness of their Arabness and are tending to unite with Moslems as rarely before. "They do not want to be separate from their own people, and they hold it against us that we have made them so," the priest said.

"The thing that really burns me up," a young Roman Catholic said, "is when Israeli police stop me for a security check and ask, 'Are you Arab or Christian?' What can you answer to a question like that?"

But according to an Israeli foreign ministry official, the Christians will never really be assimilated with the Moslem majority.

"At the moment, they are between the devil and the deep blue sea," he said. "With whom should they align themselves? With us? With Jordan? If they cooperate with Israel they run the risk of being considered quislings. And why should they like us? But as our presence here (in Jerusalem) becomes ratified with time, their difficulties will become less."

The official said the Israeli presence has brought a rise in living standards, but many of the Christians were relatively well off before the 1967 war, and this is not a factor that affects them as much as it does Moslem laborers who can readily find work on Israeli building sites.

"Moslems are improving their lot much faster and the Christians feel at a disadvantage," the foreign ministry official said.

"The future here is Jewish," a Roman Catholic priest said. "There is no future for the young Christian. The Palestinians are becoming a people without an elite. It is impossible for them to hold political views of their own."

Several churches are studying ways to encourage Christians to remain in the Holy Land.

"It is our major concern," a high-ranking Roman Catholic prelate said. "Places in Hebrew universities are limited for Arabs and the alternative for bright youths is to go abroad to study—perhaps to Cairo or Beirut where they are likely to fall into the hands of the Fedayeen and automatically exclude any possibility of return. Or they are tempted to stay away forever by higher living standards in America and Europe."

One of the most urgent needs, the prelate said, is for a Christian college of higher education that would assist such young people to put down roots here.

Whether the Israelis are to blame for the Christian decline is open to dispute. According to Jerusalem mayor Teddy Kolleck, "We do everything possible to encourage the Christian community not to diminish, but to preserve its importance."

Forces Against Abortion Are Gathering Strength

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Slowly gathering force across the country is a movement to reverse by constitutional amendment the U. S. Supreme Court's permissive stand on abortion.

Contrary to widely-held belief, the anti-abortion movement is not just a Catholic thing. Involved in it are many Protestants, Jews and secularists who believe that a fetus is a form of human life which deserves protection by the government.

It is a very long way at present from having sufficient strength to amend the constitution, a very difficult thing to do. But it may build enough steam by next year to compel members of Congress to take cognizance of an issue most of them would much prefer to ignore — especially in an election year.

Since women's liberation groups are militant supporters of abortion-on-demand, a congressman will find himself in the middle however he votes. If he supports an anti-abortion amendment, the feminists will go after his scalp. If he opposes it, the inter-faith "right to life" forces will try to help him qualify for retirement pay.

Eleven proposed constitutional amendments dealing with abortion have been introduced to date in the House and Senate. Their sponsors and cosponsors include 40 House embers and 8 senators.

Some of the proposed amendments would make it a federal crime to terminate the life of an unborn child except in the relatively rare cases when it is medically necessary to preserve the mother's life.

Others propose to toss the whole issue back to the states, allowing each state to pass whatever regulatory legislation it wishes on abortion.

If any amendment gets through, it almost certainly will be of the latter type. A congressman who supported such an amendment could tell outraged feminists he wasn't voting against abortion -he was voting for state's rights.

So far, none of the amendments has even reached the stage of committee hearings. In the House, all of the pending proposals are bottled up in a judiciary subcommittee headed by Rep. Donald Edwards, D-Calif., who says he has not detected much "congressional pressure" for action on the subject.

"If hearings are held, they are well down the road," Edwards told a reporter.

In the Senate, Judiciary Committee Chairman James Eastland, D-Miss., is one of the sponsors of an anti-abortion amendment. He plans to hold hearings on the proposals this fall or early next year.

The major group organizing support for a constitutional amendment is the National Right to Life Committee, which has headquarters in Washington.

Although strongly backed by the U. S. Catholic hierarchy, the "Right to Life" group is making a great effort to bring Protestants and Jews into prominent positions in the movement. It now has chapters in all 50 states.

Its activities at this stage consist mainly of "public education" — particularly through lectures and slide-shows graphically making the point that fetuses are human beings with a right to life.

The unifying belief of anti-abortion forces, according to law professor Charles E. Rice of Notre Dame University, is that abortion is a kind of legalized murder. Rice says the Supreme Court's laissez-faire ruling is based on "the same principle that underlay the Nazi extermination of Jews — namely, that an innocent human being may be defined as a 'non-person' and killed if his existence is inconvenient or uncomfortable to others."

Pro-abortion groups reply with equal fervor that a fetus is simply part of a woman's body prior to birth, and she has a right to dispose of it if she wishes without government interference.

It's an issue which does not lend itself to compromise, which is one reason so many congressmen are hoping it will quietly go away.

But that isn't going to happen. The question is not whether but when reluctant lawmakers will have to choose which side to alienate.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

A Fast Growing Religion

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

America's fastest-growing religious body seeks converts with a zeal fired by the conviction that the end of the world will come very soon, perhaps by 1975.

Its official name is the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, but its members are better known as Jehovah's Witnesses.

There are no "laymen"—and no inactive members—in this fired-up body of fervent believers. Each and every Witness is regarded (even by Selective Service) as a minister—and is expected to spend several hours a week in door-to-door canvassing, street-corner selling of Witness publications, or other proselytizing activities.

THE RESULT of this aggressive campaign for converts is seen in their phenomenal growth rate. Thirty years ago, there were only 85,000 Witnesses in the entire world. Today, there are at least 1,700,000—twenty times as many.

Jehovah's Witnesses are orderly, clean-living, well-behaved people who do not condone drinking, smoking, licentious sexual behavior or any form of frivolity.

They managed to irritate many people, and infuriate a few, because they are unabashed zealots.

The dictionary defines a zealot as one "fanatically committed" to certain beliefs. The beliefs to which Witnesses are committed—and which they refused to compromise even under severe persecution — include the following:

THEY ARE the only true Christians. All other "religious sects" are disguised "instruments of Satan" serving the powers of evil rather than the purposes of God.

Human history will soon come to a close with a titantic struggle between the forces of God and the forces of Satan, called "The Battle of Armageddon." (This term comes from the Biblical book of Revelations, which Witnesses read as a literal forecast of things to come).

When the battle is over (with God's side victorious, of course), wicked people (which is to say, all those who have not seen the light of Witness teaching) will be annihilated. Exactly 144,000 elite Witnesses will be received into Heaven to live with God. The rest of the Witnesses will remain here on earth, where they will spend an eternity of bliss.

WITNESSES REGARD all existing governments, whether Communist or capitalist, democracies or dictatorships, as part of Satan's earthly domain. That's why they refuse to pledge allegiance to any flag or serve in any country's armed forces. Their unyielding refusal of any patriotic gesture has often fetched them into court in America. In the young African country of Malawi, it has brought upon them savage persecution.

One of the tenets that frequently land them in American courts is their prohibition of blood transfusions. Their opposition to transfusions stems from their reading of Biblical admonitions against "eating blood." Doctors who find themselves unable to save the life of a dying child because Witness parents won't permit a transfusion often seek a court order to override parental objection. Courts generally grant such orders when they are requested.

BECAUSE THEY regard all governments as Satanic—and also because they figure the end is so near it is fruitless to both with such things — Jehovah's Witnesses do not vote. The only interest they take in current affairs, such as Watergate, fighting in Southeast Asia, or racial troubles, is to find in them corroboration of their belief that human society has been in its "last days" since 1914, and is now nearing its final debacle.

The main way in which Jehovah's Witnesses promulgate their doctrines—and also their chief source of income for support of full-time workers, who live very frugally—is street corner and door-to-door selling of their periodicals, "Watchtower" and "Awake". They sold ("placed" is the term they prefer) more than 218 million copies of these publications last year.

THEY ALSO "place" annually millions of copies of their version of the Bible, called "The New World Translation of the Holy Scriptures," which uses the name "Jehovah" rather than "God" or "The Lord" in every reference to the Deity.

"To distinguish himself from the many false gods, the true God has given himself a personal name," the Watchtower explains. "This sets him apart from all others. 'Is not "God" his name?' some may ask. No, for 'God' is merely a title, just as 'President,' 'King' and 'Judge' are titles. God's personal name is made known to us through his Word, the Bible, and that name is Jehovah."

THE WATCHTOWER acknowledges that "Jehovah" is an attempt at transliterating into English a name that appears in the orignal Hebrew of the Old Testament simply as the four consonants, "JHWH."

"In ancient times, the Hebrew language was written without vowels, the reader supplying the vowels as he read the words. So the problem is that today we have no way of knowing exactly which vowels the Hebrews used along with the consonants YHWH," Watchtower says. "Many scholars think the name was pronounced 'Yahweh,' but the form 'Jehovah' has been in use for many centuries and is most widely known."

THIS EXPLANATION, while in accord with the well-nigh universal verdict of modern Biblical scholarship, raises the question whether Witnesses themselves may not conceivably be guilty of the very offense which they charge against other religious bodies—namely, not calling God by his right name.

By the Watchtower's own admission, no one can be entirely sure today how that name was originally spelled and pronounced. And it certainly wasn't "Jehovah," since that is an English, not a Hebrew, word.

Presbyterian Church To Dedicate New Sanctuary

Following a one-year construction period, First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael will dedicate its new sanctuary tomorrow at 4 p.m. Special music by the combined choirs, the presentation of memorial gifts and greetings from special guests will highlight the time.

An old-fashioned ice cream social follows the dedication.

The structure was constructed by Christensen & Foster of Santa Rosa; primary architect was Hardison & Komatsu Associates of San Francisco; and Royston, Hanamoto & Assocs. of San Francisco, landscaping contractors.

The redwood structure will seat 400 worshippers, contains the historic stained-glass windows given in memory of Robert Dollar, R. Stanley Dollar and Harold Dollar, two fresco murals done by Lucienne and Stephen P. Dimitroff, a carved redwood Celtic cross executed by Jack Haehl and the fifteen rank Moller pipe organ. The ten cast bells taken from the original stone structure will be mounted in a special tower in the near future.

Landscaping has begun and regular worship services in the new building will begin Sunday, September 16.

Youth Orchestra

Sinfonia Marin, a new 20-piece youth orchestra directed by David Louis, will perform Mozart's Symphony No. 29 at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Community Congregational Church, 145 Rock Hill Drive, Tiburon.

Scholarship Day Slated At Church

The third annual scholarship day of the First Missionary Baptist Church, 501 Drake Avenue, Marin City, will be held at 3 p.m. tomorrow, according to Rev. E. Paul Perkins, pastor.

MUSIC REVIEW

'La Favorita'—Pavarotti's Night

By MARTIN FRICK

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco Opera began its 51st season last night with the first local production of a rather dull opera that nevertheless was brilliantly sung.

Gaetano Donizetti is reputed to have composed "La Favorita" in just a few days in order to get money to aid a Parisian friend. He borrowed much of the music and libretto from one of his earlier unperformed operas and had it translated into French. After it rapidly lost its popularity in Paris, it was retranslated into Italian, gaining and losing plot features in each transition.

Since this hodge-podge of a libretto seems to have thwarted truly inspired musical composition, particularly in the first acts, the opera needs fantastic voices to carry it off. Fortunately, last night's voices were just that.

Luciano Pavarotti, hailed by most critics as "the world's greatest living tenor," did everything to support that accolade from his first arioso "Vergin . . ." in Act I to the familiar virtuoso aria "Spirto gentil" and glorious final duet in the last act. As Fernando, a monk who falls for a woman he doesn't realize is the King's mistress (La Favorita is a euphemism) and turns soldier to earn her hand, Pavarotti effortessly pushed his voice through glittering falsetto and ringing forte passages. There wer few dry eyes in the white-tie crowd after the "Spirto gentil" aria.

Although it was clearly Pavarotti's show, "La Favorita" is highly regarded by mezzo-sopranos as one of the few bel canto operas that lets a mezzo be the prima donna. Maria Luisa Nave made her San Francisco debut as the King's "Favorite," Leonora. Her voice is full-bodied in the lowest registers and strong and steady on the high notes.

Her aria "O mio Fernando" was sung with intense feeling and with a minimum of bel canto ornamentation as she lamented her shameful state. The harp obbligato might have been humorous had Miss Nave not established herself into the aria so powerfully vocally and dramatically.

King Alfonso is the villain, but Donizetti gives him the most beautiful music to sing, and baritone Renato Bruson (also debuting here) did it full justice. The cantabile "Vien Leonora" is one of the only arias for baritone to be accompanied by flute, yet Bronson's rich, pure tones made the combination a perfectly natural one.

The third Italian making an impressive debut was Bonaldo Giaiotti as Fernando's Father Confessor (some versions of the libretto have him a nobleman and Fernando's natural father). Giaiotti's full bass was always a solid anchor of support in the ensembles which also included soprano Ariel Bybee and tenor James Atherton in important minor roles. The sensitive, beautiful singing of all the singers kept these largely unexciting ensembles from tedium.

Conductor Carlo Felice Cillario kept the orchestra and chorus under perhaps too much control. He tended to smooth over the references from Meyerbeer and French Grand Opera in Act I and those heroic glimpses of Verdi in the quartet in Act II. But this seemed to be part of the general interpretation of the state director, Parisian Paul-Emile Deiber, and his designers.

Robert Brand's rather dim lighting kept Ming Cho Lee's reverent, catacomb-inspired sets and Jane Greenwood's subdued Florentine costumes (abounding in the same magenta of the seats in the War Memorial Opera House) from taking away from the performers who alone provide the excitement.

Only the corps de ballet, performing at the end of Act One, failed to rise above the nondescript music it was given.

DRAMA REVIEW

Novato's 'Red Hot Lovers' Needs More Opening Sparkle

By GERALD GENESE

The Novato Community Theater's production of Neill Simon's, "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," got off to a shaky beginning last night.

Marred by opening night jitters and garbled dialogue, the first act was uncomfortable to watch.

The second and third acts were much better, due to the acting of Renie Clymer as Bobbi Michele, a psychotic night club singer who sleeps with her Nazi vocal coach, and Kathryn McLaughlin as Jeanette Fisher, a very depressed and very neurotic 45-year-old woman.

Does this sound like a comedy? Well it is, thanks to the writing skill of Neill Simon. Simon has an excellent ear for dialogue and is a master at placing middle-aged people in hilarious situations they cannot cope with.

"LAST OF THE RED HOT LOVERS" — A three-act play by Neill Simon. Directed by Jackie Proett of the Novato Community Theater. Produced by Vivienne Terry. Stage manager, Roland Brown; lighting, Loren Roberts; sound, Nick Carter; set design, Al Richter. The cast: Barney Cashman, Gene Vasco; Elaine Navazio, Elaine Bernardi; Bobbi Mitchell, Renie Clymer, and Jeanette Fisher, Kathryn McLaughlin.

"The Last of the Red Hot Lovers," tells of the exploits of Barney Cashman, played by Gene Vasco, a 45-year-old restaurant owner who is trying to have one last fling before senility sets in. His seductions are thwarted by his guilts about cheating on his wife, and the hang-ups of the three women he tries to seduce in his mother's apartment.

Vasco as Barney had some difficulties to contend with, including his initial nervousness. His second problem was Elaine Bernardi, as Elaine Navazio, the first woman he tries to seduce. Miss Bernardi, an extremely attractive woman, needs more experience in smaller parts before she attacks a major role. Vasco's final problem, which could be solved by Director Jackie Proett, is his constant movement throughout the play. When he is sitting down, Mr. Vasco gives a good performance.

The play does not really begin until Miss Clymer comes on stage. She is alive and energetic. Barney tries to seduce her and fails again. One of the funnier scenes in the play takes place in this act as Barney and Bobbi sit on a couch smoking a joint. It is Barney's first encounter with marijuana. The conversation that takes place between the actors is very funny and quite convincing.

As mentioned above, Kathryn McLaughlin does a nice job as Jeanette Fisher, the last woman in Barney's fling. Miss McLaughlin's characterization of the depressed neurotic is very clear and well defined. She has a well modulated voice which brings a nice stability to the final act.

The staging of the play could have been handled more imaginatively. The actors often appeared to be very uncomfortable and frequently moved around the stage with little motivation.

"Last of the Red Hot Lovers," will be performed today at 8:30 p.m. and Sept. 14-15, at the Novato Community House, 906 Machin Avenue, Novato.

Villagers Claim They Are Cholera Outbreak Targets

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — Angry villagers demonstrated near the home of a dead girl today, protesting unsanitary conditions which they said made them easy targets for cholera.

In Naples and elsewhere in Italy, magistrates investigated hygienic shortcomings blamed for a cholera outbreak which has claimed 18 lives in 12 days.

Health officials said the outbreak appeared to be receding but great caution was still needed.

Villagers in San Giorgio a Cremano, five and one-half miles from Naples, demonstrated for the second straight day outside the home of Raffaele Noviello, a 39- year-old mussel vendor who has been in hospital with cholera for the past four days.,

His 18-month-old daughter Francesca died yesterday, apparently of the same disease, and health officials ordered the rest of the family hospitalized for tests as a precaution.

Demonstrators complained of poor sanitation and lack of water and asked authorities to requisition better lodgings for them. Several of them spent the night in an empty school. Police stood by but did not intervene.

Police frogmen in Naples, Taranto and other Italian ports went on with the destruction of illegal but long-tolerated mussel beds off polluted beaches. Health authorities have blamed the cholera outbreak on tainted mussels, a staple food in many part of southern Italy.

Magistrates opened a criminal investigation in Naples to try to set the blame for the outbreak. Another magistrate in Rome investigated a citizen's complaint against poor sanitation and the mayors of Naples and other cities warned that persons dumping garbage in the streets faced up to six months in jail.

Burglary Admission Is Entered

A San Francisco woman admitted yesterday that she helped burglarize a Sausalito boutique May 9.

As part of a plea bargain in Marin Superior Court, a second felony count of possessing cocaine was dismissed against Alice Beatrice Darby, 22, and Judge Charles Read Best promised she will spend no more than six months in jail.

A San Francisco man, John Moissant, 26, is due to change his innocent plea Tuesday.

Sausalito police arrested the pair near the Open Thursday boutique on Bridgeway after finding a broken window and merchandise strewn in an alley.

Moissant also is charged with being a convicted felon in possession of a concealed weapon.

Marin City Law Policies Due Airing

Marin City law enforcement problems will be discussed at a special joint meeting of the Marin County Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency Tuesday at 9 a.m. at the authority office, 47 Paul Drive, Northgate Industrial Park.

Marin Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos will attend the meeting to discuss ways to better police protection in that community according to Wallace K. Shepherd, director of the agencies.

Auburn Post Is Taken By Ex-Mill Valley Principal

David W. Erskine, a controversial administrator and former principal in the Mill Valley School district, has quit his job to become a grade school principal in Auburn, Placer County.

Mill Valley Supt. Peter G. Palches said yesterday that Erskine resigned in August and left for Auburn. Palches said he will ask the school district board to approve the resignation at a board meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at the Mill Valley Middle School.

Erskine, 48, was hired by the district in 1967 as principal of Old Mill School where his innovative teaching methods led to his transfer in 1972 to Marin Terrace School, where he was also principal. Another controversy over his educational experiments led to his removal from that job last spring.

He then became an administrative assistant to former Supt. James A. Collins at a salary of $19.150 per year.

In the Auburn Elementary School District, Erskine is serving as principal of Lincoln Way School.

The average classroom teacher is 37 years old and has taught for 11 years, says the National Education Association.

Preliminary Hearing Set In Slug Case

A preliminary hearing for a Santa Venetia man accused of slugging a police officer has been set for Sept. 18 in Marin Municipal Court.

Adam Nicholas Mikolon, 43, of 319 North San Pedro Road, has pleaded innocent to the felony charge.

San Rafael police, called to quell a brawl at the Villa Rafael Tavern in San Rafael on Aug. 22, discovered an $86 traffic warrant against Mikolon.

When they tried to arrest him, Mikolon allegedly slugged officer Ted Lindquist.

TURNED INTO A COLLEGE

Busy employees stock book shelves as they turn a classroom at Pacheco Elementary School in Novato into a college library. The school will serve as temporary headquarters for the new Indian Valley College which is holding classes for the first time this year. Helping with the transformation are (left to right) Robert Becklund, Marie Hummel and Barbara Fouts.

AEC Chief Defends Nuclear Plant Rules

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dr. Dixie Lee Ray, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, yesterday defended AEC guidelines for construction of new nuclear plants but said that most informed scientists believe the requirements are too conservative.

"There is no such thing as free ride through life," she said, referring to the dangers in the use of nuclear power.

Many of the questions at a press conference centered on two Columbia River Basin power plants which the AEC has been operating for nearly 30 years on the Hanford Atomic Reservation near Richland.

The controversy over these plants followed a series of Los Angeles Times stories which contended the AEC was concealing the fact that the environment around the river was being polluted with radioactive wastes from the plants.

Plant waste has been stored in large tanks for the last 30 years, although the tanks were designed as an interim measure, Dr. Ray said. Over the years of those two plants there have been 16 leaks, she said, but the total radioactivity in the area is lower than natural background levels.

"In 30 years time, we have quite different attitudes toward atomic waste disposal," she said.

Dr. Ray said the AEC now is attempting to evaporate the liquid from the wastes, converting the radioactive material to solid cakes, which can be stored with far less danger of leakage.

She said environmental requirements, particularly impact statements, are slowing down the AEC but are justified.

Although these impact statements cover possible hijacking of radioactive materials, she said new regulations are being implemented to head off hijacking.

Asked what the agency can do to alleviate the energy crisis in the near future, particularly the heating oil shortage some have predicted for the winter, Dr. Ray said, "The problems have been a long time coming and will be a long time being redressed."

She said that by the year 2000 she expects nulear plants to be generating 50 to 60 per cent of the nation's electricity.

Mailboxes Knocked Off Posts

Marin sheriff's deputies are looking for a mysterious band of night raiders who specialize in knocking mailboxes off posts.

They struck nine times Tuesday night — eight times in Kentfield and once just outside Fairfax.

In all but one case, the marauders used a heavy instrument such as a sledgehammer, to knock the boxes to the ground. Damage to each box was between $15 and $25.

Carole Berg, of 20 Quisisana Drive, Kentfield, told deputies she saw three youths help themselves to a new mailbox and a discarded one in her front yard at 11:50 p.m. Tuesday, then drive off in a white and gold car.

Later that night, reports of mailbox vandalism began pouring in.

Paintings Display

Paintings of Australia and New Zealand by Belvedere artist Jim Reynolds, Belvedere are on display this month at the Belvedere-Tiburon branch of the Marin County Library on Beach Road, Belvedere.

Use Permit Policy Is Revamped

A plan to streamline review of conditional use permit applications has been approved by the Sausalito Planning Commission.

Commissioners agreed Wednesday that applications first will be reviewed by the planning commission, then will be sent to the community appearances advisory board for consideration.

The measure is intended to prevent unnecessary review and duplication of effort by the advisory board, according to Herb Case, planning director. Currently, applications first go to the appearances board.

Commissioners set Sept. 19 for a public hearing on a proposal to make all projects requiring an environmental impact report conditional uses and subject to planning commission review.

Firemen To Hold Awards Banquet

Tiburon volunteer firemen have decided to hold an awards banquet for retired volunteers.

According to Capt. Thomas W. Murphy, president of the group, no date was set for the event.

Murphy said that the volunteers have also decided to spend $150 in recent donations to the group on new safety clothing for firemen.

Permission For Docks Is Sought

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two owners of property on Strawberry Point have applied to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for permission to build floating docks in Richardson Bay.

S.J. Hendricks of Strawberry Drive has submitted plans for a 58-foot-long floating dock which would require dredging of 450 cubic yards of bay mud.

Charles Beltz of 325 East Strawberry Drive has proposed a 54-foot dock, two piles and a launch ramp.

Both docks would serve residents and are located near the end of Island Drive on Strawberry Drive.

Objections to the proposals must be submitted in writing to the Army Corps of Engineers 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco by Oct. 5.

Two five-day stop-smoking clinics have been scheduled for this month by the Seventh-day Adventist churches of Marin.

One clinic, Sept. 16-20, will be held at the Better Living Center, 75 Park Road, Fairfax. The other is set for Sept. 17-21 in room 25 of Novato High School. Both will be held daily at 7:30 p.m.

Reservations and more information may be obtained from Pastor Harold M. Keehnel, 327 DuBois Street, San Rafael.

Redevelopment Plan Session Rescheduled

A public hearing on proposed amendments to the Corte Madera Redevelopment Plan, canceled Monday due to a lack of quorum of town council, has been rescheduled for Sept. 17 at 7:30 p.m. in Town hall.

Burglary Prevention Project Opener Set

Special community service officers, working with local police departments, will begin inspecting homes and businesses in parts of Marin Tuesday in a new burglary prevention program.

Called "Project 459," the three-year program is being funded the first year by a $42,000 grant from the California Council on Criminal Justice, according to Sausalito Police Chief James D. Wright, its coordinator. (459 is the penal code number for burglary).

Four service officers, aged 18 to 26, will check homes and commercial establishments for proper night lighting, locks and shrubbery obscuring windows and doors, Wright said.

Following the inspection, they will give the homeowner or businessman suggestions for preventing break-ins. Wright cautioned residents against allowing anyone to inspect their homes without proper police identification.

Spot inspections will e carried out during the year in San Rafael, San Anselmo, Fairfax, Larkspur, Corte Madera, Belvedere, Tiburon and unincorporated areas in central Marin.

Law enforcement agencies in areas not covered by the program will keep close watch in their areas to see if burglaries increase during the crackdown in other cities.

Officers also will speak to community groups, urging neighbors to watch each other's homes.

A Prediction

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Sen. Howard Baker, Republican vice chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, said yester-day there "will be ample embarrassment" for both Republicans and Democrats in the next phase of the committee's hearings.

Barrage of Economic Moves Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration announced a barrage of economic moves yesterday, and this is what they mean to the American consumer:

Beef prices are going up, but economists don't know how high.

Car prices are going up, but not as much as auto makers said they wanted.

Many gasoline stations around the country will be lowering their prices about a penny a gallon, beginning today. Some may close because of a profit squeeze. (See another story, page 1.)

The Cost of Living Council (CLC) ordered the freeze on beef prices removed at midnight Sunday—two days ahead of schedule—replacing it with flexible price ceilings. Beef dealers will be allowed to pass on their increased costs to the public, but must also pass on savings if their costs go down.

Since cattle prices are up, retail beef prices are expected to rise. But Don Paarlberg, the Agriculture Department's chief economist, said the rise may be a limited one. He said one limiting factor may be simple reluctance of housewives to buy high priced meat.

Prices of other foods did rise sharply after last July 18, when the administration took identical action with respect to them.

John T. Dunlop, director of CLC, said the reason for taking the beef action two days earlier than planned was to prevent a possible sudden beef shortage. Cattlemen had been keeping animals off the market to await the higher prices.

The council told the four biggest auto makers they could not increase prices of 1974 cars and trucks as much as they planned. It allowed Ford a $74 per vehicle increase instead of $106 which it planned; General Motors, $73 instead of $102; Chrysler, $51 instead of $70; and American, $55 instead of $61.

These were increases the companies said they needed to cover the cost of new, government-required safety equipment. Yet to be decided are auto industry requests for price increases based on higher general costs such as materials and labor.

The Most American Of All Of The Dances

ON THE GREEN of the Marin Art and Garden Center at Ross, Oscar and Marge Montgomery, director and first lady of District 8, Northern California Square Dance Association, and Allen and Louise Conroy, two of Marin County's senior and most enthusiastic square dancers, practice the forward-up-and-back maneuver, performed facing two other couples. Sunday, starting at 2 p.m., hundreds of square dancers will be promenading out-of-doors as the Marin and Southern Sonoma dancers stage a festival at the Northgate Shopping Center's Fashion Mall that will kick off the National Square Dance Week observance locally.

By DON KEOWN

The coming week will be National Square Dance Week in these United States.

And while they may not be an occasion to cause you to don a paperhat and shoot off firecrackers, it is an important event to the well over 500 couples in Marin County who "do-sa-do" and "promenade" regularly.

For one thing, it's an opportunity for them to call attention to their favorite recreation.

For another, it's a chance to give added impetus to the movement to have square dancing officially designated as America's national dance.

PENDING IN Congress is House of Representatives Resolution 555 that would so name the dance. Square dancers across the country have made the adoption of the resolution their goal prior to the American bicentennial celebration in 1976. And locally, member clubs making up District 8 of the Northern California Square Dance Association have been in the forefront of the push.

"We have been working for letters from individuals on behalf of the resolution, figuring these are much more effective than form letters or group petitions," says Oscar Montgomery of Novato, who with his wife Marge serve as the directors of District 8. Their territory includes Sonoma as well as Marin County clubs and is one of 10 districts in the association.

Montgomery, a tall, erect middle-aged business man who resides in Novato and owns the Montgomery Tire Service in San Rafael, asks the assistance of non-association members, even non-dancers, in writing Congress on behalf of Resolution 555.

"YOU DON'T HAVE to be a square dancer to be aware of the historic importance of the recreation in America," he says. "Everywhere you go, around the globe, you now find square dancing. There are clubs from Saudi Arabia to Japan. But it was always brought there by Americans. And it is always referred to as American dancing.

"In short, it is our folk dance. And it should be our national dance."

Oscar and Marge Montgomery work as district directors under the leadership of Northern California Square Dance Association presidents Jerry and Dorothy Kent of Santa Rosa. The two assistant directors of District 8, Jack and Corinne Neiger, are also Novato residents.

In Marin County, six clubs are affiliated with the association, with Novato home base for three of them, but with the 1,000-plus members coming from throughout and sometimes beyond the county.

CO-CLAIMANTS TO the title of oldest continuing clubs in the Marin sector of the district are the Novato Squares and the Cornhuskers, dating back 21 years.

The Squares are the county's largest club with more than 125 couples. Leroy Jones of 9 Plaza Loma, Novato, is the president, and the Squares hold their work nights on Thursdays at the IDESI Hall, Novato.

The Cornhuskers are headed by John Gates of 5 Privateer Drive, Corte Madera, and gather for work nights on Fridays at the Masonic Hall in Larkspur.

The Stump Jumpers can also trace a long lineage. While they have functioned under their present name since 1956, most of the original members came from an earlier and still older group called the Country Mixers, and thus they go further back in the county's square dancing history.

TONY SEGURA of 45 Juanita Court, Novato, is the president of the Stump Jumpers who meet Wednesdays, also in the IDESI Hall, Novato.

Derek Stone, 1635 Vendola Drive, San Rafael, heads the Buzzin' Boots who hold work nights on Fridays at Santa Margarita School, Terra Linda.

The Squaws and Paws, led by Ed Dearduff, 2325 Dominic, Novato, meet Wednesdays in the Lu Sutton School in Novato.

And the sixth club, the Huffs 'n Puffs, with Larry Williams of 95 Sierra Vista, Novato, as their president, use the Bernard Hoffman School on Thursdays for their work nights. In each instance, wives share leadership responsibilities with the husbands.

THE SQUARES are the home club of District Directors Oscar and Marge Montgomery, and the Boots claim the allegiance of Assistant Directors Jack and Corinne Neiger.

Work nights are the more serious affairs at which the dancers gather to perfect their dancing and to master new dances. Saturdays, on the other hand, are given over totally to fun, with the clubs taking turns hosting party nights, attended by dancers from all the groups.

Tomorrow the clubs all come together to kick off National Square Dancing Week with an outdoor dance on the Northgate Fashion Mall at the big San Rafael shopping center, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Callers from all the clubs will take turns chanting and singing the directions: "You swing her once and swing her again, then promenade the ring . . ." to the Nashville sound in music.

DANCERS FROM two Southern Sonoma County clubs, the Adobe Squares of Petaluma, president Ray Wester, and the Question Marks of Cotati, president Harry Anderson, are expected to join in the fun.

They, too, are part of the southern half of District 8, presided over by the Montgomerys.

Similar events, many of these also outdoors at major shopping centers, will be staged during National Square Dance Week by other districts of the Northern California Square Dancers Association, which covers Bay Area counties from San Mateo north to Mendocino and parts of Lake counties.

"You don't have to be a square dancer to be aware of the historic importance of the recreation to America," says Oscar Montgomery. "Anywhere you go, around the globe, you find square dancing. And it is always referred to as American dancing."

MANY OF THE clubs, including several in District 8, will be starting new beginner classes as part of their National Square Dance Week observance. It is to these classes the square dancers look for new blood and continued vigor.

There are also square dancers outside the fold of the Northern California Square Dance Association, such as the membership of the unaffiliated Mill Wheelers, who met on the second and fourth Thursdays at the Alamonte Hall in Mill Valley. And the private Mod Squad of Novato, composed of advanced dancers. City recreation departments and service agencies have also trained Marinites in the intricacies of square dancing through the years.

KEY MAN WITH any club is its caller. And Marin and Southern Sonoma are blessed with some special talents, veterans like Jack Olds, Dave Milano, Harry Whitlock and Harold Pope.

Olds, Milano and Whitlock will join with Keith Gylfe and possibly Tom Wal-

A Community Service Offers Help And Hope To Those In Deep Debt

Here in affluent Marin County, fully 10 per cent of the families are plagued by serious budget problems, many behind in their utility bills and some even considering the drastic step of bankruptcy.

So estimates Fred S. Perley, who is in a position to know. As manager of Consumer Credit Counselors of Marin County, he meets many of these troubled Marinites and helps them ease their economic plight.

Consumers Credit Counselors of Marin is a non-profit community service agency "whose purpose it is to help individuals and families out of temporary financial difficulties."

It is sponsored and supported by banks, finance companies, department stores, oil companies, credit unions, credit associations and others interested in the health of the consumer credit system.

FROM THESE sponsors comes approximately three-fourth of the funding of Consumer Credit Counselors of Marin County. And from them, too, comes the membership of an advisory committee set up to guide the agency.

The Marin offices are maintained on the mezzanine floor of the Crocker National Bank at Fourth and B Streets, San Rafael. The space is contributed by the bank, one of the credit programs' sponsors, for $1 a year.

The Marin office is one of many Consumer Credit Counselors units in the United States in a national program begun in the East approximately 10 years ago, with the J. C. Penney Co. as the major instigator.

There are now offices in almost every state in the Union, and in Canada. And the Marin office is one of 13 in California.

THE MARIN program was initiated less than a year ago by the already established San Francisco office.

It began then with Perley as its manager and with an answering service. Today Perley has a part-time secretary, Chris Jennings.

Perley, a Greenbrae resident, at the time was retired, after 25 years in public relations with the Union Pacific railroad and with Blue Shield. Consumer Credit Counselors was looking for some one with a business background and with experience in contacts with the public to head up the proposed Marin office. And Perley, along with his public relations work, also had been involved in the business world, prior to his retirement.

AS FOR PERLEY, he says that his decision to abandon retirement and return to work was necessitated by "the rising costs of living, and the rising taxes on my home. It was just that simple."

The Marin office really began, he says, as something of an experiment, to determine if there was really a need for its services in an area this small and supposedly so well endowed financially.

The answer was not long in forthcoming.

In its first seven months the office in the Crocker Bank building helped 75 families to draft and commit themselves to plans that would permit them to confront and whittle away at an indebtedness total of something like a half million dollars. Under those plans, approximately $10,000 a month is going in negotiated payments to creditors who might otherwise have received nothing, or who might very well have forced the debtors into bankruptcy.

The Singing Breadman Quits His Route

MARIN LIVING

By DON KEOWN

Terry Ryan, once Marin County's singing breadman, is a full-time singer now, earning "bread."

After 10 years of driving a delivery truck, first for Kilpatrick's and then for Wonder bakeries, Ryan quit the trucks and bread business two years ago to concentrate upon a career in music.

It's a busy career as he appears seven nights a week in Bay Area clubs as a country and western vocalist and as something of a one-man band. And his first record, a single, "Party Girl," his own composition, is being heard more and more on radio.

RYAN, A HUSKY six-footer weighing well over the 200-pound mark, smiles: "A lot of my old customers, the retailers and restaurant people to whom I used to deliver bread, still recognize and refer to me as the singing breadman. They remember how I used to make up little ditties and sing them as I counted out the loaves."

Some knew and some didn't that in the evening hours Ryan was a performer before larger audiences, appearing as a single, and as a featured vocalist and bass player with bands and combos, in the major hotels and nightspots of the area.

It was in 1971 that Ryan decided to really get serious about his music. "It was coming along, and I made up my mind to give it everything I had. So I quit the bread route, and gave my full attention to my music."

ALONG WITH BEING a performer, Ryan is also a songwriter with 15 to 20 songs to his credit.

Those songs, he says, come out of his own experience. And it has been a varied, much-traveled experience.

Born in Reno, Nev., 33 years ago, he is the son of an itinerant worker who was constantly on the go, seeking jobs in the fields or wherever work might be found.

"That meant my childhood was pretty typical of that of the migrant farm worker kids — three or four schools in a year, and there were times when we had no place to live but in the barn."

TERRY WAS ALSO exposed early to the hillbilly music that his father and friends loved and sang.

"I remember them singing 'Your Cheating Heart' and the like when I was a little tyke," he says. And quite early, Terry was singing such songs himself. "I was always something of a ham. I would stand up on a stool and sing for the grown-ups." He wrote his first poem in the fourth grade, and he can still recite it today.

"I've been told that there is a little bit of Elvis, a little bit of Jim Reeves and a little bit of Eddy Arnold in my voice," says Terry Ryan. "I consider that a pretty good blend. Although I like to think there is also a lot of Terry Ryan in it."

One of the family's longest stays in one spot was in the isolation of the Nevada desert "90 miles from school or the nearest town" while his father worked for nearly a year as a tungsten miner.

"THERE WASN'T anything out there, so the miners and their families had to provide their own entertainment," Terry says. "There was a lot of playing and singing." Terry did his share.

With manhood, young Ryan entered service and spent from 1956 to 1958 in the U.S. Navy, working as an airplane mechanic.

His duty completed, he took up the kind of itinerant life his father had lived, traveling the length and breadth of the country, and working at a wide assortment of jobs, "everything from milking cows to picking peaches to doing road construction," he says.

It was also a time when he was meeting people "and seeing a lot of life" — picking up the experiences and background that were to serve him well in his songwriting.

FOR A PERIOD of six months he settled down to tractor driving and other ranch work at Fresno, then hit the road again.

In San Francisco he was married, and he and his wife used to come to Marin County from time to time. "After the city, it was heaven over here," he says. "So we told ourselves we would have to live in Marin. And we moved out to Forest Knolls."

That first marriage ended in divorce.

While in the Navy, Ryan had learned the rudiments of playing the guitar. Until then he had played only the harmonica. And along with his bread truck job, music began to play a more and more important role in his life.

HE PLAYED AND sang with the Sal Carson band in such places as the Fairmount, Claremont, St. Francis and Jack Tarr hotels and Harvey's at Lake Tahoe. With the Carson orchestra his singing was most often the standard pop hits such as "Strangers in the Night" and "Embraceable You."

He played with a smaller group, and when asked their name the singing breadman would quip: "Terry Ryan and the Bread Crumbs." The group is now the Bay Cities Express, headed by Nick McKinley.

Part of Ryan's decision to devote full-time to music involved taking some instruction. He took lessons in the guitar from Frank Haggerty, and in the guitar, clarinet, saxaphone and bass from Doug Karr, as he began to take on the scope of a one-man band.

MY BIGGEST BREAK was when I took voice lessons from Judy Davis in Oakland," he says. "She had worked with the Kingston Trio, with Peter, Paul and Mary, and with many other name acts. I found I hadn't been breathing or phrasing properly. Everything I am as a singer, I owe to her."

Another piece of good fortune for Ryan came when Pete and Doris Lind, as proprietors of Shipwreck Pete's at the Sportsman's Lodge just north of Novato on Highway 101, urged him to take on an engagement there as a single.

More than two years later, Ryan is still performing at Shipwreck Pete's, on Sunday and Monday nights. The other five nights of the week sees him entertaining at the Wharf Rat Tavern on San Francisco's waterfront, two nights as a solo act, one night as a duo with female drummer Mimi Gina and two nights with a trio.

RYAN IS BACK basically to his first love of the old country and western music, plus his own rural-flavored tunes. But he sometimes mixes in some of the popular songs he sang with the Carson band." "If you like music, you like all kinds of songs," he says. "But country tunes are my favorites."

His voice is a resonant baritone, virile and stirring. "I've been told that there is a little bit of Elvis, a little bit of Jim Reeves and a little bit of Eddy Arnold in my voice," he smiles. "I consider that a pretty good blend. Although I like to think there is also a lot of Terry Ryan in it."

For a time, Ryan had his own radio show over KSAY from Shipwreck Pete's.

He has appeared, too, on television.

BUT RIGHT NOW a major interest is his recording. Radio station KSAY and its disc jockeys Woody Woodward and Ray Martin have been giving new talent a break," Ryan says.

Terry's "Party Girl" lyrics deal with the plight of an unhappy working man married to a fickle and flighty wife: "You're just a little party girl/ Who likes to have a ball. / You don't care about the one it hurts —/ It doesn't bother you at all . . ."

On the flip side is another Terry Ryan song, "If Only for Today."

"I wrote it while driving the bread route," he says.

THE RECORD HAS already gained a spot on KSAY's survey top 50 country songs.

A San Jose record company, Air Play, produced the record with Alan Dote as the producer, and with close friend Vip Barry serving as Ryan's personal producer and manager in the making of the arrangements.

Barry, who lives in Oakland, "is a terrific entertainer in his own right," says Ryan.

Terry met the girl, Delamy Murphy, of San Rafael who was to become his second wife, while both were horseback riding on Marin's Pacheco Ranch. They have a small two-acre ranch at Sebastopol, and divide their time between it and San Rafael. At the ranch they keep two riding horses.

WHILE HER husband maintains his rigorous performance schedule, Delamy Ryan prefers to remain at home, keeping house and caring for the horses and family pets.

In addition to his long stand at Shipwreck Pete's, and his engagement at the Wharf Rat Tavern, Terry Ryan has appeared at San Rafael's Executive Lounge, recently completing a four-month stint.

"Like Pete Lind, Don Bernard is a great guy to work for," he says. "I have been really fortunate in the kind of fellows for whom I have worked. They have given me a big lift."

Alvarado Inn customers at Ignacio has also heard Terry Ryan sing and play. So has the clientele of Rancho Nicasio.

AFTER A LIFE that saw him visit every state in the Union, except Alaska, plus foreign climes, and which saw him attempting a diversity of jobs — he credits his husky frame to the field and road construction work —, Terry Ryan feels he has found his place and his role in life. Now he is concentrating upon the fullest realization of that role and the fullest enjoyment of that place.

What would he like to have the future bring to him and his young wife?

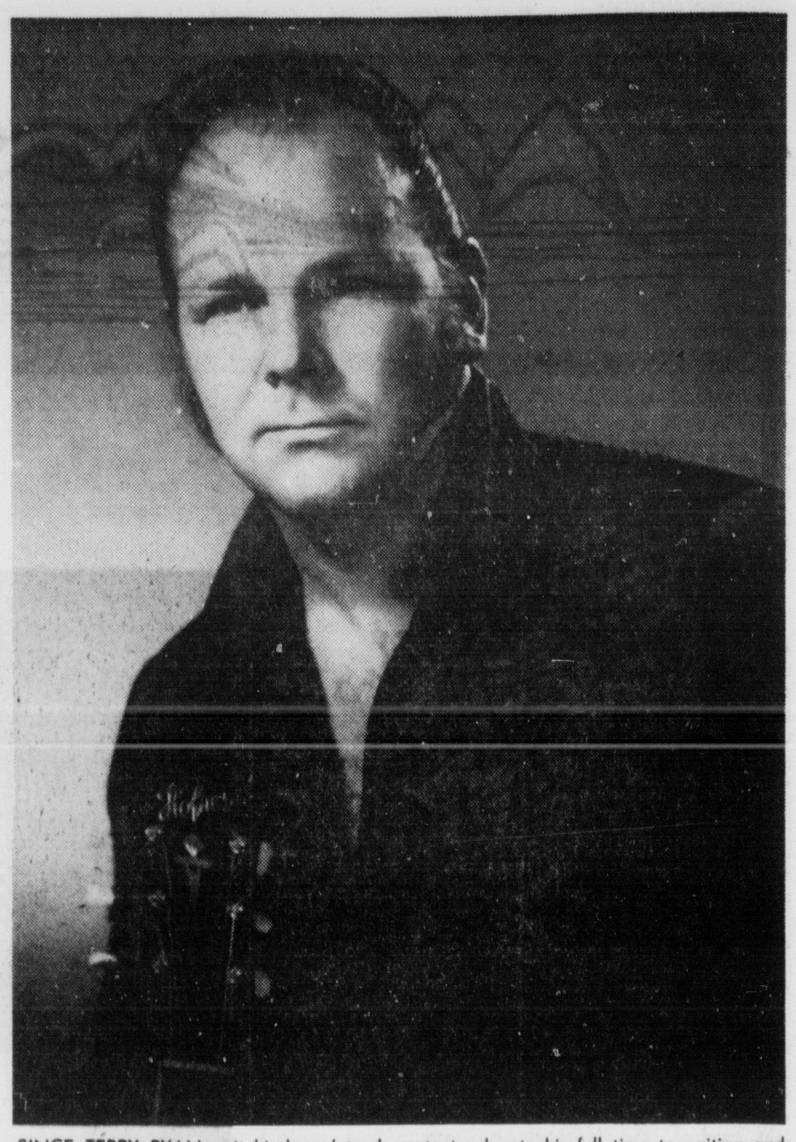
It goes in part: "Run for your life, you'll find love and so much more,/ Smile and keep your head up, open every door./ Run for your life, make the most of it you can,/ Make good the time that's given — that's the destiny of man."

"That's the honest way I feel about things," Terry Ryan says. "I don't put any limitations on myself and my music." And he adds: "That is why country music is so popular with the public these days — it's simple and honest. And in times like these, we can sure use some honesty."

"Well," he laughs, "I'd like, of course, to see my record climb to number one on the charts. I guess any songwriter and singer hopes for that. And I'd like to make an album of 'Party Girl' and some of my other songs."

THEN, TOO, HE would like to make another single record. He already has the lyrics for that song, and soon he will be putting the words to music.

He calls the poem "Run for Your Life" and he says its lines "tell a lot about my philosophy — about how I feel about life."



SINCE TERRY RYAN quit his bread truck route to devote his full time to writing and singing country and western music, he has been a busy man, performing nightly in Bay Area clubs. Now he also has a record out — a single, "Party Girl" — that is being heard on radio, and which he hopes will climb the charts.

A Week For Square Dancing

ton and Ralph Thomas in the calling at tomorrow's big dance at Northgate.

In addition to the duties their titles indicates, the callers are almost always their clubs' principal instructor. Some callers maintain an affiliation with more than one club.

The callers also have their own organization — the Square Dance Callers Association of Northern California. One of their major services to square dancing is the sponsorship of a monthly directory, Square Dance-Where?, that is edited by Ed Ferrario, who is also currently the callers association president.

WHAT IS SQUARE dancing, exactly?

Dr. Allen Conroy, who with his wife Louise, are among the veterans of Marin square dancing, so active they belong to not one but two — the Cornhuskers and the Novato Squares — clubs, begins his answer by telling you exactly what square dancing is not: "It is not dancing with the feet. Unlike ballroom dancing, you won't learn it at Arthur Murray's."

Conroy continues: "It is a dance of position, involving whole body progression in a variety of directions, on command from a caller.

"One must learn a minimum of 75 basic movements to join in as a regular club member. This is done at the beginner classes."

DANCING IS to recorded music from some of the country's best known western bands. Live music has faded from the scene, at least in Marin and, although until fairly recently the Roll-Alongs were still providing live hoedown accompaniment for square dancers.

An evening of party dancing, which may attract members of from 20 to 30 clubs and the services of a full-time professional guest caller who earns his livng at the art, is divided into "tips" of 12 to 15 minutes of dancing. The first half of a tip will consist of a "patter call" in which the caller consisting of a series of figures put together by the caller to provide a new experience for the dancers and performed to any hoedown or fiddle tune.

The second half of the tip will be devoted to a "singing call," a traditional, familiar routine associated with and danced to a specific tune.

At intermission, many of the dancers may vary their evening with a round dance, defined by Dr. Conroy as "a ballroom dance — a waltz, a two-step, a polka, what have you — done in a definite pattern, so that it is performed identically around the world, wherever square dancers gather."

IMPORTANT TO square dancers is the country-western garb they customarily wear for dancing. Several western shops in the area deal in square dance clothing and do a brisk business.

"It's a chance for the tamely-dressed man to put on something spectacular and really blossom," says Conroy.

For women, skirts that twirl and fancy petticoats are the thing — and yards of crenoline. No bare midriffs.

For the men, bare arms are a "no no." Lone sleeves are required —" . . . no gal likes a sweaty arm."

THE AGES OF the square dancers in Marin County begin in the middle teens and go into the upper 70s — enthusiasts like Julis Hons and Audley Nichols, who are among the liveliest of the Cornhuskers, and who travel far and wide, even internationally, for their square dancing. Young married couples are strongly represented, but there are many in their 50s and 60s.

The recreation also takes in a broad spectrum of professions and origins. And the fellowship that is so much a part of square dancing crosses all lines and binds its devotees together in a common interest and enjoyment.

Oscar Montgomery says that square dancing in Marin County and throughout District 8 is enjoying a slow, steady growth — "nothing spectacular, but the trend is there."

THE SQUARE dance, of course, has its roots deep into America's soil and history. It has experienced both surges and retreats of interest. And it underwent its biggest revolution shortly after World War II when portable record players and portable public address systems became more readily available. Now the caller could control the volume of the music — a fiddler or an accordionist was not always so easily controlled — and he could amplify his own voice, to be heard in even the largest auditorium.

Despite these developments, there was a period when square dancing entered the doldrums in Northern California. Then in the late 1950s the recovery began, and with the Northern California Square Dance Association in the forefront, the dancing has continued to hold its popularity.

In addition to their weekly workshops, and the Saturday party nights, the Marinites join with the remainder of the clubs of the Northern California association to stage a Golden State Roundup as their traditional annual event in late May.

THEY PARTICIPATE as guests in the annual events of other areas, such as Nevada's Silver State Roundup in early May.

Some of the most dedicated have attended square dance camps held in such regions as the Colorado Rockies and the Arkansas Ozarks.

And although there is no formal national organization, the square dance associations across the country do join for a national convention each year, and Marinites attend.

This year's convention was held in June at Salt Lake City, and 13 couples from Marin clubs were present. Next year the convention site will be San Antonio, Tex.

AND AT THESE conventions the same enthusiasm for and growth of square dancing experienced in the Bay Area is also reported for other regions. Why this growth?

"Because," answers District Director Montgomery, "because Americans feel a need for ties with the more stable past. And because they are having more and more leisure time to explore and develop those ties."

Which is not to say that square dancing is static and unchanging.

"We're always coming up with something new to go along with the old," Montgomery says. "The trend is toward more and more combinations — more compound movements. We are always learning new material at our workshops."

AND HERE HE inserts a bit of dogma of the traditionalist: "That doesn't mean fancy steps. I don't like to see a lot of hopping around. The feet should stay down. Square dancing is a dance of position, not high stepping and tap dancing. You start doing that, and you won't be able to keep up with the caller."

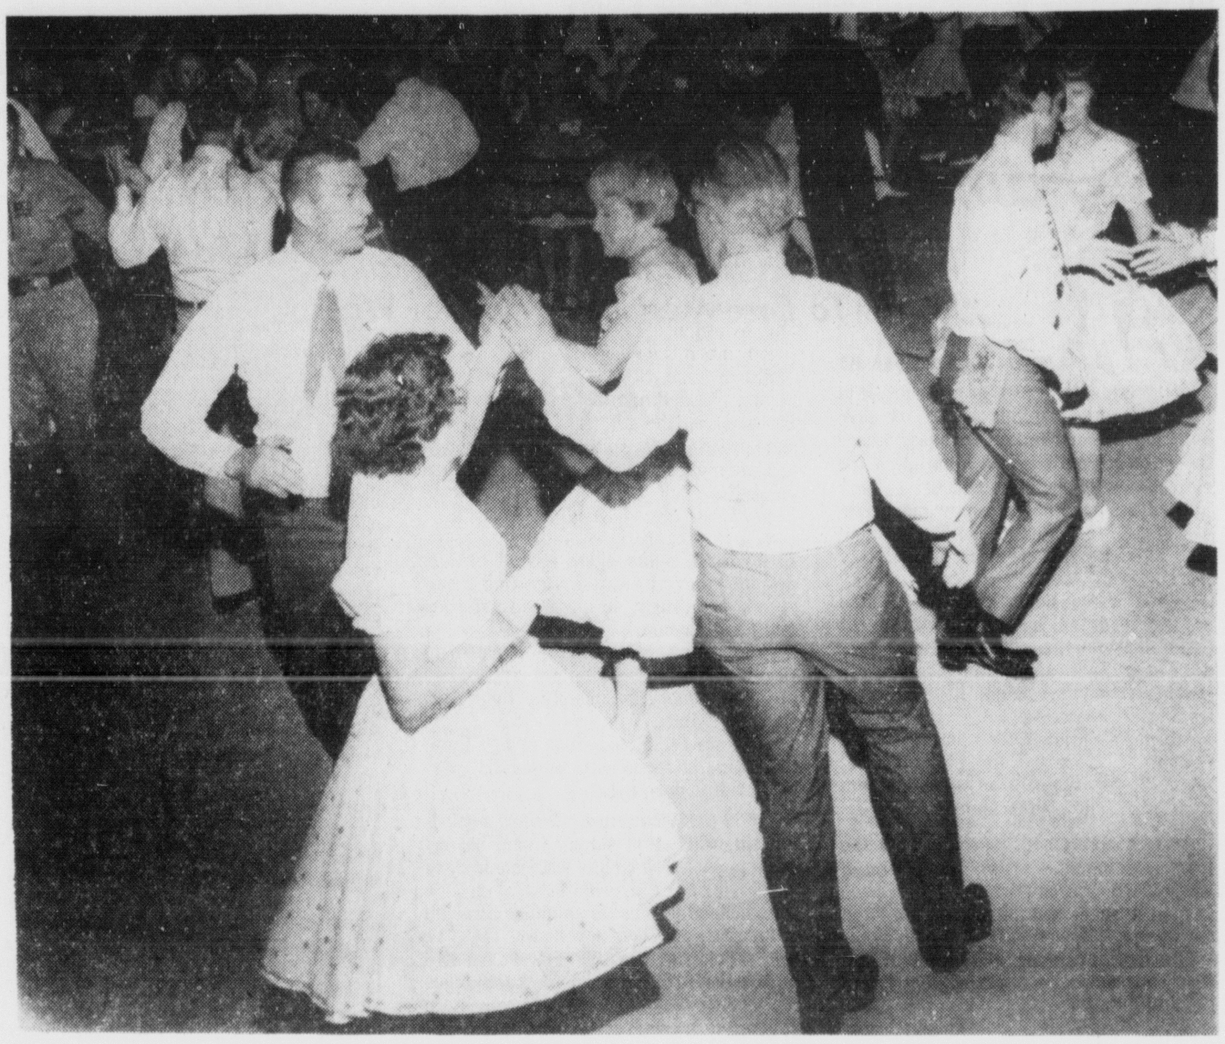
So what can you, the non-participant, do, to help the square dancers in their observance of National Square Dance Week?

For one thing, you might turn out tomorrow at the Northgate Shopping Center and get caught up in the spirit of the big dance. "Square dancers are very much the extroverts and love to show off," Dr. Conroy promises. "They'll give you a good time."

Then, if you catch the fever, you might want to join up with one of the beginner classes that will be starting up.

BUT, OF EQUAL importance, you can pen a note or letter to a congressman urging the adoption of Rep. Charles S. Gubser's House Joint Resolution 555, proclaiming square dancing our national dance.

Then when Uncle Sam celebrates his 200th birthday three years from now, square dancing can be assured of its proper place on the program and its just recognition as an appropriate recreation of an active, fun-loving, music-appreciative people.

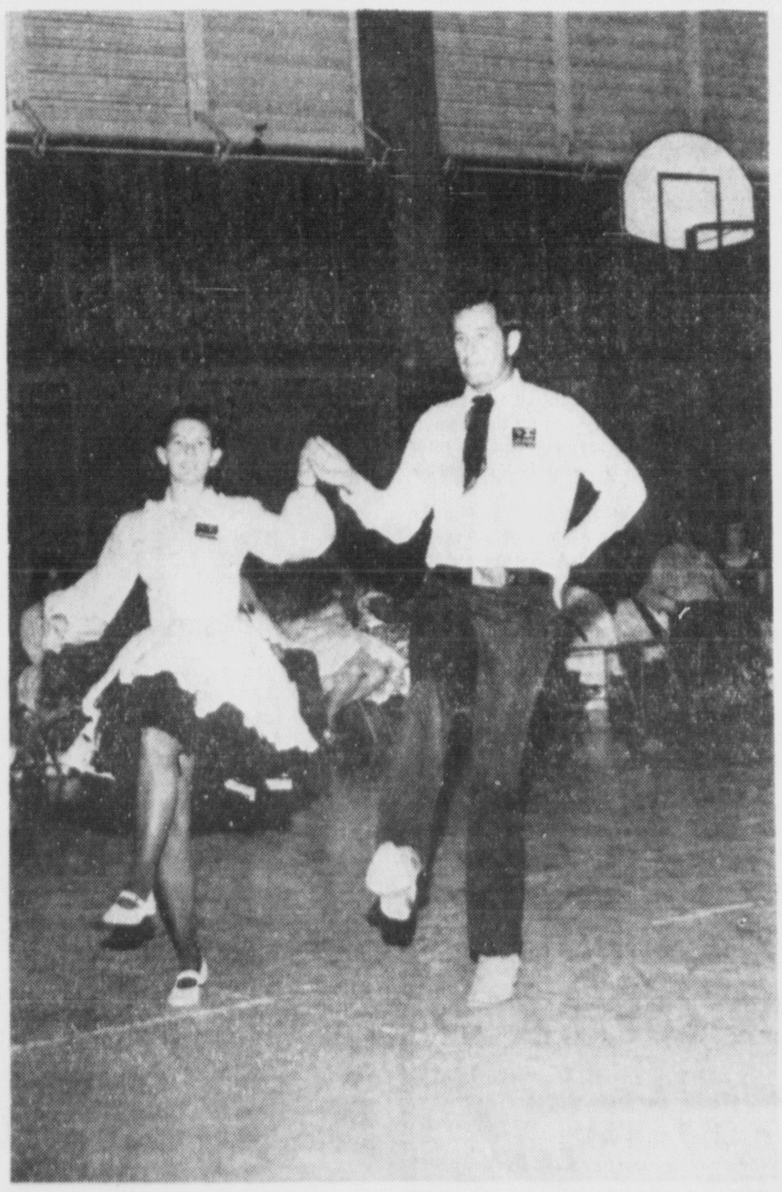


IT IS PARTY NIGHT at the San Jose Junior High School in Novato, with the Stump Jumpers as hosts to square dancing enthusiasts from throughout Marin County and neighboring environs. Here dancers execute the caller's command for "head couples to the center and form a left-hand star." Square dance clubs in District 8, Northern California Square Dance Association, take turns hosting the party night affairs. (Photos by Al Sims)

SQUARE DANCING IS a recreation that all ages enjoy. Above, Northern California Square Dance Association senior members Julius Hons (in beanie) and partner Audley Nichols and Mr. and Mrs. George Bruce demonstrate that they can keep pace with the youngest of the dancers.

KEY MAN AT any square dance is the caller. At left is Ralph Silvius of Modesto, guest caller for the Stump Jumpers party night, and with a long-playing record to "These Boots Are Made for Dancing" on which he is one of the callers. At right, Dave Milano, regular Stump Jumpers caller, tunes up his vocal chords.

HEALTHY APPETITES are the inevitable outcome of an evening of square dancing. And the Stump Jumpers are justifiably noted for the repasts they provide for their party night guests. Setting out a [illegible] of refreshments are, left to right, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Larsen and Mrs. Alfred Sims, the hosts for the evening.



MR. AND MRS. Larry Williams perform one of the round dances that provide an intermission-time change of pace from the square dancing They follow the directions of caller Ralph Silvius.

Consumer Credit Counselors Aids The Family Mired Deeply In Debt

Agency With Headquarters In San Rafael Works To Ease Marinites' Financial Woes

lies their homes," Perley says proudly. "And almost on a weekly basis, we save automobiles for families in cases where the cars are absolutely essential to the employment of the breadwinner.

"And we have helped spare innumerable people the trauma, embarrassment and harrassment of a garnishment of their wages."

A major consideration, too, is the saving effected by Consumer Credit Counselors for its clients in legal fees when they are spared involvement in court actions that might have resulted from their indebtedness.

Attorneys often refer clients to the Consumer Credit Counselors office, seeing it as a means of sparing them from litigation or bankruptcy.

OTHER REFERRALS come from the finance companies, from banks, retail credit people, credit unions and service agencies such as the American Red Cross.

Of what advantage to the debtor are the services of the Consumer Credit Counselors?

"If collection people could and would always go along with the debtor in trouble, then he generally could handle his own problems," explains Perley. "But the collection people have heard the same excuses over and over again, so in self-defense they tend to become hardened to such hard-luck stories.

"THE DEBTOR then can use an intermediary — some one whose participation in the negotiations assures the creditors that a serious attempt is being made to solve the problem, and that every creditor can depend upon receiving at least something every month toward their bill, if they will go along."

What Consumer Credit Counselors does is to sit down with the family or individual in financial trouble, go over with them their resources and their liabilities, and then work out a "bare bones" living budget.

What is left over is then applied to the resolving of the debts. Proposals are submitted to all creditors suggesting the payment practical for the debtor under his budget, with a minimum figure of $5 a month.

IF THOSE proposals are accepted, the execution of the plan proceeds. Most creditors do accept such plans.

Should an emergency arise — a breakdown of the car used in employment, a forgotten insurance premium due, etc. — the clients are asked to contact Consumer Credit Counselors "so that we will have the answer if and when the creditors begin calling us to find out why the promised payments have not been forthcoming."

A reminder is mailed at the end of 30 days if payments have not begun, and if the office has not been notified of a special problem. If there has been no action in 60 days, a form mailed by Credit Counselors informs the debtor that it is assumed its services are no longer needed.

"WE HAVE NO contract," Perley says. "It is simply an agreement."

But, he adds, at least 80 per cent of the families and individuals for whom a payment plan is worked out follow through and carry out the proposal.

One of the provisions is that they surrender all credit cards and not use credit during the payment period except in the most extreme of emergencies — and that, then, the Consumer Credit Counselors be notified, at least by telephone, before any purchase is made.

Credit Counselors makes no charge for its counseling, and the service is available — after an appointment is made first by telephone — to everyone in need.

IF PERLEY'S office is asked to administer a creditor payment plan, a small service charge is made. This provides approximately one-fourth of the Consumer Credit Counselors budget.

Perley says the clients come from all walks of life and from all economic stratas. "No one group is immune to credit problems." All age groups are caught up in the financial squeeze, too, although of the families bringing their problems to Fourth and B streets fall most often into the 25 to 35-year-old bracket.

"Those are the years when the couple faces the problems of furnishing the home, paying for the home and the car, rearing the children. When recreation expenses are highest. When a budget seems a needless nuisance, and there is always the future in which to meet today's obligations."

UNFORTUNATELY, that future sometimes means added obligations, not a lessening of responsibilities and pressures.

The one age group that Perley most rarely sees is the older retired citizen, despite the bind they so often find themselves in, caught up between inflation and fixed income.

MARIN LIVING

"The older people have learned to retrench for themselves," he says. "They are better able to discipline their own spending habits."

What are the factors that plunge families, some of them with substantial paychecks, into deep debt?

FIRST AND foremost, Perley says, is the old practice of simply living beyond one's means. The couple who should have bought furniture a piece or a room at a time instead purchases an entire houseful of furniture for their new home. The man who should have set his sights on a $600 or $700 car for his transportation plunges for a $3,000 automobile or an even more expensive sports car — purchases that should have waited until income had risen to that level.

Couples who should have postponed the expensive stereo set or color television set for a few years are unable to do so.

"Credit is the most valuable thing a person has," Fred Perley says. "It should therefore be used most carefully — even cautiously. It is an absolute requirement that it be watched — that it be utilized first for the normal necessities of life, and not permitted to slip away little by little for luxuries, so that when one needs it for essentials, it is not there."

PERLEY ADDS: "You would be surprised at the number of people in Marin County who are seriously in arrears on their utility bills — services we regard as absolutely essential to living. Many people are living without telephones, not out of choice, but because they are unable to meet the bills."

Inflation, of course, is another bugaboo that has created financial crises. For some families, incomes have failed to keep pace with prices. And they were already hard put to make ends meet.

Medical emergencies are another big source of the economic problems that Perley sees in his office. An illness or an accident can wipe out savings and plunge the victim and his family into sudden deep debt, even when they had been regarded as well-to-do.

UNEMPLOYMENT often enters the picture, not only when the main breadwinner in the family loses his job. The family accustomed to living on two salary checks is sometimes unable to make the adjustment when the woman loses her job or has to give up her position.

Divorce is another culprit that strikes suddenly at the economic well being of some Marinites, disrupting economic patterns and causing unexpected expenditures. "In many cases the people who come to us for help have recenlty gone through divorce," Perley says.

Few people actually go to the trouble of laying down a proper budget, so that they really know their true income and true expenses, Perley says. He advises that this be done. And that the budget reflect not only the month-to-month living expenses, but also such costs as insurance payments, interest payments, taxes, etc., that come at intervals and must be met. "Failure to anticipate such bulk amounts is a major cause of economic worry," he says.

BUT BASICALLY, overbuying encouraged by easy credit is the foremost factor behind the traffic in and out of Perley's office.

"The friendly salesman, naturally, is delighted to make the sale," Perley says. "But when the customer doesn't fulfill his contractual obligations, he usually meets up with a far different attitude on the collection end of the business."

On second thought, Perley says, his estimate that 10 per cent of the family units in Marin County are on the borderline of needing the services of Consumer Credit Counselors is probably a conservative one.

For those who do find their way to the Consumer Credit Counselors office where all contacts and information are strictly confidential, the result is, Perley adds, along with a tightening of their spending habits, "a much happier family or individual, given hope and escape from what has become an untenable position."

BUSINESS, TOO, benefits, for its well-being is dependent upon a stable, dependable credit pool.

Thus most creditors cooperate fully with Consumer Credit Counselors and its porposals, "and," says Perley, "it is this cooperation we receive from those who issue credit that makes our service work and gives it its value."

Perley gives these disguised case histories of clients who have been rescued from financial disaster by his office:

A professional man with a thriving business became seriously ill. He lost not only his business, but his savings, and soon found himself $18,000 in debt. With his health returning he still faced the possibility of bankruptcy. Hearing of the counselors service, he arranged an appointment. The result was a plan initiated last March that has enabled him to pay off more than $3,000 of his debts, and which he plans to continue to pursue to solvency.

ANOTHER CLIENT, a skilled craftsman, went into business for himself, and soon discovered it wasn't as financially rewarding as he had expected. He not only lost his savings, but borrowed money to run the business. Even that failed to save his enterprise, and he found himself unemployed and faced with family medical bills. At last he found a good job in his craft, but collection actions continually garnished his wages until he contemplated bankruptcy.

Then, hearing about Consumer Credit Counselors, he met with Fred Perley and they worked out a budget and a plan that permits a moderate style of living for the family while making possible sizable repayments to his credits that will clear his debts in the near future.

These, says Fred Perley, are only examples of the kinds of accomplishments that make his new career so satisfying.

SHARING HIS satisfaction is an advisory committee headed by R. E. Corrick, vice president and manager of Bank of America, San Rafael main branch, as its chairman, and with the following members.

James K. Battaglia, manager, Bank of California; Reinhold F. Bergstrom, manager, Security Pacific National Bank; Ernie Border, manager, Budget Finance Plan; Earl E. Boutilier, vice president and manager, United California Bank; Jordan Dell'era, vice president and manager, Crocker National Bank; Daniel C. Knott, manager, J.C. Penney store; Joseph Martino, vice president and manager, Wells Fargo Bank; William P. Murray Jr., president, Bank of Marin; Bernie H. E. Nickel, manager, Beneficial Finance Co.; Will H. Sanders, general manager, Sears Roebuck and Co.; and Chester F. Villalba, former executive director, Family Service Agency.

Word of the services offered by Consumer Credit Counselors is spreading, says Perley, a tall, slim man in his 60s, with gray hair, soft voice and courtly manner, and more and more of the financially troubled are calling the office for appointments to explore their own possibilities for avoiding bankruptcy and other economic difficulties.

FOR INSTANCE, so many clients have been coming from the Santa Rosa area — "something like 30 per cent of our appointments," says Perley — that Consumer Credit Counselors is beginning to plan the opening of a new office in Santa Rosa.

The San Rafael office maintains working hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

And a brochure and other information on its services can be obtained by telephoning the office, or by writing Consumer Credit Counselors, 1203 Fourth Street, Post Office Box 628, San Rafael, 94901.

Promises Fred Perley: "The majority of people who have personal financial problems can be helped by us. To do so, however, takes a complete understanding of the individual's overall problem. Most people can pay their debts from future earnings, if they get proper advice, and if creditors give them a fair opportunity to do so."

WITH NO RELISH for the situation he foresees, Perley predicts that the trend toward increasing financial problems for American families that he has experienced across his desk will continue.

"There is no reason that I can see to expect that trend to halt, given the state of our economy," he says in all honesty.

Still, Consumer Credit Counselors is taking positive steps for the prevention of financial ills, as well as for their cure.

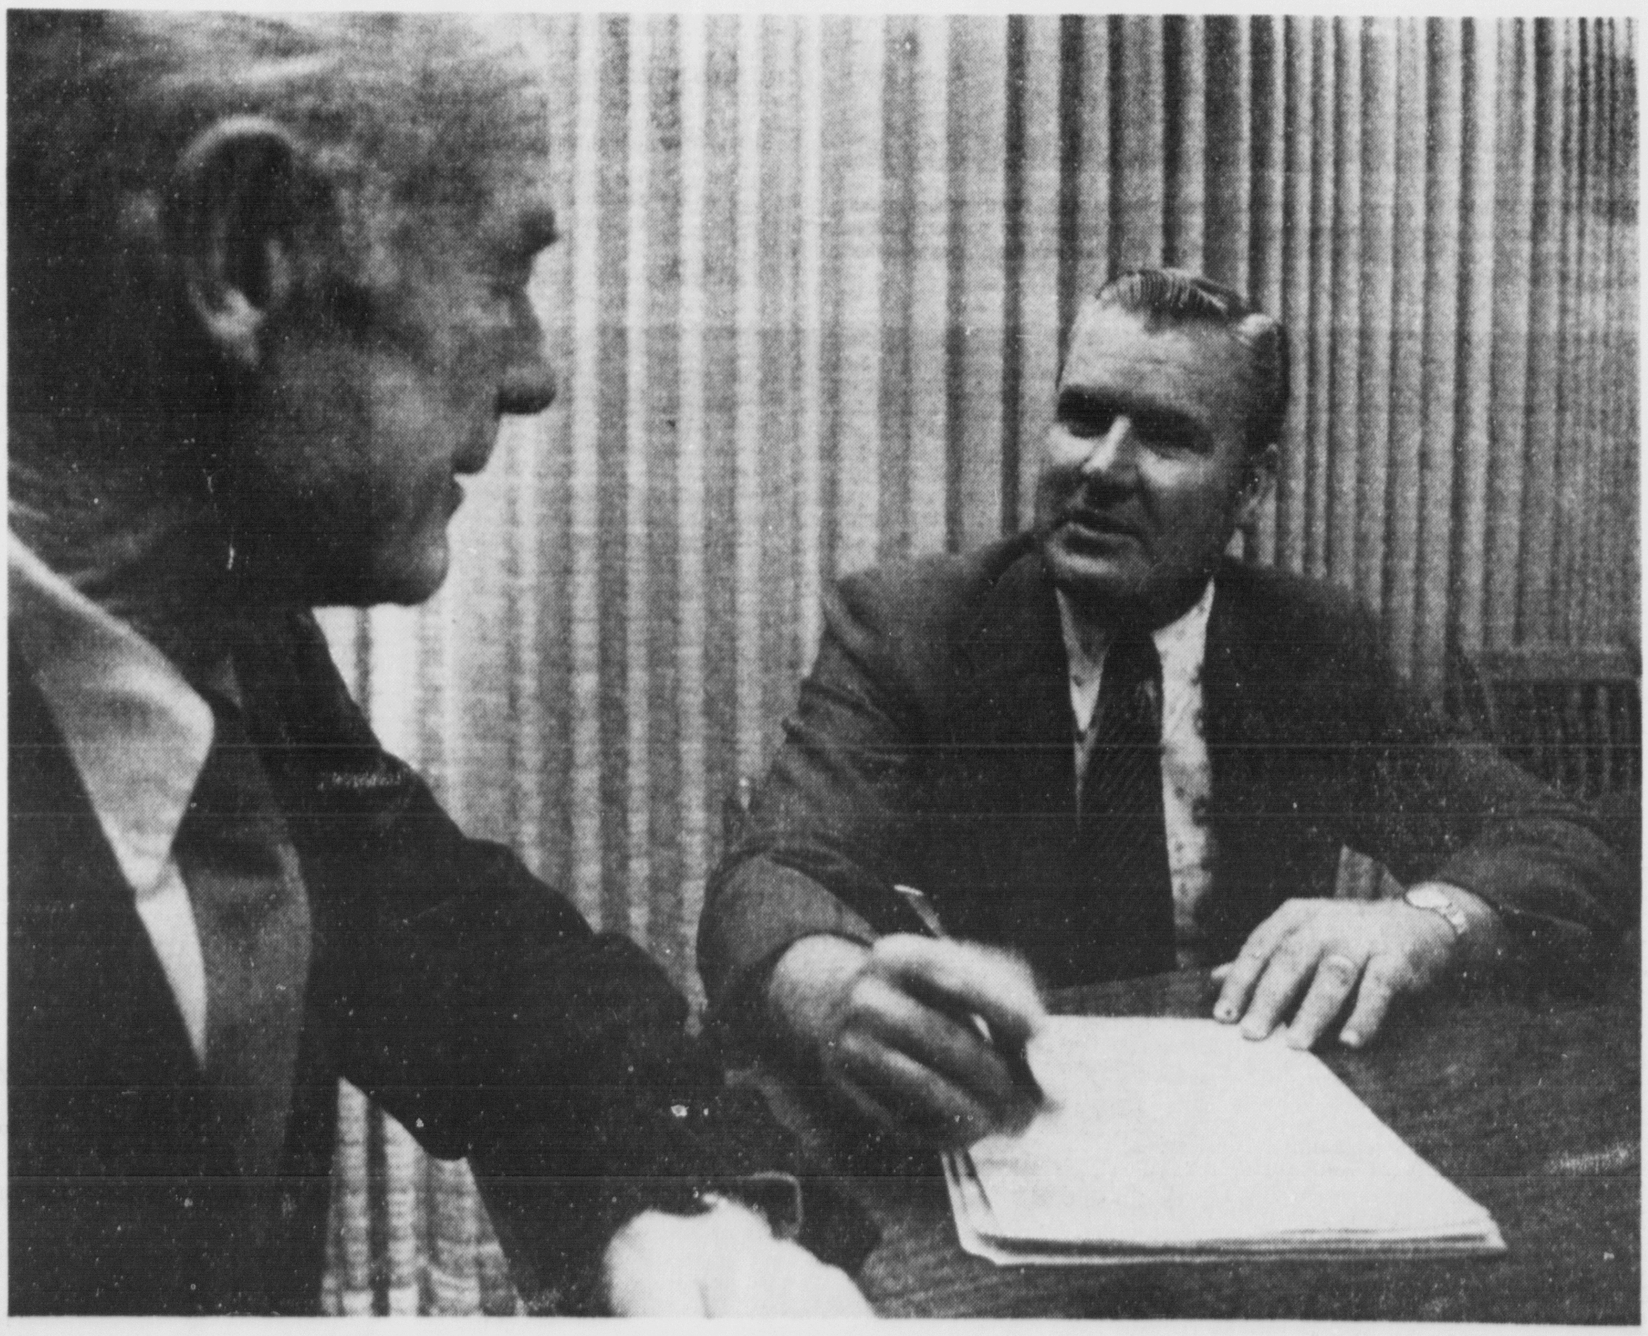
Nationally, the organization has put together a course on money management and credit that it is making available to high schools for their seniors.

LAST YEAR, for instance, in Orange County, it was a mandatory one-semester course for every senior in the public school system.

Perley is presently contacting Marin high school administrators urging them to accept the educational program for their own schools.

From such instruction, Consumer Credit Counselors hopes, will emerge a new crop of American consumers, aware of the importance of the family budget and equipped to use the vital asset of their credit to its wisest advantage, avoiding the pitfall of hopeless indebtedness that now haunts too many homes in this supposedly affluent country.

MANAGER FRED S. PERLEY of Consumer Credit Counselors of Marin County goes over some files with secretary Chris Jennings in his offices on the mezzanine floor of the Crocker National Bank Building in downtown San Rafael. His office space is contributed by the bank for $1 a year, indicating the high regard business and financial institutions have for the non-profit program aimed at rescuing families and individuals in deep debt distress.



AT THE BANK OF AMERICA up B Street from his own office in downtown San Rafael, Fred Perley, manager of the Consumer Credit Counselors program in Marin, confers with R. E. Corrick, right, vice president and manager of the bank's San Rafael main office and chairman of the advisory committee for the community service agency established in Marin less than a year ago at the instigation of the San Francisco office.

Making The Grand Tour, Rock Style

UPTIGHT WITH THE STONES by Richard Elman; Scribner's, 119 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Francis M. Dozier Jr.

Last year's American summer tour by the Rolling Stones turned out to be the milestone musical event of the decade thus far.

But even allowing for the current trend of the reportage to rival the event in entertainment value, "Uptight with the Stones" is extremely hard going down. It's a disturbingly pretentious and overblown concoction, which arrives a year late, at that.

It's artsy expression lies vaguely between the impacted word play of the early style of Tom Wolfe and that of present day Norman Mailer with his penchant for simile and metaphor. Possessing the natural gifts of neither, Elman strains mightily. The summer Texas sky may mentally come to resemble a "large pants" if the comparison is pondered long enough. Therein lies the problem.

Still, the author was present backstage at the Southern concerts and if obviously an enthralled witness to the confused carnival atmosphere — the tour doctor dispensing handfuls of stimulants, the bizarre conversations and hangers-on — he does at least succeed in conveying that mood.

But when the grandest of truths is arrived at, Elman characteristically takes verbal flight. The Stones of course are white, as were most of the audiences. The musical attraction, the black blues, has long gone unappreciated in its primitive form — usually to be found just across town. Are the fans in a way attempting to relate to the art form which has traditionally been ignored?

Yes, Elman rather lucidly explains. But, then again, no. "It's not relating," he warns. "It's a glance backward; It's moments of intimacy frozen in time."

MICK JAGGER AND the Rolling Stones were photographed in action during their American tour of 1972 that provides the subject matter for the book, "Uptight with the Stones," by Richard Elman. From Madison Square Garden to fateful Altamont, the tour stirred excitement and controversy.

Relaxing The Dr. Schultz Way, With Autogenic Ritual And Resolutions

RELIEVE TENSION THE AUTOGENIC WAY by Dr. Hannes Lindemann; Peter Wyden, 278 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Dr. J. H. Schultz was a German dermatologist, neurologist and psychterapist who developed in Germany in the early 1900s a system he called Autogenic Training, relying strongly upon hypnosis and self-hypnosis for relaxation and physical and emotional well-being. He continued to work with and to refine the system until his death i 1970.

Autogenic Training received widespread attention and interest in Europe, but relatively little in this country. Now a text by Dr. Hannes Lindemann, also a physician and a German, and a one-time student of Dr. Schultz, has been translated from its original German into English, and may well mark the beginnings of an American movement in Autogenic Training or AT.

Dr. Lindemann attracted international attention when he crossed the Atlantic Ocean in a canvas boat in 72 days and later wrote a book on his feat, "Alone Across the Ocean," in which he gave major credit to AT for his accomplishment.

Autogenic Training contains not only the seeds of self-hypnosis, but also parts of other techniques and movements such as positive thinking, Yoga and Transcendental Meditation. And yet, along with similarities, there are also differences. One major difference, as insisted upon by Dr. Lindemann, is that while AT is best mastered with the help of an instructor, it can be learned from a book without a coach or other supervision.

AT is a ritualized, almost ceremonial, form of self-induced hypnosis that takes its practitioner step-by-step into a state of calm and relaxation. It reaches a point then where the trainee can then direct his focus toward his or her own specific, individualistic needs and wishes.

In other words, it begins with a set of standard exercises, after which the practitioner "takes off" with his own formalized or personalized resolutions tailored for his own requirements.

With practice, the formula can be abbreviated, and the personal resolutions emphasized.

Like most books of this kind, "Relieve Tension the Autogenic Way" does seem to contain a great deal of padding. Yet it is far more specific in its directions, and in its promises than most. And it offers fascinating possibilities. The American Journal of Psychotherapy has said: "Autogenic Training can be applied as an adjunct measure in virtually any type of psychotherapy and in a number of conditions as the only treatment necessary to achieve satisfactory results."

It wouldn't be surprising if we are about to see a blossoming of AT centers about the country in very much the same manner we now have Yoga and Transcendental Meditation centers. If so, Dr. Lindemann's book will have been the trigger.

Police Vs. Panthers, With U.S. Justice The Biggest Loser

AN AMERICAN VERDICT by Michael J. Arlen; Doubleday, 196 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

At dawn one morning late in 1969, a flying squad of Chicago police arrived at the door of a small apartment maintained by Black Panthers. The police later testified that they courteously greeted the residents, informed them that they had a search warrant and received the rude response of multiple shotgun blasts.

After the battle, two Panthers were dead, four wounded, and the rest locked up.

The police had been searching for sawed-off shotguns and other illegal weapons that turned out to be as fictional as their entire account of what happened. This was uncovered by a grand jury investigation, and key testimony by a Federal Bureau of Investigation ballistics expert that between 83 and 99 shots were fired into the apartment, while only one had been fired out. Moreover, the Panther who had been identified as the primary assailant by police was given paraffin tests at his autopsy, and these proved he had not fired a weapon.

These subsequent events are the subject of "An American Verdict" by Michael J. Arlen.

It is a taut courtroom drama to remind the historically inclined of such other judicial smoke screens over touchy issues as the Reichstag fire or the Dreyfus case, while entertaining the general reader with the uncomfortable reminder that every time an unpopular oddball is railroaded from the ocial hive into a jail cell (or shot while sleeping in Chicago), public apathy erodes the security of all. Consider, for example, those recent narcotic raids on innocent households because of police error.

Did the police murder these men, or was it a case of jitters resulting in mansalughter? Probably no one will ever know, and considering how the case was handled by Chicago authorities, there was little concern for facts rather than preserving appearances for Mayor Richard Daley's political machine.

The first grand jury, aside from the damning FBI data noted above, learned that the police weapons inspector never saw the evidence but automatically gave a favorable report in behalf of the department for fear of losing his sinecure; and the jurors termed the police inspection division "so seriously deficient that it suggests purposeful malfeasance". Yet no indictments were returned.

Matters were further complicated by the usual cries that the news media were being unfair by uncovering massive disparities in police accounts of the shootings. Then the surviving Panthers refused to testify, probalby in hopes of damaging the legal system. This and Pavlovian slogan mouthings further worsened their cause with the mad vigor of men sawing away the tree limb upon which they sit.

Last year another grand jury did bring the state's attorney responsible for the raid to trial, along with the police who executed it. The charge was "obstructing justice," surely as ambiguous as the old New York accusation of "mopery," which meant "conspiracy to shot craps." The men were found not guilty.

This summary cannot do justice to Arlen's fine sense of timing and irony.

"An American Verdict" juxtaposes trial vignettes, bits of evidential material and background into an arresting verbal mosaic that makes the banalities of the courtroom into a fantasy chess game where the pieces have equivocal, shifting values and the players righteously cheat. This book is an important social document transformed into literature by Arlen's artistry and intellect. Another virtuoso performance by the author of "Exiles."

BROWSING BOOKMAN

McGraw-Hill is currently reissuing its 10-volume "Discovering Art Series" by Michael Batterberry and Ariane Ruskin in a quality paperback format.

One of the first four titles to be so issued is Miss Ruskins's splended "Nineteenth Century Art," described by Publishers Weekly as "an exhilarating performance" and by Saturday Review as "impressive and beautiful."

The softcover version has been printed in Italy and priced at $4.95 without compromise of the book's basic integrity and beauty. On a glossy paper, the illustrations are still gorgeous in their color. And the book is superbly designed.

"Probably the best buy on the American market in terms of the amount of color art for the price," claims the publishers. And that is probably no idle boast.

"THERE IT IS: Baja!" focusses upon what writer Mike McMahan sees as "California's new frontier" for those seeking a place of challenge and surprise for their travel destination.

McMahan is a veteran explorer of Baja's dusty roads and roadless deserts. Along with places to see and things to do, he also gives his readers some background on the region's history and culture. His book is generously illustrated, including color. And McMahan's affection for and fascination unspoiled with Baja show through. "Nine out of 10 trapped in the city! What a pity!," he mourns for North Americans, and then proposes: "Escape to Baja."

Brooke House, Los Angeles, published the $6.95 book.

SCHEDULED FOR Sept. 12 publication as a Ballantine Books "Illustrated" is Charles A. Borden's "Sea Quest," a record of man's daring explorations and high adventures aboard all manners of ships. Profusely illustrated, and with a glossary of nautical terms.

Biography Of A Museum More Alive Than Most

A CONTINUING MARVEL, The Story of the Museum of Science and Industry, by Herman Kogan; Doubleday, 233 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

For it's subject, a museum that is more alive than most, Kogan's story has more the tone of a biography than of a history.

He captures the spirit of the unique museum in Chicago on the shore of Lake Michigan, where the visitors can pull levers, turn wheels and press buttons rather than just stand and stare.

When the museum was founded 40 years ago, the people were told: "Everywhere there would be vivid life and motion to prevent typical 'museum fatigue'." And that pledge has been carried out.

In a series of color photos of outstanding exhibits, a 14-foot model of the human heart, a poultry incubator where chicks emerge from their shells, a fairy castle, a reproduction of a Midwestern farm, a main street of yesterday, and others, a reader gets a glimpse of the museum's attractions.

Through the years the museum hasn't remained static — a circumstance that has afflicted some museums — but has been a changing scene. In the 1940s then President Lenox Lohr stressed the theme that "the museum should be like a looseleaf encyclopedia and no exhibit ever finished. When a piece of machinery or process becomes obsolete, it should be taken out and the very latest development put in its place."

Through the depression, World War II and the post war years, the museum has survived under the guidance of dedicated leaders, and attendance has increased.

Considering the planning, work and care that goes into the exhibits, as described by Kogan, it is easy to see why it has flourished.

James Baldwin, Nikki Giovanni In Conversation

A dialogue by James Baldwin and Nikki Giovanni; Lippincott, 95 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Francis M. Dozier Jr.

Any discussion with James Baldwin must sooner or later focus on his favorite topic. Knowingly, and somewhat in awe, poetess Nikki Giovanni complies at the outset. "Why did you move to Europe?" she asks.

Again re-spun is the already well known tale of his first escape in 1948 from the restrictive mood of America to the more suitable one on foreign soil.

The occasion was two years ago on the old "Soul" television show. Considered a model of the new black feminity, Nikki was pitted against the brooding sage in the hope that electricity would flow.

It did, though there were few sparks. What transpired was a polite, provocative exchange. An aid rather than hindrance was the generation gap. Both participants extended themselves most sympathetically in an atmosphere of mutual respect and admiration as they probed important questions of the Black experience, chiefly the changing roles of the sexes as they relate to the total society.

Poetry Book: 'Let It Rest Unpurchased'

OF A POET by William Harger; Celestial Arts Publishing, 92 pages, $2.95. Reviewed by Phillip Holtzman.

A strange book of poems with flowers in color on the cover, dedicated "To me,!" with the early entry:

The first rule
To writing a poem
Is . . .
Forget all the rules!

Initially, I wonder whether "To me!" also means for me; and if it is for himself Harger writes, as journal entries in poetic lines. Bravo! Finding your feelings surfacing toward poetry, loving your poems as expressions of integrity, and giving these written form for yourself and your friends — noble — and beyond criticizing.

Harger's poems are hostile to the little man's humdrum life and his fears. They tell his praise of love, of feeling high, of watching little things, touching, of children, of personal liberation.

But they sell for $2.95 now, and if they are "to me," there is obviously an attempt for them to be for us as well — and I think this last effort is premature — or, more precisely, a full-scale mistake. Harger's ideas are sincere, but becoming poems they lack freshness.

The quickie sketches opposite each poem don't stand up alone, they are redundant rather than illustrative, they swell an already overblown book.

The publishers seem to apologize in their brief comments: he's "not the cynic he sounds to be." He isn't the greatest "because he doesn't believe in 'greatest'." "He may sound too simple sometimes, but that's misleading."

Nevertheless, he is writing for himself with integrity, giving form to the stuff inside, which is personally constructive and highly recommended.

Let the book stand on this recommendation: let it rest unpurchased.

The Mad Doctor Who Poisoned For Pleasure

THE GENTLEMAN FROM CHICAGO by John Cashman; Harper and Row, 310 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

One of the most sinister figures to crawl from the dark annals of mass murder was the twisted 19th Century figure, Dr. Thomas Neill Cream, the physician who killed on two continents and died on the British gallows for some of his ghastly crimes.

Around this dark character, a British lawyer using the pseudonym of John Cashman has written this novel.

It is presented as Cream's own manuscript describing from his own mad point-of-view, his life and his "career."

The publisher tells us that the author had the assistance of both Scotland Yard in England and the district attorney's office in Chicago in researching Cream's grim record and character, and that while the story is "eight-tenths fictitious," it nevertheless has a strong factual foundation.

Cashman (whoever he is) attempts to give us a picture of a mind born twisted that deteriorates steadily in an abbreviated lifetime into total madness. A cruel and conceited child becomes the cold-blooded poisoner who murders, mainly women of the street, for pleasure. The depiction of the later Cream is more effective than the younger Cream. And one of the chilliest aspects of the portrait is that Cream's path is determined, not by external social forces that molded a misshapen character, but by inevitable, internal qualities. Cashman's seems to tell us that the only way Thomas Neill Cream might have been prevented from taking his lethal course was by incarceration and total separation from the public, in prison or a mental institution, or by the drastic and dreadful penalty eventually applied by the hangman.

The truth is that we have had too many mad killer and mass killers in our own time for one to appreciate Cashman's recreation of the repellent Cream for any reason other than the lessons we might learn from this fictionalized case history and apply to similar crises today.

But one does not know if the Thomas Neill Cream that Cashman dissects is authentic enough to serve as a reliable laboratory specimen.

The most important paragraph in "The Gentleman from Chicago" is its closing one, supposedly penned after the execution by the young doctor-criminologist who observed Cream in his last days:

"Neill is now with his God. Whether his God was the Almighty or Satan, we shall never know. But one thing is for certain: until we learn to understand the workings of a mind like Neill's, murderers of his kind will forever be among us."

THOMAS NEILL CREAM

Whatever their similarities or differences to the particular warped ego that was Dr. Cream, certainly mass murderers, and psychotic killers whose motives confound logic and prior detection, are still very much among us, and still far from understood.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

THE RIVERSIDE VILLAS MURDER by Kingsley Amis; Harcourt, Brace Jovanovich, 224 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Hugo Coutandin.

The author of "Lucky Jim," "The Green Man" and "Girl, 20" has herewith crafted a classic, perhaps "old fashioned" armchair mystery with bloody misdeeds, false leads, a sophisticated detective and a 14-year-old hero who experiments in onanism, experiences murder, heterosexual awakening and the accusation that his father is a murderer — in that order.

Kingsley Amis describes the 1930s in England in a way that is probably nostalgic to someone that experienced those years in that place. To someone who did not, the background appears authentic.

Characterization is fairly strong but again best judged by someone more familiar with the models that undoubtedly exist.

Amis has not written for the lucrative American market as many English writers do. This novel can be enjoyed in a probably diminished form by those of us who may not recognize all of the allusions.

Senator Ervin On Free Speech

"I think elected officials of the government have the same freedom of speech as anyone else. After listening to an anti-war group for two hours and then hearing them tell me they were very offended by some speeches of Vice President Agnew, I told them that I also extended to Vice President Agnew the right of freedom of speech. I would like to point out that the Founding Fathers were not wise enough to devise any method in which freedom of speech was given to wise men only." Sen. Of Creatures That Dwell — And Feed— Beneath The Sea

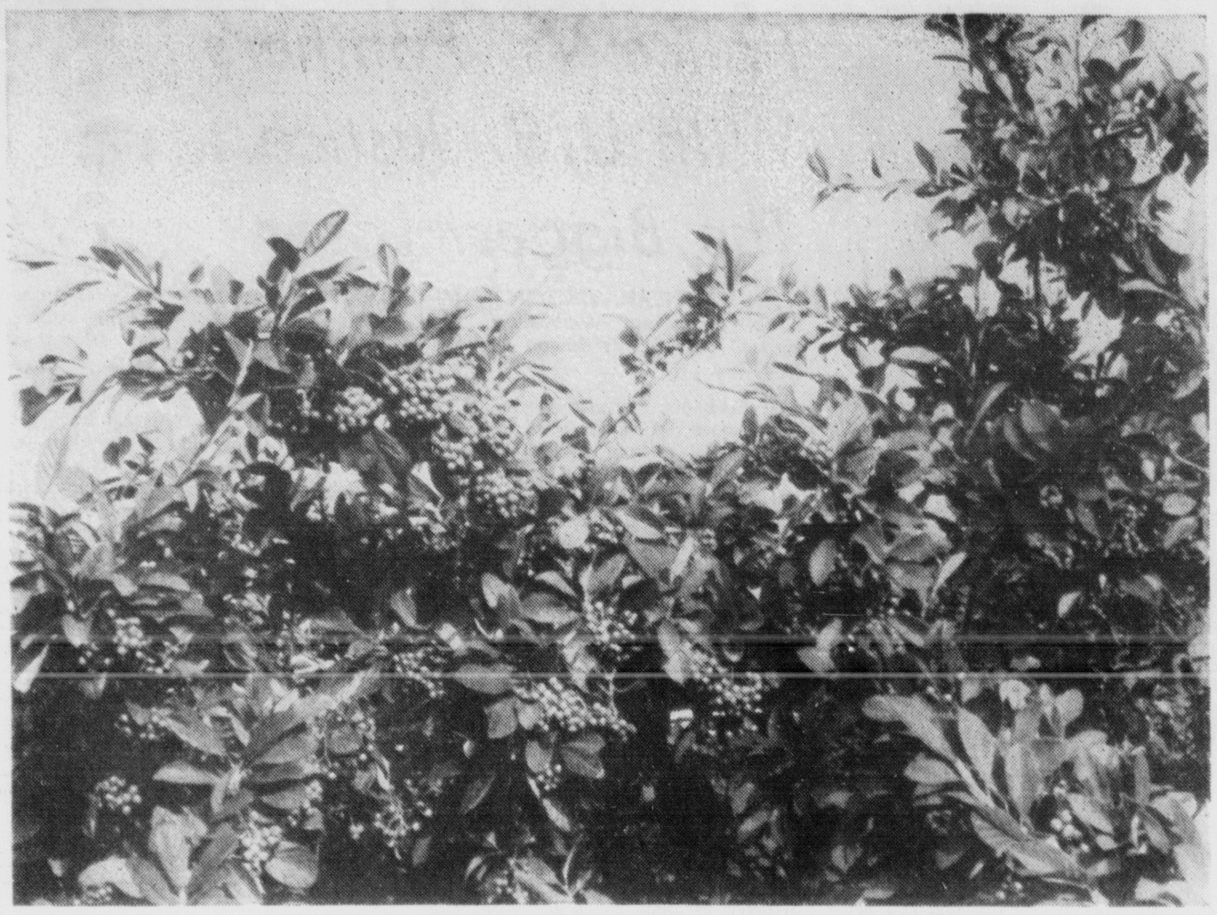
SHARKS AND RAYS by Spencer Wilkie Tinker and Charles J. DeLuca; Charles E. Tuttle Co., 80 pages, $7.25. Reviewed by Richard B. Lyttle.

This guide with clear drawings and lucid descriptions will serve marine scholars and fishermen well in identifying some of the oldest sea animals.

Some of these sharks and rays have remained relatively unchanged for millions of years. Some are edible, and some are valued for their oil or skins.

Tinker, past curator, and DeLuca, present curator of the Waikiki Aquarium, concentrate naturally on the Central Pacific, but many of the creatures they describe also live in California waters. Happily, the authors go light on scientific terms. They want a wide audience and seem to respect their readers, but the last paragraph in the dustjacket blurb jolts. It reads:

"Sharks and rays consume all kinds of fish, but are also known to devour birds, turtles, domestic animals, man and other garbage."



THE GRAY-LEAFED CONTONEASTER is a hardy, handsome addition to any landscape, ana produces an abundance of attractive red berries. It features, too, gracefully arching branches and a soft gray-green foliage born on a good-sized, sturdy shrub. The berries remain throughout the cool weather months.

For That Real Feeling Of Autumn, Berried Shrubs Are What You Need

With autumn upon us, fall color is also just around the corner.

Hybrid liquidambars, locust, ginkgo and Chinese pistache are but a few trees whose fall foliage coats add brilliant splashes to the neighborhood. Such shrubs as heavenly bamboo and Oregon grape are landscape favorites and color-up beautifully.

As important as any of the foliage choices are the berried shrubs. You needn't look far to see how Californians rely on these berries for fall color. You find them in gardens throughout the state.

And, at after game parties and holiday gatherings, they serve as colorful, unique decorations.

CALIFORNIA'S toyon, cotoneasters, holly varieties and myriad pyracantha forms all produce a bounty of berries.

A good approach is to check nurseries in the coming weeks. Container plants will be in full berry and you can choose at will.

The toyon features handsome, textured foliage. The red berries are as traditional as the holiday season. The plant requires little care and resents too much attention, making it an ideal selection at the far reaches of the garden.

Grayleaf cotoneaster (kuh-tony-aster) has plump reddish berries that adorn graceful branches of soft, appealing foliage. It blends into existing garden schemes and needs room in which to spread its beauty. The berries remain all winter — unless picked by birds.

FOR VARIETY in berry color, size and quantity, pyracantha is unequalled. Nurseries have pyracanthas as shrubby specimens or on stakes, and pre-started on trellises as espaliers. Prostrate forms of pyracanthas and cotoneasters also make handsome groundcovers and berry freely.

Don't overlook the holly varieties offered by your garden center for our local conditions. In addition to their versatility in the landscape, they're the berries.

Cascades Of Beauty Add Colorful Touches To Your Patio And Yard

By EARL ARONSON

Hanging baskets with foliage plants or with colorful blooms have increased in popularity in recent years. They add touches of color or greenery to porches, patios, balconies and outdoor areas.

Indoors, you can hang them near windows if you have no space for a plant stand or no adequate size sills.

CONTAINERS ARE available in a number of types — solid, mesh or wire — or you may fashion them yourself by attaching wire, chain or rope to ordinary red clay or fancy containers. Indoors, solid type containers will help keep pots from dripping onto floors or furniture. Outdoors, mesh or screen types are most suitable to help plants drain.

If you use solid-wall baskets, put coarse gravel or broken pottery in the bottom beneath the soil. If you use mesh baskets, line the side with burlap, sphagnum moss, plastic, leaves or some other material that will contain soil.

Soil for a hanging basket should be high in organic matter. To regular garden soil add an equal amount of peat moss or leaf mold. To each gallon of mix add a tablespoon of limestone and a teaspoon of garden fertilizer. Recommended mixture is 12-12-12. Mix it all up and fill the container.

Soil sold for potting house plants also is good and you won't have to add organic matter.

WHAT KIND OF plants are best for hanging baskets?

Those with cascading or vining growth habits. Where the basket will be in the shade, try grape, English or Swedish (Plectranthus) ivy, trandescantia (Wandering Jew). Where some light is available flowering plants are suitable. These include impatiens (Sultana), begonia and fuchsia, alone or in combination with foliage plants.

Where there is good sun, petunias of the Cascade varieties — they have big, bright flowers — are very effective. Other items include geraniums, especially the ivy type, lantana, verbena and black-eyed Susan vine.

The Garden Spotlight of the University of Missouri suggests that even vegetable plants may be used, including sweet potato, green beans or miniature tomatoes.

DON'T CROWD PLANTS in the hanging baskets. Three to four plants generally are enough for a 10-inch hanging basket.

Creeping juniper, such as Bar Harbor or Blue Rug, may be used for a more permanent basket that may be left outdoors most of the year. But it will have to be protectd during severe winter weather.

Hanging baskets dry quickly outdoors, so check them daily to make sure you keep them moist. Fertilize every few weeks with a water soluble or liquid fertilizer recommended for house plants.

It Is Planting Time Now For Some Early-Bird Bulbs

It's time to plant bulbs. This isn't to suggest that you hurry to the nursery to select the traditional fall bulbs.

Daffodils, Tulips, Hyacinths, and the like, will be available in a few weeks, but be advised, and aware, that there are some source of outstanding color available from certain bulbs. And, these bulbs should be planted right away, advises the California Association of Nurserymen.

Some of the bulbs for early planting have a short period of dormancy, so planting should take place before the customary fall planting season. Most prominent among these are the Bearded Iris, whose bulbs are properly called rhizomes. It is among the showiest of the large tribe of Iris, available in a wide range of colors and cherished as both a garden and a cutflower.

SPIDER LILY bulbs are available for immediate planting. The individual blooms are exquisite — you can enjoy flowers in red, pink and yellow. The amaryllis-like bulb produces blooms almost immediately, after planting.

As curious as it is beautiful is Colchicum. Its popular name is Summer Crocus because of the shape of its lavender blue flowers, which arise before the foliage appears.

More unusual is the fact that the bulbs will bloom indoors without soil or water. Merely place the bulbs in the home where there is a good deal of available light; watch the large flowers pop into bloom — in a very short time. A fun project for the youngsters is to "grow" Colchicum indoors — and in the garden.

STAR OF BETHLEHEM (Ornitholgalum) and Snowflake (Leucojum), two time honored performers, are available for planting this month, as are bulbs of Sparaxis. The two-inch Sparaxis blooms are distinguished by bright yellow throats and a three-cornered black spot near the base of each petal.

Hybrids produce color in shades of red, yellow, blue, purple, mauve, white and pastel shades, as well.

Fragrant Freesias should be set out now; shopping early lets you obtain separate colors you desire: from white to pink, red, bronze, gold, yellow, to blends of lilac, mauve, purple and blue.

Freesias naturalize in the garden, producing more flowers each year. In some older gardens in Pasadena, for instance, there are masses of Freesias that were planted over 25 years ago.

How Long The Post?

Determine post length by fence height. Posts should be sunk two feet for fences five feet or less, two and a half feet for six feet, three and a half feet for eight feet.

For A Garden With Country Look, Turn To Wildflowers

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

No matter where you live — in a city, or a suburb, seashore or a farmhouse — if you love the country you probably want to grow some wild flowers on your place.

To do this successfully means that you will give them so far as possible the conditions they are used to; and what with today's emphasis on saving the natural environment, learning to do this seems especially worthwhile.

Then again, the wildflowers you have known and loved as a child and on country walks through the years, urge you to grow them where you can see them and know they will be protected.

On my New England suburban acres growing wildflowers began when a so-called development was started in fields and woods at the foot of our hill.

WILD ROSES CRYING out to be saved lined the road. Wild blueberries, evening primroses, wood anemones, black-eyed Susans, wild geraniums, purple New England asters, Michelmas daisies, and in a patch of woodland pink lady's slippers were all bound to be bulldozed out of existence.

I went to work transplanting all I could make room for.

Since coming to Ohio, with a town garden, snow-on-the-mountain, Bishop's weed, daisies, Queen's Anne's lace, goldenrod, chicory, tansy, and several other pretty "weeds" have been transplanted from vacant lots into a small "wild garden" to save them from the builders.

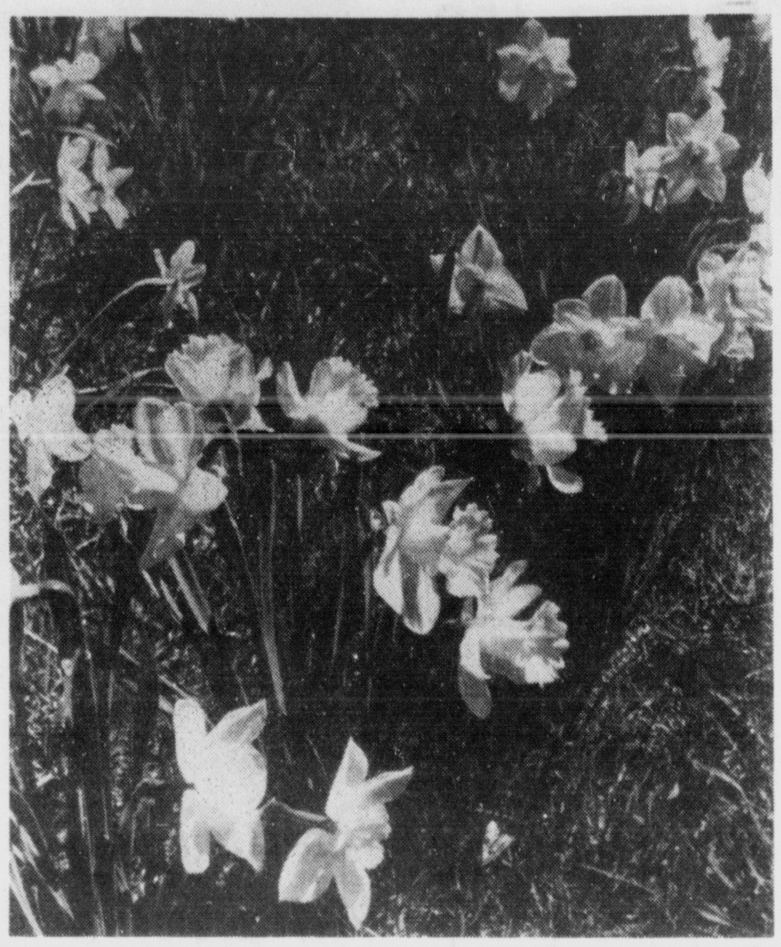
If you have a piece of open woodland you are fortunate. You can save those lady's slippers that may be slated for destruction. You can grow solomon's seal, wild geranium, bunchberry, bloodroot, jack-in-the-pulpit, hepatica, trillium, bolumbine, wood anemone, partridge berry, wintergreen and blue phlox.

IT MAKES A good place for naturalizing spring-flowering bulbs, too.

The bulb nurseries offer inexpensive daffodil collections for naturalizing. Plant them in drifts, and also some of the lesser bulbs — grape hyacinths, fritillaria (guinea hen flower), scillas, snowdrops. If you make a wandering path of shredded bark through the bit of woodland you can "go walkabout" to enjoy their wild beauty.

In transplanting wildflowers from an area that will not be destroyed by "developments" be sure you know which kinds are not allowed to be taken on account of being endangered species. Trailing arbutus is one of these. Your regional botanical garden can give you a list. There are nurseries specializing in wildflowers where you can purchase the protected kinds you particularly love.

A wildflower garden in a section of shady border — even in a city backyard — is a restful spot and can help satisfy one's urge to reproduce a natural woodsy environment.



IT WILL SOON BE daffodil-bulb planting time in Marin County, and they are lovely components of the natural garden featuring transplanted wildflowers. Daffodils are most effective when planted in drifts, as has been done here.

STARTING WITH some of the ferns (in damp, peaty soil) one can add shade-loving sweet white violets, painted trilliums, trout lilies, wild ginger, and from local garden centers even Virginia bluebells, astilbe, and bleeding-heart.

Those beautiful purple New England asters like full sun. I transplanted mine from a vacant lot that was rather moist. They thrived on my open hillside, but I fed and watered them.

Golden rod thrived there too, and I discovered that I had several varieties. A cultivated goldenrod is in American nursery catalogs now.

Blue-eyed grass, buttercups, daisies, harbells, butter-and-eggs, wild strawberries, and Indian paint-brush were among other wildflowers grown in that hillside "field," along with black-eyed Susans, mullein, chicory and Queen Anne's lace.

A STAND OF tiger lilies was cherished elsewhere on the place. The roadside Canada lily can be grown in full sun, also.

A recent book, "Growing Wild Flowers,

a Gardener's Guide," by Marie Sparka (Harper and Row, $8.95), is particularly valuable for its help on soil preparation and its lists of wildflowers for different locations and soils.

The major portion of the book, illustrated by drawings, describes each wildflower, its soil and location needs, planting times, period of bloom, etc.

While most of the complete garden books include a chapter on wildflower gardening, this volume seems to leave unanswered no questions that the home owner wishing to go into the subject more fully can ask. It's worth owning or giving to your public library or garden-club collection.

Keep A Watch On Your Dichondra

These are days to keep a close watch on your dichondra lawn. The reason: the dichondra flea beetle.

This insect by no means attacks all dichondra lawns. Infestations seem to be rather spotty by area. But the beetle can cause real havoc within a few days to those lawns that do come under its attack.

How do you know you have dichondra beetles?

Not by sight. The beetles are only about pinhead-sized. The best trick seems to be place a sheet of white paper on the dichondra and run your hand across the leaves. The tiny, shiny black beetles usually will hop onto the paper where they can be seen. You can probably accomplish the same trick with white shoes.

It's important to identify the beetle because its damage easily can be confused with many other problems — such as lack of water, fertilizer burn or fungus. And if the dichondra is being treated to correct one of these problems, obviously the beetle keeps right on doing it destructive work.

The beetle works its way across dichondra leaves, gnawing out the soft tissue. The leaves eventually wither and turn brown. What these adult beetles do is bad enough. But while this is going on, the young beetle larvae, or grubs, are chewing on dichondra's roots, cutting off the supply of food and water. In fact, it is now believed that the larvae are the worst cripplers.

Fortunately, dichondra flea beetles are easy to kill with several different insecticides available through retail nurseries. Two applications are needed, one for the initial beetle kill and another within a month to catch later-developing beetles.

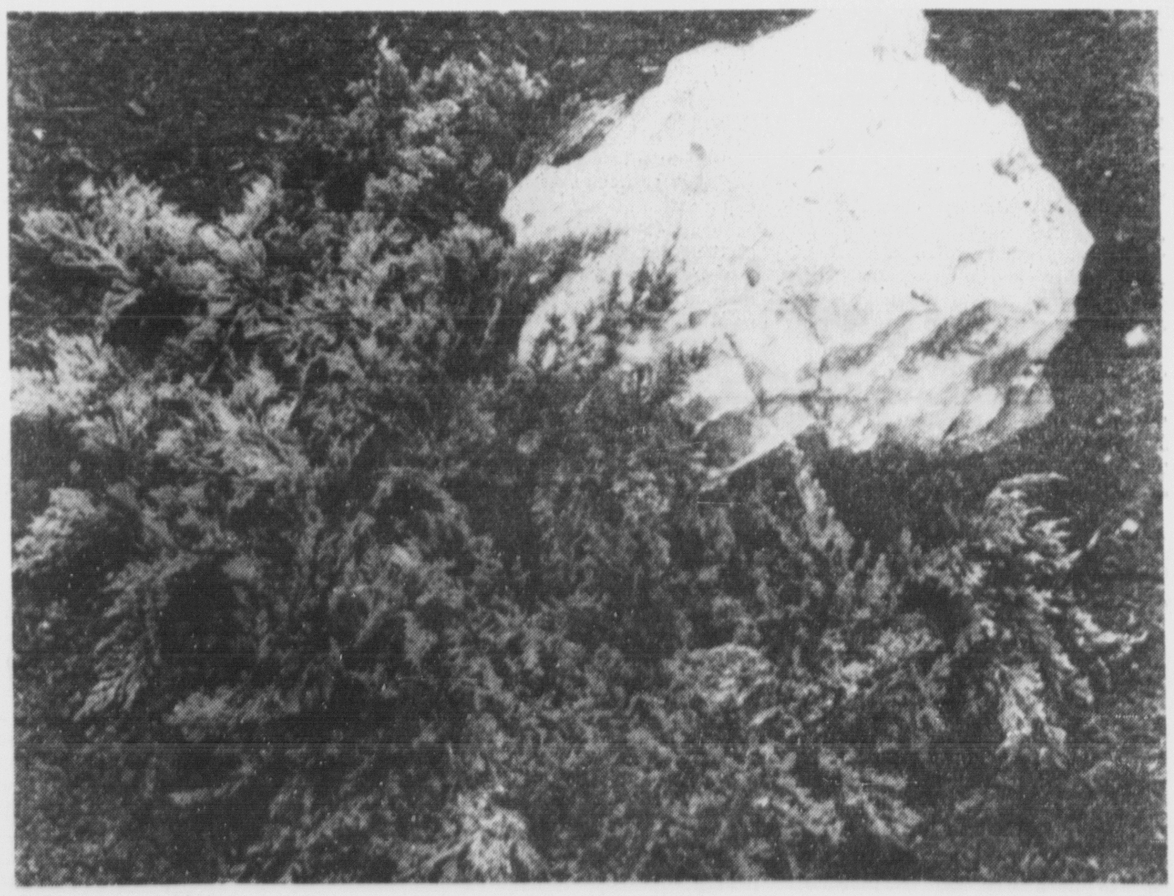
Important point: keep a close watch on your dichondra lawn, particularly during hot weather when dichondra beetle damage can become severe within just a few days. If beetles are detected, treat for them promptly.

A CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Hurry to plant winter sweetpeas for their color at Christmas time.
- As soon as the cool season annuals become available in nurseries, set out the transplants into the garden. The flowers will provide a continuous color show into spring and early summer.
- Bulbs have arrived in local nurseries; shop while the selections are at their best. Ranunculus and anemones will provide early spring bloom.
- Feed lawns regularly to keep them green, healthy and disease resistant. Maintain a regular, thorough watering schedule.
- Keep roses well watered and keep cutting back faded blooms. A feeding is in order if it has been 30 days since the last time. Remember, roses in late fall depend on the care the plants receive now.
- Cool weather vegetables now or soon to become available at your nursery in flats for transplanting include broccoli, cauliflower, lettuce, cabbage and Brussels sprouts. And in seeds, beets, carrots, radishes and turnips. All grow well in California.

A CARPET FOR YOUR GARDEN



FALL IS PRIME planting time in Marin — an excellent season for revising your landscape. Low-growing junipers, such as the Wilton Carpet pictured here, will give your garden or yard a fresh new look. It literally carpets the ground with a beautifully textured silver-blue foliage.

Colombia's 'Emerald Coast' Looms As The New Riviera

By JIM SANDERS

Colombia's 1,000-mile long coastline on the Caribbean, popularly known as the Emerald Coast, is scheduled to become the "Riviera of Northern South America" in a few years, as government and private enterprise pour millions of dollars and pesos to create the necessary infrastructure for one of the world's most exciting new resort complexes.

All this booming activity centers around Santa Marta, the oldest city in South America (founded in 1525), and its magnificent Sierra Nevada: a 500-square mile mountain range, isolated on the northeast of Colombia between the Magdalena River and the jutting peninsula of La Guajira, which boasts the highest snow-covered peaks in northern South America, called Colon and Bolivar (12,300 feet high).

Do you long nostalgically for Acapulco as it was 25 years ago? Do you want to enjoy the Emerald Coast before the mobs arrive and the prices are still the lowest in the Hemisphere?

Then Santa Marta is the right place at the right time for you.

THERE ARE THREE important resort complexes either being built or enlarged in the Santa Marta area — El Galeon, Inca-Inca and Irotama. Of the three, only Irotama is now in operation with 200 rooms in homey, comfortable bungalows on the beach and yet surrounded by lush tropical foliage. Daybreak at the Irotama is an unforgettable musical happening as literally hundreds of birds chirp, tweet, twitter and sing away (Colombia has the world's largest number of species of birds).

"This place was built for absolute rest, for relaxed bungalow living," explains Hector Diaz, Irotama's genial owner and host, who pioneered 10 years ago with six bungalows and is now expanding his resort to 1,000 rooms. The food here is excellent, averaging $2 a meal.

El Galeon, also on the beach not far from Santa Marta's International Airport, will be opened in December with 250 rooms and a poolside bar built like a Spanish galleon. This resort is introducing the novel system of "apart-hotel" by which guests reserve the right of a two-week vacation during a 10 year period at family rates as low as $2.50 per day per season.

ALL THESE developments are great for those who want resort living at low prices. But Santa Marta has a special lure for those of us who still want a touch of adventure in our travel. This great magnet is the Sierra Nevada itself.

Only about one third of its mountains and valleys have been explored. Besides snow-capped mountains, multi-colored lakes, and crystal-clear rivers descending into the sea through tropical forest, valleys, marshes and glades, the Sierra's highlands are still peopled with primitive tribes, among them the pygmy-like Koguis. It also holds vast undiscovered archeological treasures, mainly of the Tayrona civilization which once thrived in this area.

For hunters, the Sierra offers big game: tapir and capybara. Plus a whole gamut of feather hunting, featuring ducks, geese, pigeons and wild turkeys.

Fishermen can take their pick of the rivers (rich in tarpon, snook, corbina, mangrove snapper and crayfish), the ocean (billfish abound in the deep waters right off Santa Marta's lovely fjord-like bays), or the so-called Cienaga Grande or Big Lagoon, one of the world's largest natural fish hatcheries.

FOR THE MORE adventurous, there are new rivers and beaches to be discovered northeast of Santa Marta toward La Guajira, the desert-like peninsula still peopled by the Guajiros, one of the most intriguing native tribes of South America, who barter everything — including brides — for cattle and goats. For "instant Guajira," there is its capital of Riohacha, once sacked by Sir Francis Drake and now connected with Santa Marta by an excellent four-lane highway.

The three-hour drive from Santa Marta to Riohacha takes one through the lushest tropical beach and mountain scenery in South America.

Just one hour away from Santa Marta on this highway is Tayrona National Park, featuring Canaveral Beach, one of the most spectacular tropical beaches in the world, yet set against the backdrop of the Sierra's snow-covered mountains. At the mouths of the Buritaca and Mendiguaca Rivers, bathers can swim in the surf and then take a dip into the cool, clear waters of these lovely rivers.

For those daring visitors who may wish to trek into the Sierra or discover new hunting or fishing thrills, Capt. Francisco Ospina Navia will be an ideal guide. The captain has his charter fishing, snorkeling and safari business on Rodadero Beach (any cab driver will take you there from Irotama), and he has explored the Sierra on foot, horseback and helicopter and knows how to talk to the Koguis in their own language.

EVEN IF YOU are not safari-minded, the captain is worth knowing for the stories of his great exploits (like sailing on a Tayrona dugout canoe with a sail all the way from Santa Marta to Buenaventura on the Pacific Coast of Colombia via the Panama Canal).

For those who may want a happy medium between absolute relaxation and bold discovery, Santa Marta proper holds some interesting sightseeing — like its old Spanish mansions, which mark a vivid contrast with ultra-modern high-rises on Rodadero Beach, the old country estate of San Pedro Alejandrino, where Simon Bolivar, the liberator of five South American countries, died a broken man in 1830, and several coffee-growing haciendas on the foothills of the Sierra Nevada.

Also, there's a scenic nine-hole golf course just five minutes away by car from the Irotama.

For more information on Santa Marta and all of South America write to South American Travel Organization, 1699 Coral Way, Suite 308, Miami, Fla., 33145.

In France, American Tourists Have Learned To Eat As Truck Drivers Do

TRAVEL PAGE

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — It's a little restaurant in the east of Paris, the kind you might call a hole-in-the-wall, and it could be out of a French movie about truck drivers.

As a matter of fact, most of the customers are truck drivers. And outside the door hangs a red and blue sign that says, "Relais Routiers", or truck drivers' stop.

In this land of Maxim's and luxury champagne, the hottest type of restaurants this season for tourists have been the eateries rated by a special guidebook for truck drivers.

The 4,450 restaurants and inns around France carrying the sign "Relais Routiers" may not have fine white tablecloths or expensive brandy in the sauces, but they offer two advantages hard to find in France — low prices for tourists plagued with inflation or devalued dollars and a friendly, old-fashioned French atmosphere.

Out in front of "Au Rendezvous des Routiers," Truck Drivers Rendezvous, on Rue Beaubourg in the east of Paris one recent day, diners swigged wine at little outdoor tables and an old fellow played an accordion.

Inside, a man at the bar, stripped to the waist, roared with laughter as he told a joke to the bartender in his big, blue apron. Hefty waitresses twirled among the tables with remarks to the eaters that indicated they had known each other for years.

That day you could have a hardboiled egg, nicely presented on lettuce with a vinegar sauce and chopped parsley, as a starter. Then came tender, juicy, roasted chicken with a heap of watercress on the side. Dessert was a bowl of chopped fresh fruit, or you could have cheese.

All that, including a quarter of a bottle of red wine and the tip, was exactly eight francs, or $1.90.

The same simple meal in a more elegant restaurant in a plush neighborhood would come to more than double that price.

What is even more attractive to some tourists, a customer in a truck drivers' stop is not likely to tangle with unfriendly French. Foreign tourists who are lost or have flat tires are helped by the truck driver customers.

"Everybody who comes here knows each other. It has a family atmosphere", said one customer at the truck drivers' hangout on the Rue Beaubourg.

The "Routiers" system is not new. It celebrates its 40th anniversary next year. The truck drivers' restaurant organization was started in 1934 by a Paris sports writer who thought roadside eating places and hotels should be organized for drivers who make long hauls at night.

For years the Routiers' Restaurant and Hotel Guidebook was published only for truck drivers. Only since 1968 has it been sold to the public. And this tourist season it "took off" as a wild success for bargain meals because of inflation and tourists suffering from dollar devaluations.

The editor of the Routiers 350-page restaurant guide, Thierry de Saulieu, son of the sportswriter founder of the Routiers organization, said "many tourists say they travel quickly through France because it is so expensive. We often see foreign tourists eating sandwiches in their cars by the road. The truck drivers' stops are a better solution."

Truck drivers themselves serve as inspectors for the restaurants. The rule is a restaurant has to serve a good meal costing no more than between eight and 14 francs, and offer a warm welcome.

The 13 franc meals often take off on flights of gastronomic splendor. The Du Coq Bressn, a truck drivers' restaurant in the village of Piolliat, serves a chicken souffle. Le Bau Site on a highway near Paris offers lobster quenelles patties of chopped lobster and omelettes with mushrooms, food of a sort that can be commanded at a three-star food place in Paris.

The Paris newspaper France Soir calls the truck drivers' stops "the last authentic bistros of France." Even Brigitte Bardot has her favorite truck drivers' stop near Aix-en-Provence.

The only sad note as you eat your eight franc feast is in remembering what the price was a few years ago when it was three francs, or just 60 cents American.

World's Safari Capital Still Caters To Tourism

By RAYMOND WILKINSON

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The view from a Nairobi rooftop is like no other in the world.

On a clear day the spectator can spot a giraffe striding across the Athi plains or pick out through binoculars a herd of grazing Thomson's Gazelle.

In the tree-lined street below, an occasional Masai warrior adorned in red cloak and brightly-colored beads and bracelets rubs shoulders with a well-heeled American tourist in his safari outfit.

NAIROBI WAS founded near the turn of the century as an engineering workshop on the Uganda railroad but has blossomed into the safari capital of the world. It is a city of gleaming highrise offices, uncluttered roads where traffic jams are rare and gracious suburban homes.

About $500 a month fetches a four-bedroom home, three-acre garden with swimming pool and two servants.

It is difficult to escape Nairobi's British past and its current preoccupation with tourism.

Old colonials still sip their pink gins on the verandah of the Norfolk Hotel, where big game hunters once brought their tame cheetahs. Tourists at the next table plan tomorrow's trip to Tsavo Game Park. An 18-day tour from the United States is $1,400 inclusive or, if you actually want to shoot a lion, $210 a day.

BRITISH-EDUCATED Kenyans throw darts in the Intercontinental's Tavern Bar.

Life is not without its hazards in this physical paradise just below the equator. One housewife recently found a deadly puff adder slithering near her doorstep and another was hospitalized with malaria.

A resident can sometimes see snow-capped Mount Kenya, but he probably has to look through the iron grill installed in most homes to deter housebreakers.

Even bars don't deter ssme ingenious Nairobi thieves. One American recently awoke during the night to see his shirt disappearing through the open window on the end of a fishing line.

ANTICOLONIAL feelings still bubble below the surface, but for the moment most of the Africans' wrath is directed against Kenya's non-citizen Asians.

Unlike in neighboring Uganda, however, the Asians are staging an orderly retreat, slowly pulling down the signs over their shops in Bazaar Street and Government Road.

Things are getting tougher for foreigners generally.

Income tax, currently 35 per cent for an unmarried foreigner, continues to soar.

There are few good restaurants, cinemas or nightclubs, prompting one resident to declare: "Why couldn't this place have been colonized by the French or the Italians?"

Close-To-Home Places To Take The Youngsters

"Places to Go with Children in Northern California" by Elizabeth Pomada is a $2.95 softcover book loaded with suggestions for close-to-home outings for the family, with special thought for the youngsters.

By way of example, in Marin County the author's proposals include the Corps of Engineers scale model of San Francisco Bay in Sausalito, the Marin French Cheese Factory, the Marin County Historical Society Museum, Audubon Canyon Ranch and (for eating) Mill Valley's Fondue Pot.

In San Francisco the suggestions range from the Japan Center to a fortune cookie factory, and for eating from the Hippo and its hamburgers to the Shandygaff and its natural foods.

In Salinas, there's the Peter Paul candy factory. In Los Altos, the Foothills College Planetarium and Observatory. In Sacramento, Fairytale Town. In Duncan Mills, the Depot Museum. And so on.

In other words, a lot of suggestions are to be found in this Chronicle Books-published guide. And to support each idea, the author provides sufficient information to permit parent and offspring to reach an advance decision as to whether it is the kind of adventure they are seeking on any given day. It must be admitted that some of the recommendations for eating places are strange. The Marrakech in San Francisco for children??? M.K.

Things To Stow In The Medical Kit For Travel

If you like to run barefoot across wooden floors, pack a pair of tweezers in your travel medical kit. They will be handy for removing splinters.

This is one way of stressing what American Automobile Association travel counselors advise — pack in your personal medical kit those items which most closely fit your own needs.

A standard first aid kit is a wise thing to carry in your car or flight bag. Small, compact kits usually contain such standard items as an assortment of bandages, iodine or other disinfectant, ammonia ampules, adhesive tape and cotton.

In addition, the association recommends that you stow:

Aspirin for easing the pain of headaches, backaches and toothaches. Such things can strike as easily in your travels as at home, and strenuous sightseeing can bring on headaches, backache and muscular soreness.

An antacid — either simple baking soda or one of the commercial preparations in powder, liquid or tablet form.

The aforementioned tweezers. These also are handy for use with a ball of cotton in cleansing small wounds.

A small pencil-style flashlight. It can help to pinpoint such irritating things as a loose eyelash or other foreign object in the eye. And again, it can help pinpoint that pesky splinter.

Antihistamines — these can be a help in the relief of allergies, itching and the symptoms of the common cold.

Paregorie — this is an old-fashioned but effective remedy that can be a distinct help in relief of abdominal cramps, an unhappy side-effect of diarrhea, which affects some travelers unaccustomed to strange hours, foods and liquids. Severe cases of dysentery, however, should get the prompt attention of a physician.

Motion sickness has become far less of a problem in an age of stabilized ships and high-altitude jets, but for those still affected, there are many products available which not only help ease motion sickness, but help prevent it.

The items you pack in your personal medical kit will depend somewhat, of course, on where you intend to travel and how. A three-week backpacking trip in the wilds will call for a different medical kit than a three-week trip to New York or London.

The association stresses that before you pack your medical kit, you should consult your family physician.

Finally, the sports machine with seating for four. The hand-finished Mercedes-Benz 450SLC. Just to see it is worth the trip.

Only 2000 of them will be imported this year. But then, that's no more than you'd expect with a lovingly engineered, hand-finished sports machine like the Mercedes-Benz 450SLC.

Obviously, the 450SLC is no ordinary sporting automobile. It seats four, not the usual two. Lush leather interior is standard. So are the 4.5-liter, fuel-injected overhead-cam V-8 engine, 4-wheel disc brakes and a fully independent suspension system...a combination that gives you true sports car handling, braking and performance and luxurious 4-seater comfort and ride.

The 450SLC is a remarkable achievement, even for the engineers of Mercedes-Benz. In it, they've created a truly extraordinary machine.

There are few things in life quite like the Mercedes-Benz 450SLC. Yet it's surprisingly easy to experience. Call us. You'll see just how easy it is to arrange a test drive.

For Privacy, A Good Neighbor Fence

Some misgivings about fences may persist with those who cling to the frontier spirit of wide open spaces and no lot lines. But for many others, a "good neighbor" fence is the key to complete, undisturbed enjoyment of their small plot of land.

What good is a pleasant yard surrounding the house if it goes unused due to lack of privacy?

HOMES PAGE

When families notice their outdoor activities are stilted because of what the people next door are doing, it's time to consider a "good neighbor" fence.

SUCH A FENCE gained privacy for one family's swimming pool set in a large back yard on a sloping lot next to a busy street.

Meeting the qualifications of a good neighbor, the fence is as attractive on one side as the other. It's built of one-by-10-inch western wood boards, slightly spaced for a pleasing vertical pattern and air circulation.

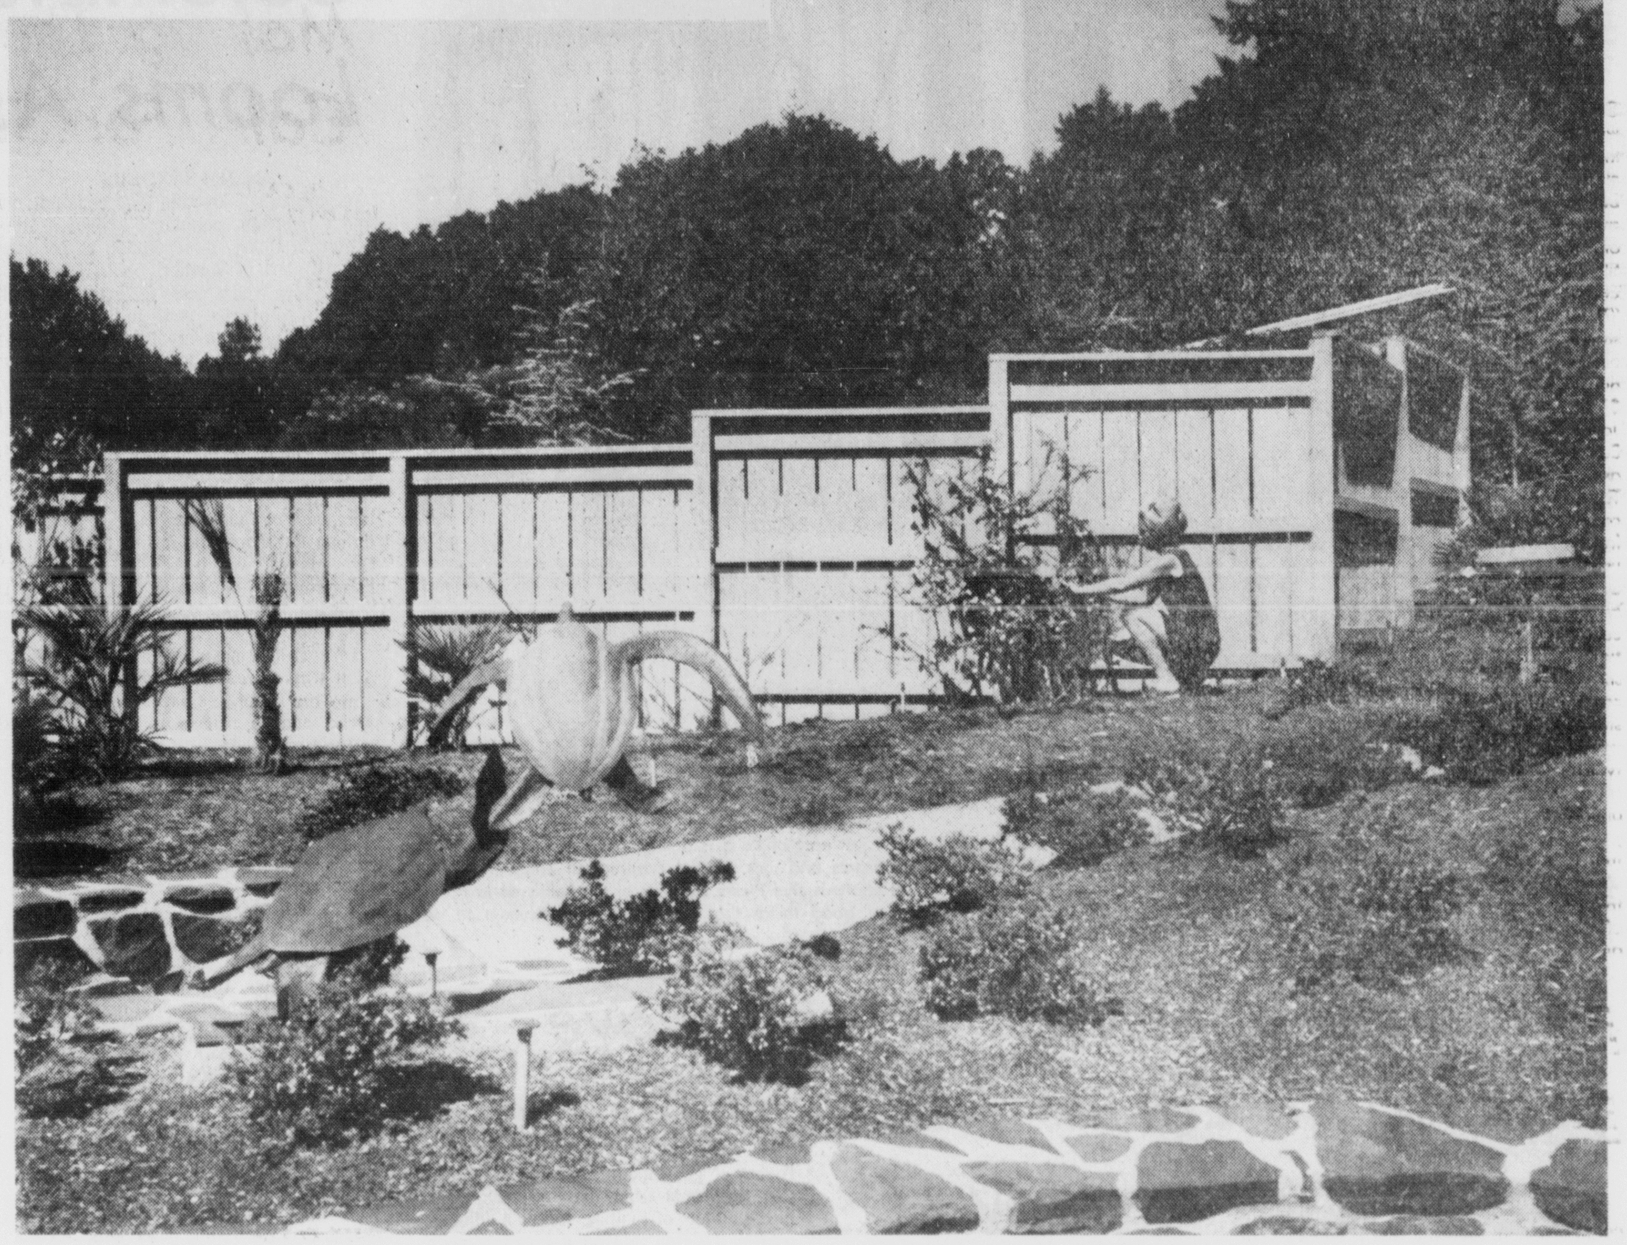
The boards are face-nailed to three two-by-four inch stringers, set on four-by-four inch posts spaced six feet apart. The fence steps down the lot in sections from the house.

A pool house, sided with one-by-four-inch cedar boards, and the fence are stained light grey to keep them an understated part of the landscaping.

THE FENCE OFFERS a soft, neutral backdrop for shrubs and provides a wind buffer for the pool. When fences and shrubs are combined, good circulation is important so seasonal pockets of hot or cold air don't develop.

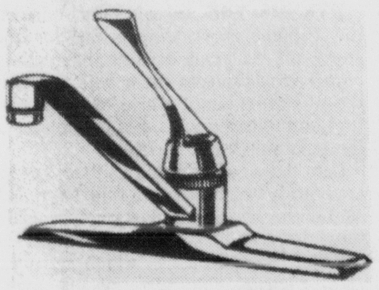
Plantings at the base will visually reduce the height of a fence. Pattern can be added with a tracery of vines, such as jasmine and colorful clematis, or an espaliered shrub or tree.

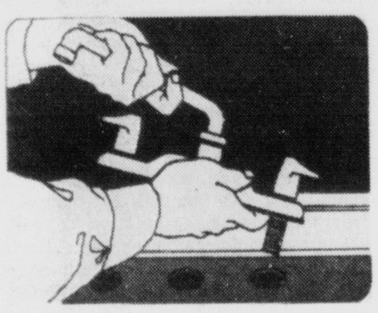
Fence builders will find western woods such as Douglas fir, western pine, hemlock, redwood and cedar are easy to work with and will accept any finish easily. Wood that is set into or on the ground should be preservative-treated.

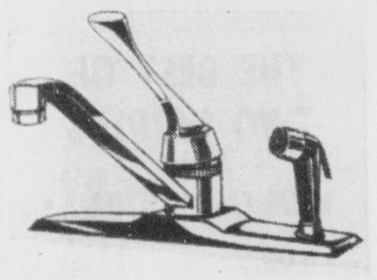


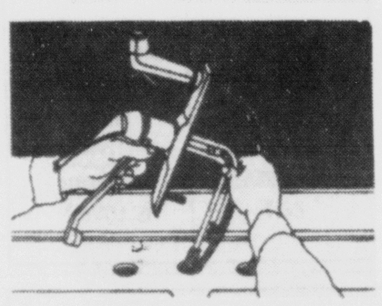
A HANDSOME PRIVACY FENCE that steps down a sloping lot away from the house provides a backdrop for plantings. It is built of one-by-10-inch boards on three two-by-four-inch stringers with fou-by-four-inch posts. A slight spacing of the boards permits the circulation of air and softens the design. Metal sculpture of turtles adds a whimsical touch to the walk to the pool.

FIXING FIXTURES









NO PROBLEM confronts home owners ore often than plumbing repairs. And these can be very costly. Often, with a little expert advice, the handyman or housewife can accomplish the repairs without calling in a professional. Donald R. Brann offers that advice in a revised edition of his book, "Plumbing Repairs Simplified," For it, send $2.50 to Directions Simplified, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., and ask for Book 675 "Plumbing Repairs Simplified." In 160 pages with many illustrations, it covers all the common plumbing problems.

How To Build Your Furniture

If you are reasonably skilled in the use of hammer, nails and saw, you can turn out well-designed, beautifully-crafted furniture pieces for your home.

So insist Jay W. Hedden and Monte Burch, editor and associate editor respectively of Workbench Magazine.

They tell you how in their $7.50 book, "Making Mediterranean Furniture," published by Arco Publishing Co., which is heavily involved in manuals for the home handyman.

Hedden and Burch offer designs and ideas adapted from classic Mediterranean pieces with directions, drawings and photographs to guide you through the projects. The range is from an occasional table, a curio shelf and a lamp to such more ambitious undertakings as bedroom furniture, a dining room ensemble and a living room sofa. The ever popular bar and gun cabinet are also included.

The co-authors say the projects can be accomplished with the tools ordinarily owned by a home handyman. D.K.

Making Of A Dream Workshop For A Handyman

A professional designer whose hobby is home crafts decided he wanted to put his hobby on an organized basis. So he modernized and equipped his basement workshop for efficient, pleasant working conditions, easy cleanup and hidden storage.

The ambitious project wasn't confined to adding a workbench.

It began with construction of storage cupboards on one wall; covering some overhead conduits; installing new lighting; providing next-to-wall narrow "closets" for out-of-season storage screens and storms; and paneling walls with prefinished hardboard panels.

THE PRINCIPAL workbench is a hobbyist's dream. A second one, surrounded by handsome woodgrained paneling, is the center for power tool work, with accessories handy on nearby shelves.

Recognizing the need for controlled storage in limited space, the hobbyist faced all wall cabinets with prefinished Masonite brand Peg-Board panels. The perforated hardboard was freely used behind and inside the principal workbench, as well.

His "multiple workbench" a center for power tool activity, was created from an old office desk.

Another feature of the workshop is a mobile cabinet on ball casters that serves as a hideaway for a roll-in table saw on a mobile stand; the upper shelf holds laundry supplies. Another "roll-around cabinet" mounts a radial arm saw.

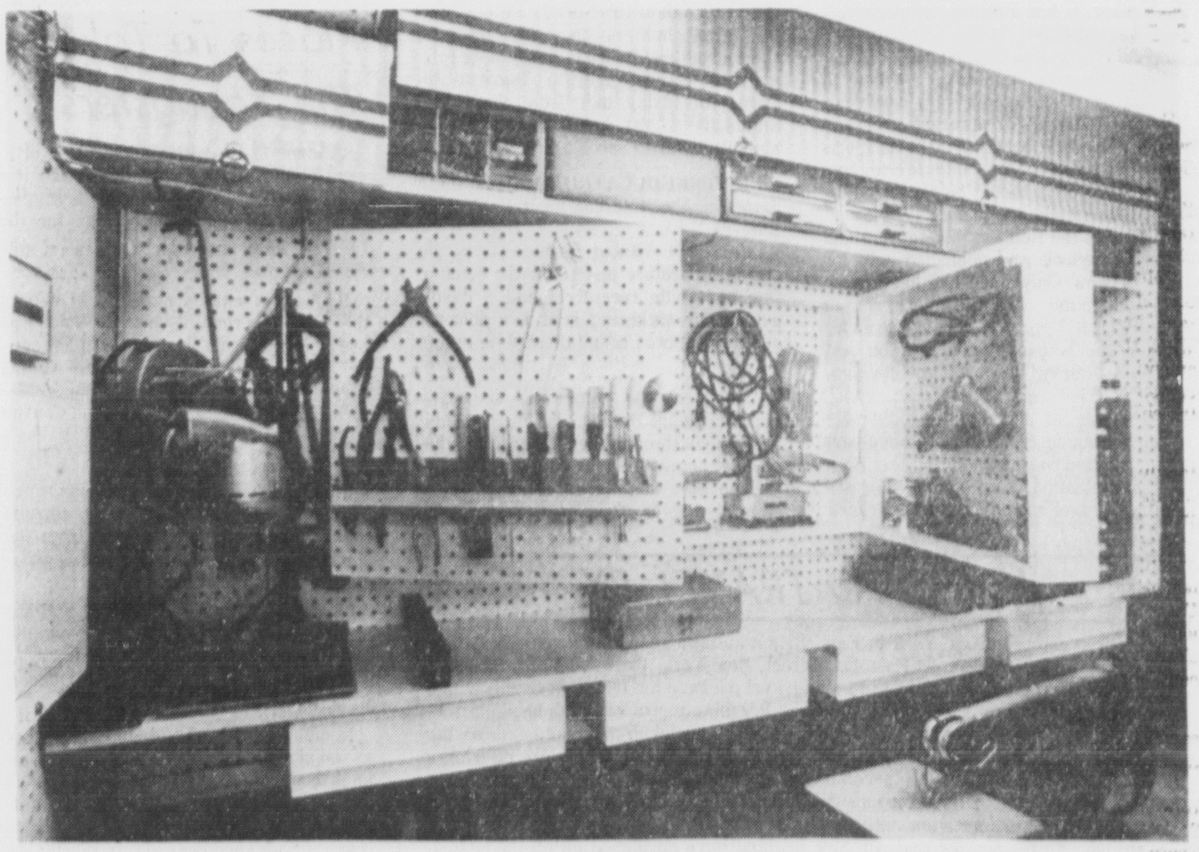
SINCE THE basement also houses laundry facilities, the couple included a stripped vinyl shade on a roller to pull down at the back of the larger workbench, converting the surface to a clothes folding center.

Fluorescent fixtures put light in strategic locations, and a handy reel with a 20-foot extension cord hangs from the center of an I-beam for use with hand power tools at main workbench. Electric cord thus is kept safely out of the way when hand power saws are used.

The heating area is fronted by two large, heavy-duty Peg-Board doors.

Backed with an activated charcoal filter, an electronic filter eliminates dust, sawdust and paint odors throughout the house.

AN OLD OFFICE DESK has become the nucleus of the power tool center in this handyman's workshop. A plywood bottom and sliding doors of the newly-created lower cabinet, faced with Masonite paneling, are special features. The hobbyist drilled holes in the tempered hardboard working surface for more secure mounting for his tools, which operate via one "floating" motor that can be positioned anywhere.



A CLOSE-UP VIEW shows you the storage capacity of the eight-inch deep cabinet that is hung from a large panel of Masonite peg-board. Also suspended are shelves and drawers. The spacious cabinet was designed so half of the depth swings open as doors, allowing use of both interior walls plus the bottoms of each door for out-of-sight storage of small tools. Four plastic drawers were mounted under the bottom shelf.

Handy Divider Easily Made

Cluttered corners are a problem for any homemaker. It's not always convenient — or even desirable — to put away coffee cups, ironing or sewing at every interruption.

A portable room divider neatly screens these eyesores. Built in two-foot sections, it is versatile and easy to move.

Two-by-two inch boards form the vertical frame for each section. The screening is made of one-by-two inch boards, on edge, nailed to spacers, top and bottom.

Each section is held in place with either tension hardware or plastic-tipped dowels set on springs recessed in the two-by-two uprights.

Ornamental spacers may be added in any desired pattern. Western lumber is excellent for this type of project, such as ponderosa pine or hemlock.

ONE OF THOSE things that fit in perfectly with the current mood for nostalgia and mementoes of the past is the schoolhouse clock. Hard to find these days, of course. But you can build your own quite authentic-looking replica of that hallowed old timepiece with the help of a Steve Ellingson pattern. Pert actress Agenta Eckemyr from the cast of Disney Studio's "The Island at the Top of the World" is showing you just such a clock at right. Of course, teacher never looked like Agneta. But to get started on your clock, send $1.50 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Schoolhouse Clock Pattern 530. The pattern is full-size, and there are no complicated miters. The octagon is cut from a single piece of pine. The moldings used on the pendulum box are readily available from your lumber dealer. And Ellingson fixes the estimated time of construction from his easy-to-follow directions, supplemented by pictures, at about six hours. The clock operates with a cordless pendulum movement, powered by standard batteries. You can stain and varnish the clock to match the finish typical of yesteryear, or your contemporary furnishings. Or you may prefer to antique it. Once completed, you have yourself an attractive conversation piece that turns back the thinking to those "dear old golden rule days" when the clock in the principal's office or hallway marked off the recess or lunch hours, or, best of all, the end of the school day.

Project That Pays Off In Pleasure: Building Your Own Backyard Barbecue

By VIVIAN BROWN

If you are an outdoor barbecue buff consider building your own barbecue unit in the backyard.

One man built a makeshift one into an existing rock wall, another made a barbecue pit of rocks, and another had success with a brick unit built into the corner of his backyard. One big advantage is easy care. It may be washed by rain (or hosed) and dried by the sun.

IN THE WALL, enough rocks were scooped out so that the firepan could be balanced on rocks left below and a grill could be placed across the rocks. Flat rocks are needed on top to balance the grill. Or it can be inserted within rocks a half-foot or so below, this do-it-yourselfer advised.

(There should be at least six inches between coals and grill for healthful barbecuing, say experts. Eight inches may provide even better leeway).

Building a barbecue in the corner of one's yard can be a highly successful venture without too much strain on a do-it-yourselfer. If there are trees and bushes to provide a screen, so much the better.

You might decide to make a patio in the same area. One man built a large flagstone terrace stemming from the corner barbecue.

THE BARBECUE itself was makeshift. He had built up a lot of rocks in a carefully balanced circle and he had set a grill on top of the flat rocks, circling it with more rocks and a fire pan below.

To get away from the kibitzers, he said, he chose a spot screened by some evergreens. The place proved to be so attractive (and he felt so lonely cooking off there by himself) that he moved benches and chairs to the area, and soon put down slabs of concrete to make a patio. In good weather it is the family dining place.

One barbecue unit was spawned by bricks left over from another project. he man had planned to sell the several hundred or so bricks, but before he got around o it, he got the idea to use them for a barbecue.

HE MADE A firm base — you can't just put bricks into grass. For the base he dug out about three inches — or it could be deeper — put in a layer of gravel and poured concrete until it was level. Then he "bricked it," using bricks on three sides and inserting three levels of angle irons. The top one was to hold the grill, the second one the coals and the third was a spot pan.

His barbecue is a bit higher than he had wanted it.

He suggests locating grills before you begin the project. He didn't. He found one larger than the opening of the barbecue so he is using it across the top. The fire tray was made to fit.

The third area is used for something to be kept warm.

Most do-it-yourselfers must work in spare time and they are likely to work under pressure and to take short cuts that give their project an amateurish look. They work in a frenzy to complete the project within a short time.

WHEN YOU WORK with mortar, you must be sure of what you are doing, this do-it-yourselfer advises. He suggests putting the project on paper and doing it carefully. You will not be so tempted to complete it at once if you are committed to the paper. You will know where you are going when you resume and the sense of urgency will be diminished.

For example, in a hastily contrived do-it-yourself project one man made such a tall barbecue unit of cinder blocks that it is an eyesore.

On the other hand you don't want to make it so low that you must squat to use it. Then, too, you will not want to leave food on the grill to grow cold if it is low. Some animals can literally "inhale" a piece of warm meat as they walk by a grill or table, or anything else their mouths can reach.

Why We Bleach Wood — And How To Go About It

By GEORGE MONTGOMERY

They're making it easier all the time.

When I remember how much time I use to spend making my own bleaching solutions for wood, I realize what a snap it is for wood buffs today. All they have to do is walk into a store and buy a commercial bleach.

Making my own was more than a little tricky. A bit too much — or too little — of any one of the ingredients and you'd end up with a murky result. Now all you have to do is follow the directions on what's called a two-solution bleach and you're guaranteed a good result every time.

WHY BLEACH wood? No, not because blondes have more fun!

The fact is old-timers often liked to get a wood as colorless as possible because they believed the stain would then "take" more uniformly. The practice is still followed, though to a lesser degree.

Obviously, you must bleach if your end result is to be a blonde finish. It's also often necessary to bleach when some signs of color remain in wood after the old finish has been removed.

The essential thing to remember about bleach is that it must be used only on wood that is either new or completely free of any previous finishing material.

Another is that, since it is a powerful chemical, one should always wear rubber gloves and proceed with caution when working with it.

A BLEACH SHOULD be used strictly according to the manufacturer's instructions. You'll find different manufacturers recommend slightly different methods. Yours is not to question why: just do as directed and you'll come out with an excellent result.

After applying a bleach wait at least 24 hours, then sand the surface lightly with a fine grade of sandpaper.

From here on the procedure will vary depending on your ultimate objective. My own method is to apply a sealer over the bleached wood no matter what finish I plan to use. I especially recommend the use of a sealer if you intend to stain the wood, because it prevents uneven absorption of the stain into the wood pores.

Bleach is applied with a brush. Since it's a strong chemical it tends to damage a brush with natural bristles, so I keep one nylon brush on hand which I use exclusively for bleaching.

HERE'S YOUR ANSWER

By ANDY LANG

Q. — The previous owner of our house put up gypsum board walls in the attic several years ago. It seems to have stood up well except on one wall where there is a gap between two of the boards at the joint. How can this be repaired?

A. — Ordinary patching cement of the type used for plaster repairs will be sufficient if the gap is very narrow. But if it is more than an inch, you should use perforated tape and prepared gypsum cement, both of which can be obtained at most hardware stores, lumber yards and building supply dealers.

Apply the cement into the opening. Press the tape into place directly into the cement with a putty knife. Some of the cement should come through the holes in the tape. Run the putty knife carefully over the area to smooth the protruding cement. When the patch is completely dry, apply a thin coat of cement over the tape, smoothing the edges where they run into the surrounding surface. When the new cement is dry, sandpaper and repaint to match the rest of the wall or, better yet, do the entire wall.

Q. — I read somewhere that the government has a special mortgage program for families earning less than $10,000 a year provided they live in rural areas. Can you tell me something about this? I'd also like to know what is meant by a rural area, as there seems to be an overlap of rural and suburban communities in most places.

A. — The definition of a rural area by the Farmers Home Administration, which conducts the program, is based on several factors, including open space and population. Contact the nearest office of the FHA to determine whether you qualify. You can also obtain information as to the financial details of the plan. Broadly, the idea is to give families with incomes of less than $10,000 a year an opportunity to obtain a mortgage without making a down payment and at an interest rate of 7.25 per cent. There also is a program for rural families earning less than $7,000 a year.

Q. — I have recently undertaken small projects using unusual kinds of wood. I read somewhere that collecting different kinds of wood is a hobby followed by many thousands of persons. Where can rare wood specimens be obtained?

A. — There are several commercial establishments which sell exotic woods. However, you are more likely to be interested in the International Wood Collectors Society, a nonprofit organization whose members swap wood and collect specimens. There are over 75,000 identified species of wood, but I am told that you are considered to have a great collection if you can come into possession of several thousand. For further information write to Harrison Neustadt, 6 Benedict Avenue, Eastchester, N.Y., 10709.

(For either of Andy Lang's helpful booklets, "Wood Finishing in the Home" or "Make Simple Plumbing Repairs," send 30 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, Post Office Box 477, Huntington, M.Y., 11743.)

How To Check The Plumbing

Before buying an older house, it is wise to check the condition of its plumbing.

Houses built 20, 30, or more years ago often have piping inadequate to handle all the new appliances that people use today. Even if piping is the right size, it may have been encrusted with deposits and scale over the years so that it now has only a fraction of its original capacity.

The American Water Works Assn., a nonprofit society organized to provide better water service to the public, says the way to check water flow and pressure is to turn on all the faucets in a bathroom and flush the toilet simultaneously. The flow volume should not be reduced appreciably if the pressure is good.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

Making The Most Of A Mini-Room Calls For Some Special Planning

By CAROLYN MURRAY

Into every homemaker's life some tiny rooms must fall. So don't be discouraged and allow that small room to become everybody's dumping ground. Instead, choose a few attractive furnishings or initiate a few efficient concepts and give that little room a special reason for existing.

Before any purchases or reclamation programs are begun, decide just how the mini-room is to be programmed.

IS IT TO BE the sewing and pressing center? Then face up to the problem of piles of "laundered but not mended and ironed" clothing. Provide shelves or bins where this follow-up work can be organized. Allow a stack for socks, torn jeans and T-shirts, pajamas and dress shirts. Don't forget torn bed linens and towels.

All of these things take a beating from osr modern marvel, the washing machine.

Once you have organized the necessities, such as sewing machine, chair and storage, add one truly comfortable chair — such as a recliner.

SOME OF YOUR sewing chores can be accomplished with your feet up, so you might as well relax and enjoy.

If creative stitchery is your hobby, remember to provide bins for yarn, tools and the piles of patterns and stitchery books you accumulate.

Good lighting is essential in a sewing room. So invest in good lamps and overhead fixtures. Reading the instructions on patterns can be very tiring for your eyes and it could take the joy out of the homey art of creative sewing.

Another idea for decorating a minimal space is pictured here. It is a room re-created out of the 1800s.

WALL COVERINGS are a combination of documentary, small-scaled prints and border motifs. The bed is an old iron type and is covered in a modern version of an heirloom bedspread. The Edgehill Manor bedcover is a copy of one made in 1845 and now on view at the Valentine Museum, Richmond, Va.

The mood is so strong in this small bedroom that just a few older pieces of furniture are all that are needed to round out the decorating. A chest or footlocker would hold extra blankets and pillows. The old country school desk is perfect as a bedside table.

The wood flooring was waxed and then topped with a small modern area rug.

THIS PRETTY LITTLE extra bedroom has been converted from a "catch-all" storage place into the perfect nest for young child or guest. An iron bed sporting Fieldcrest's Edgehill Monor bedspread, a contemporary version of an 1845 coverlet, is the eye-catcher and pleaser.

Don't Run Risks With Electricity Around The Backyard Swimming Pool

Swimming pools are family fun centers, and electricity contributes much to their convenience. However, poolside electrical equipment can become deadly if damaged or handled in a way that causes current to leak into people.

Underwriters Laboratories Inc., an independent, not-for-profit organization testing for public safety, urges you to take the following precautions when handling electrical equipment near a swimming pool:

A FLOW OF current from its intended path to ground is known as a ground fault, and such leakage current is dangerous even when quite small. A ground fault containing the amount of current used to operate a seven and a half watt Christmas tree bulb passing through the chest of a heathy adult can kill him in one second.

Ordinarily, a fuse or a circuit breaker will cut off the supply of current when leakage current becomes dangerously high, but small ground faults are not strong enough to trip fuses or circuit breakers. Instead, another type of protective device must be used, one that does cut off small ground fault circuits. This device is called a ground fault circuit interrupter (GFCI).

A GFCI will respond to a fault circuit as low as five-thousandth of an ampere, and shut off the source of electric power in one-fortieth of a second.

SWIMMING POOLS contain many areas that could produce dangerous leakage currents. Defective pool equipment such as filter pump motors, electric panelboards, underwater lights, or defective appliances used around a pool such as electric barbeques, radio and TV sets, or electric hand tools are some of these potential danger areas.

To guard against electrical accidents at swimming pools, have a qualified electrician install a GFCI in every circuit supplying electric power to the pool.

GFCIs will not prevent all types of electrical accidents. Therefore, the following safety rules should be observed:

NEVER HANDLE radios, barbeques, or other electrical appliances while wet.

Never run extension cords close to the pool.

Never run overhead wires within 10 feet of the pool.

Immediately let go of any electrical equipment that causes a tingling sensation when it or metal near it is touched. Disconnect it and have it repaired.

After Paneling, Why Not A New Tile Ceiling?

After paneling, what's next? A logical encore is to top off new walls with a do-it-yourself ceiling of tile or lay-in panel.

The condition of your present ceiling dictates your options among three basic installation methods.

1. Adhesive demands an even surface. It must also be firm, dry and clean.

Unsound plaster, large holes or unfinished ceilings with exposed joists can be covered by these alternatives:

2. Furring strips of one-by-three inch softwood. Nail to joist crossings with 8 penny nails. Apply tile with three-penny box nails or nine-sixteenth inch coated staples spaced six inches apart.

3. Suspended, or "drop," ceilings of metal grid hung from wire or straps. There should be a drop of at least three-inches, particularly between exposed pipes or ducts.

Regardless of the application method, it's a good idea to open the cartons and allow them to stand in the room a minimum of 24 hours. This permits the tiles to become "conditioned" to the normal room temperature and humidity.

Ceiling tile should not be used in areas where the relative humidity continuously exceeds 80 percent. When used in areas such as laundry and bathrooms where occasional condensation may occur on the surface, a plastic coated finish is recommended.

Plan layout ahead of time for a pleasing finished appearance. Tile can be cut with a razor utility knife to fit around pipes and light fixtures. Manufacturers and lumber dealers provide detailed instructions for planning. Or, you can obtain general information by writing for "Spec No. 6" from the Acoustical and Insulating Materials Association, 205 West Touhy, Park Ridge, Ill., 60068.

Attractive styles of molding are available to conceal ceiling edges along the walls. It's easier to paint or finish modling molding match your paneling before you nail it in place as a final touch.

The Sweet Sound Of The Flute Is Being Heard In The Land Today

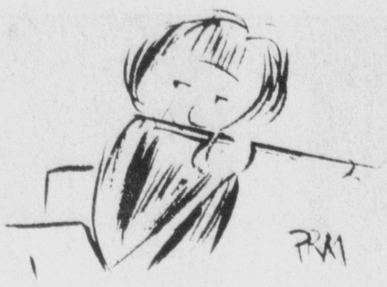
By WILLIAM LAFFLER

The flute is one of the most durable of all musical instruments, making itself heard from Bach to rock.

Bach and Mozart were the first composers to bring out the vitality of the flute, because it was ideally suited to the small combos of their time.

But as playing groups grew larger, adding the heavy horns and building up the string sections, the flute found itself in a minor supporting role.

Even the smaller jazz bands and swing orchestras which blossomed in the growing years of the 20th Century were too overpowering for the flute to make its voice heard.



AFTER WORLD WAR II jazz changed its form and the flute began to fit once more into the big scheme.

As rock began to develop late in the 1960s, the flute gave way temporarily to the guitars and drums. There was just too much noise for the flute to cope with until the groups began concentrating on amplification.

Today Ian Anderson of Jethro Tull and Thijs van Leer of Focus have popularized the flute as a rock instrument and other groups should look to it as a source for variety.

The flute is more suited to modern jazz than to rock, however, because it lends itself to cerebral arrangements.

HERBIE MANN long has been the Pied Piper of modern jazz, luring an ever-growing following with album after album of exquisite flute music. His latest album, "Hold On, I'm Comin' " (Atlantic SD 1632), was recorded live at the 1972 New York and Montreux jazz festivals.

Mann once again is the virtuoso, but he receives fine backing from David Newman on tenor sax and flute, Sonny Sharrock on guitar, Pat Rebillot on piano, Andy Muson on bass, and Reggie Ferguson on drums.

There are only two relatively short numbers, "Never Say Goodbye" and "Hold On, I'm Comin' " Each requires less than five minutes of playing time but not a second is wasted.

Mann is best on the longer numbers, of course, and he has plenty of room to expand on "Memphis Underground," "Soul Beat Momma" and "Respect Yourself."

KEN MUNSON is another flute player worth watching for the future as well as playing for the present. His album, "Super Flute" (Paramount PAS 6049), shows considerable musical imagination.

Munson often produces raw and raspy sounds from an instrument that was intended to manufacture sugar but it is effective. He accomplishes on the flute the same derring-do that Jimmy Smith produces from the electric organ.

FOR THOSE WHO regard the flute as a pastoral or reflective instrument, "Paul Horn Inside II" (Epic KE 31600) is prescribed as nerve-soothing medication. "Inside II" is a logical follow-up to the successful "Inside I" which Horn recorded alone in the Taj Mahal.

Although Horn despises gimmickry, he uses the multiple-tracking technique on "Inside II" but no electronic gadgets. He includes four Bach chorales and a Palestrina mass as well as the real tunes based on terrestrial elements.

Jim Seals and Dash Crofts are mellow country boys who have been playing music — country, rock 'n' roll, even jazz — since before Elvis Presley became a household word.

They have known each other for 21 years and have gone through a lot of changes since meeting at a college dance in Cisco, Tex.

"They were used to country western but they wanted it with a beat," says Seals. "We called it rock 'n' roll, but it was actually rockabilly — a cross between country and rock. Dash's band and the band that I was working with were both booked on the same night."

SEALS AND CROFTS have been together just about ever since, playing just about every kind of popular music imaginable. But in the late '60s, the most important changes of all took place. They took up Baha'i faith — and they became a duo.

"We decided we didn't want to do it for money any more," says Seals, "Just for enjoyment. So we sat down and started picking out our little mini-tunes in a back room in Los Angeles."

It didn't take long for them to be "discovered." Those mini-tunes were the beginnings of some of the best, happiest and most broadly-based music to appear in the '70s.

SEALS AND CROFTS' singles are gentle rockers — "Hummingbird," "Summer Breeze," "Diamond Girl" — or, more accurately, a sort of cross between the urban folk sound and rock. You might call it "rockafolkie." The albums are far more diversified — with the country and jazz influences more apparent.

As for Baha'i — it's a faith, a religion, but hardly a church in the traditional sense. And it has caused the most fundamental changes of all for Seals and Crofts.

Dash Crofts: "It is Baha'i that caused the melodic turn in our music, because we felt we could express words better in a melodic vehicle — melodic as opposed to hard rock. The faith gave us concepts to write about."

ALTHOUGH SOME of SC's tunes deal directly with Baha'i themes ("Hummingbird," for example, which Seals describes as "a symbolic story about the prophet of the faith, Baha'u'llah"), their religious beliefs affect their music in a more subtle fashion. They do not want to be musical evangelists.

"I just consider us plain ordinary people who have come across something that we see is working," says Crofts. "We're doing our best not to make it appear that we're preaching."

Jim Seals and Dash Crofts are family men. Both are married, both have infant children. And they seem far more at peace with themselves and their world than any other rock "stars" I have encountered. Yet they unquestionably produce some of the most innovative and polished music being made in 1973. Their most recent album, "Diamond Girl" (Warners BS2699), is a perfect example. What's more, they seem just to be hitting their stride.

Seals and Crofts are living proof that — sometimes, at least — nice guys finish first.

MARIN POET'S CORNER

ANNIVERSARY GARDEN

The past is ever prologue to the future years unseen.
And love springs more eternal in the daily living scene.
When you gather bouquets of memories, adding flowers each new day,
A blossom fades and is forgotten, by new blooms along the way.

Love is more than sharing the beauteous things in life —
It's helping one another, and a man must help his wife;
For she alone, is gardener of the flowers in his heart,
And picks the choicest blooms she finds for days that may seem dark.

Sun will help the flowers grow as rain will nourish, too.
But only one, may pick and choose, and this I've left to you.
You had your Spring, and I had mine; In our Summer we joined hands.
Now Autumn, too, is passing us like the hour-glass's sands.
When Winter comes and we're alone, because our brood has grown,
We'll walk together, hand in hand, in the garden of seeds we've sown.

TUNING IN ON TV

By JACK GAVER

Katharine Hepburn will make her television dramatic debut during the 1973-74 season in a new two-hour film version of Tennessee Williams' first hit play, "The Glass Menagerie." She will, of course, play Amanda Wingfield, the aging southern woman who dreams of a happy past and hopes for betternment of a drab present. Sam Waterston, Joanna Miles and Michael Moriarity are the others in the cast.

"Alice Through the Looking Glass" is a 90-minute musical version of the Lewis Carroll classic, "Through the Looking Glass," that NBC will reprise on Nov. 22. Its original broadcast was Nov. 6, 1966.

NBC's new talk program, to be aired from 1 to 2 a.m. Monday through Thursday, will premiere Oct. 2. Tom Snyder is host for this "Tomorrow" show.

Among the dramas on "ABC Theater" during the new season will be "The Last Time We Cried Like Children," story of Vietnam prisoners of war; "P.S. You're Not Listening," about a teacher's work with handicapped children; "Zimbardo Incident," a study of human behavior in the prison system, and "One Small Voice," story of a widow and her ideals.

Veteran comics Ben Blue and Herbie Faye, whose roots go back to old-time burlesque, are creative consultants on the new "NBC Follies" series, so look for some funny slapstick bits on that program.

BESS MYERSON, a former Miss America and a former New York City commissioner of consumer affairs, is the narrator for an ABC news special, "Woman's Place," on Channels 7 and 11 tonight at 9 o'clock. The one-hour program examines the changing roles of women in American society.

Sam The Robot Delights Visitors From The Soviet

Nine leading educators from the Soviet Union recently showed up in New York at the Children's Television Workshop to take a look at "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company," the two educational programs produced by the Workshop.

They were the first Russians to visit the set of Sesame Street on Manhattan's West Side and were especially delighted with a character from the show named Sam the Robot, who on the day of their visit was struggling to learn the letter "E."

The delegation, from the U.S.S.R. Academy of Pedagogical Sciences, visited CTW as part of a two-week seminar on educational technology held under the current bilateral exchange program between U.S. and Soviet educators. Because of their interest in television in early education, the Russians watched both programs and discussed them with Workshop officials.

Sesame Street is now being seen by an estimated nine million youngsters in the United States and millions more in 43 other nations around the globe; The Electric Company is being seen by about six million children in the United States and several Caribbean nations.

Somebody Up There Likes Dorothy Malone

Dorothy Malone feels that there are some strange forces at work in her life. She doesn't know what they are and isn't trying too hard to find out. Because most of them are on her side.

"Take my movies," she begins. "To date I've appeared in some 25 to 30 of them and, naturally, have come up with some favorites among my leading men, four in fact — Rock Hudson, John Ireland, Robert Stack and Fred MacMurray. Believe it or not, I've made exactly three pictures with each of them."

What makes Miss Malone think strange forces are on her side is that she never tries for anything, she says, never plans. She just goes about her business and lets things happen.

Take, for example, the way she got into the movies. In her home town of Dallas, a movie talent scout Eddie Rubin, needed a girl to do a scene with a young man he was testing. The school drama coach sent Dorothy. The actor didn't get the contract, but Dorothy did.

JAYNE MEADOWS is the guest star in "Harbor Division," the premiere episode of the new season for the "Adam-12" series on Channels 3 and 4, Wednesday at 8 p.m. Miss Meadows portrays an astrologer who gives the patrol officers a lecture in astrology when they attempt to hand her a ticket.

Redd Foxx Philosophy

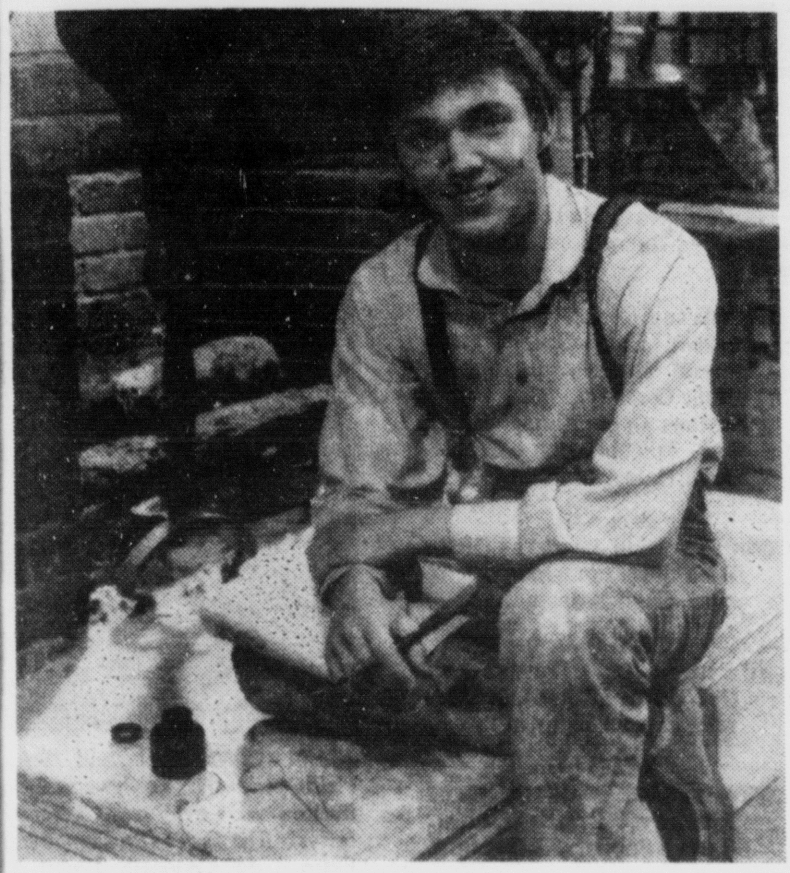
Ask Redd Foxx about the "black movement" or what he thinks his NBC television network show, "Sanford and Son," has done for his race and he has a ready answer:

"That's not the question. The important thing is what have people of all races done for each other?

"We put too much stress on whether someone is black, Mexican, Puerto Rican, Indian or whatever. Yes, and even white, too. I don't care if a person is blue, green or purple.

"There are good people, bad people, rich and poor in all races. The important thing is whether they have love for one another. And if they are concerned about one another's food, clothing and shelter.

"Nothing will be right in this world until everybody has an adequate amount of these things, plus a little bit of happiness."



AS JOHN-BOY WALTON, Emmy-winner Richard Thomas and his television family begin a new season of "The Waltons" episodes Thursday at 8 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

Must Doctors' Ethics Change?
Some Mind-Boggling Questions From Medicine's Brave New World

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR DON SHULA, Miami Dolphins football coach

What are the main ingredients for your successful coaching in the National Football League?—Richard Boye, Elkart Lake, Wis.

● I'm just a guy who rolls up his sleeves and goes to work. I don't have peace of mind until I know i've given the game everything I can, because the whole idea is to get an edge somehow. Sometimes it takes just a little extra something to get that edge. I try to do it with mental and physical preparation. Of course, I know that the people we play have the same goal—winning—so I try to put more effort into our preparation than they do into theirs. You set a goal to be the best, then work hard to reach that goal. If you let yourself settle for anything less than No. 1, you're cheating yourself.

FOR SHIRLEY JONES, actress

I hear that you are going to add a new member to your television "Partridge Family." True?—Cynthia Easton, Hillsborough, Calif.

● Yes. Four-year-old Ricky Segall will play the son of our next-door neighbors. He likes to visit the family because he feels free to "sing my little heart out." He will sing a solo in each episode.

FOR BOBBY RIGGS, tennis star

At first I thought your bit about beating the leading female professional stars was just a way to pick up money and publicity. Now I hear talk from the ladies about making a victory over you a "cause." Do you have a cause yourself?—John Collins, Atlantic City, N.J.

● Yes. I personally believe women should stay home and do kitchen work. I'm going to put these women back where they belong.

FOR ALICE COOPER, rock singer

Who created your image?—Sandy Henley, Hobart, Ind.

● I know it's not my father, who is an engineer and ordained minister in Phoenix, Ariz., because he's often said, "It is quite a shock when you expect to sire a gospel missionary and instead you get a rebel rock star." On the other hand, my father's first name is Esther—so who knows?

FOR ANITA LOOS, author

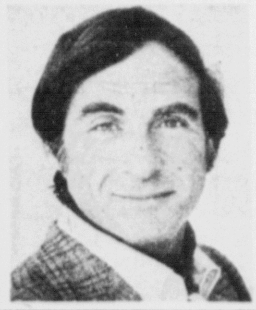
You have done well writing books like "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," in which beautiful but "dumb" women get the better of rich and "smart" men. Do you believe that women are smarter than men?—Mrs. R. F. Hunt, Colorado Springs, Colo.

● It's true that women are brainier than men, but we should keep this fact quiet because it could ruin our whole racket.

FOR O. J. SIMPSON, pro football star

How do you feel about the proposal to give urinalysis tests to players in order to detect use of drugs?—John Morrissey, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

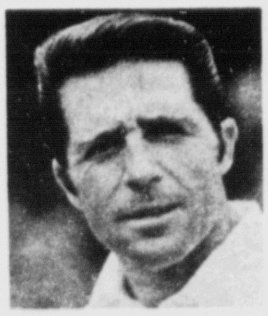
● I'm against it. I don't take "bennies" or anything else, but I don't like anyone forcing me to take a test. I'm a human being. Urine tests are okay for cows or horses, but I am not an animal. I spend a lot of time going all over the country talking about the evils of drugs. Now the league officials just about make me and every other NFL player a suspect.



FOR SID CAESAR

As far as you know, did any of your comedy material ever offend anyone?—M. T. T., Garrison, N.Y.

● I once portrayed a musician who wore funny clothes and thick glasses. I got a letter from a woman in Baltimore who worked in a clinic for children with poor eyesight. She said the character made the children feel self-conscious—so I changed it. I would never consciously offend anyone.



FOR GARY PLAYER, South African golfer

Another pro golfer from a foreign country has stated that the U.S. Open championship does not mean much to foreign golfers. Is this true?—Frank Allen, Green Bay, Wis.

● No. If you gave me my choice of $1 million or a U.S. National Open championship, I would take the Open.

FOR CYBILL SHEPHERD, actress

Do you go to see your own movies?—H. H. M., Wamac, Ill.

● No. I never even see daily takes while I'm making a movie, because I want to be as natural as possible. I would rather act intuitively than methodically, and not be dependent on specific directing. I think it's sad that the great Marilyn Monroe needed her drama coach to the end.

FOR SEN. ROMAN L. HRUSKA (R-Neb.)

With gasoline supplies so tight, can't a substitute be found? —B. H., North Platte, Neb.

● Several years ago, the state of Nebraska experimented on something called "gasohol." It explored the utilization of alcohol distilled from grain and blended on a basis of ten percent alcohol to 90 percent gasoline. It was found that this mix can be successfully burned in any existing automobiles. Now seems an ideal time to explore the possibility of developing this resource.

Doctors' Ethics in Upheaval:

Tough Questions from the Brave New World of Medicine

"When the doctor came back, he saw to his relief that the baby was no longer breathing. The next morning he called the Hastings Center to ask, 'What do you think I should have done?' "

By Bruce Hilton

Ten years ago, life was simpler. So was the medical profession. The lines between life and death, right and wrong, were relatively clear and unquestioned.

This is no longer the case.

For two years I was a senior staff member of the Hastings Center, based in Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y. The Center brings together scientists and physicians with lawyers, philosophers and others to examine the ethical dilemmas arising from the "biomedical revolution." Below are just a few of the hundreds of knotty problems the Center has studied, and which doctors are encountering every day (names and details have been changed to protect anonymity). Most of these cases would not have come up ten years ago. None of them has an easy answer, but each demands an answer. Judge for yourself. You're the doctor. What would your answers be?

Elizabeth Gee

"She said nothing after the first experience of being strapped to the table, given a sedative, and jolted into a convulsion by the shock. But two days later she rebelled. 'That was torture!' she screamed. 'I won't let you touch me again!' "

THE FETUS THAT WAS A BABY

Mrs. L., a mother with five children, had come to a major big-city hospital for a therapeutic abortion. The child, she said, had been unplanned and was unwanted.

The operation was normal right up to the time Dr. B., the young physician on duty, realized that he was holding not an inert fetus, but a living, breathing premature baby.

What should he do? Placed quickly in an incubator, the baby would undoubtedly survive. Left alone, it would die. And there was no senior physician on duty to ask.

Looking much more calm than he really was, Dr. B. saw to the mother's needs, had the baby placed in a bassinet, and went to the cafeteria "for a smoke and time to think it over."

When he came back, he saw to his relief that the baby was no longer breathing.

The next morning he called the Hastings Center to ask, "What do you think I should have done?"

While the Center doesn't function as a counseling group, the staff did come up with these questions that might be part of the decision:

How much importance should be given to the mother's intent? To her ability to raise the child? To the rights of the child to life? To the rights of the brothers and sisters?

What about the possibility that the saline solution used to start the abortion could have caused brain damage in the baby?

And who should have made the decision anyway? Should the mother have been consulted?

The discussion produced no easy answer. But the staff, now at least, had some of the questions that would help them make such decisions in the future.

The author, Bruce Hilton, is now director of the National Center for Bio-Ethics a nonprofit organization whose role is to foster public awareness of ethical and social problems arising out of the "new biology."

FORCIBLE SHOCK THERAPY

Mrs. F. had become deeply despondent and quarrelsome after her husband's death, and wasn't being helped by her psychiatrist.

She signed herself into the psychiatric ward of a private hospital for shock therapy. She had to sign a consent form before submitting to the treatment.

She said nothing after the first experience of being strapped to the table, given a sedative, and jolted into a convulsion by the shock. But two days later she rebelled. "That was torture!" she screamed. "I won't let you touch me again!"

The psychiatrist used every means to get her to continue. But she remained firm in her refusal, and only the locked door kept her from running away.

The staff met, and the majority decided to continue treatment. Kicking and screaming, Mrs. F. was carried back into the treatment room.

Later, in Center discussions, a psychiatric nurse argued that the full course of treatment was necessary for success, and that to stop before it was over could leave the patient in worse condition than before.

Once Mrs. F. signed the agreement, it was argued, she became the responsibility of the hospital staff, who had to do what was best for her own good. She could not withdraw consent—especially since her change of mind might be a symptom of her disease.

On the other hand, a physician-attorney argued, forcible treatment should be used only for a patient judged by a court to be unable to choose for himself—that is, one who's been legally committed. To force a voluntary patient like Mrs. F. to undergo treatment she doesn't want is clearly a violation of her rights, he said.

BUYING "DISCOUNT" BLOOD

With the growing need for blood in this country, a commercial firm found a profitable business: importing 10,000 liters of blood plasma each month from Haiti. Poorer citizens there could make as much as $182 a year selling blood.

Is such commerce ethical? Those who defended the practice pointed out that the money was helping the local economy to the tune of some half-million dollars a year, and putting food on the tables of many who might have gone hungry. It also brought badly needed plasma to the U.S.

Critics argued that the practice demeaned the donors and threatened their health, and that it eased the pressure to develop a better blood exchange system within the U.S. The extraordinary poverty of the Haitians meant they did not have the freedom to say no; any offer was one they couldn't refuse.

Finally, critics suggested, making blood a salable and importable commodity opened the door for an international commercial traffic in kidneys and hearts.

The question became moot when the man who arranged the deal fell out of favor with the Haitian regime, and the company lost its contract. But it—or a similar venture—will surely pop up elsewhere.

IT'S A GIRL—ABORTION FOR SEX REASONS

Mrs. S., the 38-year-old mother of a boy and two girls, told her physician she feared her child might have Down's syndrome—mongolism, which is more common among children of mothers over 35. She asked for a relatively new test called amniocentesis, which reveals the child's condition—and its sex.

Dr. L., using a needle through the abdominal wall, drew out some of the fluid surrounding the fetus, and examined the chromosomes.

"There's good news," he told Mrs. S. "Your baby won't be mongoloid."

"But what sex is it?" she asked. And when she learned the baby would be a girl—she asked for an abortion.

Shocked, the doctor discovered from Mrs. S. and her husband that their real concern all along had been the desire to have another boy!

Aside from the ethical question of the lie to the doctor, other questions arise:

Is sex determination alone a sufficient reason for undergoing the amniocentesis —a relatively safe procedure, but which carries a risk of one to two percent for the fetus? And in a male-dominated society, what would be the effect on the boy-girl ratio if parents could select?

Assuming there are some genetic diseases so severe that early detection and abortion would be morally acceptable, just what is a genetic "defect"? Is being an unwanted gender a defect? Is conceiving a child with the intent of destroying it if it's the wrong sex any different from infanticide?

On the positive side, it has been argued that being able to select the sex of one's child, even by such a drastic measure, would help slow the population boom, since many "extra" babies come from attempts to beget a child of the desired sex. And those who favor free abortion for any and all reasons suggest sex determination is as good a reason as any.

IS YOUR BABY A CRIMINAL?

This time it was the physician who was tempted to lie. Mrs. R. was another older mother who wanted to rule out the possibility that her baby had Down's syndrome, and the tests indeed showed the fetus to be unaffected.

But the examination did turn up an extra "Y" chromosome in the baby's cells—and there is evidence that such "XYY males" may be somewhat more prone to crimes of violence than the general population.

The physician's dilemma was this: Should he tell Mrs. R.?

On the "no" side, he argued with himself that she had not asked him to check for the XYY syndrome—only for mongolism. And what would it do to the way she reared her son if she knew? Would she panic each time he threw a temper tantrum? Would she overprotect him, or damage him psychologically with her nervousness?

On the "yes" side was the trust the patient places in her physician, and his obligation to honor it. And, he asked, doesn't a patient have an inherent right to know the whole truth, even if it hurts? And, pragmatically: If the boy one day was one of that small minority of XYY males who end up behind bars, could the parents sue the physician for withholding the truth?

INGOTS SHOWN ACTUAL SIZE

Norman Rockwell's Fondest Memories

IN SOLID STERLING SILVER

Norman Rockwell has just completed a series of ten new works of art to be issued exclusively in the form of sterling silver ingots. Subscriptions for First Edition Proof Sets of this new Rockwell collection will be accepted only if they are postmarked by September 15, 1973.

FOR MORE than half a century, the art of Norman Rockwell has brought joy to the hearts of millions of Americans, young and old.

Now this great artist, at the summit of his career, looks back at the people and the country he loves . . . and portrays his fondest memories in the enduring medium of sterling silver.

Original Rockwell Art

Norman Rockwell has created ten original works of art exclusively for this collection of sterling silver ingots. These ten works will never be produced in any other form.

The First Edition should be of special interest to knowledgeable collectors. Not only because of the importance of the work itself—but also because the First Edition will be the only Proof-quality, hallmarked and serially numbered edition.

The artist speaks about his newest works

"I suppose I'm just a sentimentalist," says Norman Rockwell in describing this series. "I like to show people in happy and tender moments of their lives—sometimes with a little touch of humor. These are the things about people I remember most fondly."

Rockwell has now depicted his "fondest memories," exclusively for this collection, with that special brand of magic that is his alone.

The joy of kids romping at the old swimming hole. The pleasure of old friends meeting around a pot-belly stove. The pride of a Boy Scout carrying the flag in a parade down Main Street. The tenderness of a young girl helping her grandmother with her knitting. The warmth and devotion of a family enjoying a holiday dinner together.

Ten precious moments, ten cherished memories, each one sensitively portrayed by the best-loved American artist of our time.

The genius of Norman Rockwell

Each of "Norman Rockwell's Fondest Memories" has been captured in a distinctive form: a sterling silver ingot measuring 2″ x 2½″ and containing 1500 grains of sterling silver. The famous signature of NORMAN ROCKWELL will appear on each ingot. And the complete set will be struck by The Franklin Mint, the world's foremost private mint.

The hallmarked First Edition Proof Set is available exclusively to subscribers whose orders are postmarked by September 15, 1973.

Build your collection on a convenient monthly basis

Regardless of how high the price of silver may escalate, we guarantee to send you the complete collection of these solid sterling silver ingots at the original issue price of $25 per ingot. You will receive the first ingot in October. Each month thereafter, for nine months, an additional ingot will be sent to you. You will enjoy the pleasure of seeing your collection steadily grow. And within ten months, your collection of "Norman Rockwell's Fondest Memories" will be complete.

To house the complete collection, a handsome collector's case fitted with a hardwood display frame will be provided at no additional cost. The collection may thus be kept in the case or proudly displayed on the wall.

An heirloom collection

Any new work by an artist of the stature of Norman Rockwell is likely to become an important heirloom. This new Rockwell series is particularly desirable—not only for its beauty and intrinsic value but because it is the first time the work of this beloved artist has ever appeared in ingot form. The only previous medallic issues of Norman Rockwell's work have been the Rockwell Christmas Plates and the "Spirit of Scouting" medals—both Franklin Mint issues which are highly prized today and much sought after by collectors.

Now this new series—"Norman Rockwell's Fondest Memories"—can bring you many years of pleasure and provide a treasured legacy you can pass along to your children and grandchildren.

Subscriptions close September 15, 1973

To acquire this important new Rockwell collection, your subscription must be sent to The Franklin Mint, Franklin Center, Pennsylvania 19063 and postmarked by September 15, 1973. There is a strict limit of one First Edition Proof Set per subscriber.

"Mark Spitz, You're 23 — What Do You Do for a Living?"

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

"Sometimes it gets embarrassing. People will come up and say, 'Are you really Mark Spitz?' Sometimes it also gets funny. I get offered an awful lot of free glasses of milk!"

We talked in the office of his publicist, Jay Bernstein, one of the multitude of people who currently surround swimmer-turned-endorser/hopes-to-be-actor Mark Spitz. He wore blue jeans, a white-and-blue plaid shirt and tennis shoes. To my surprise, he did not insist upon his publicist's attending the interview. When I'd met Mark at a previous press conference, he was surrounded by so many advisers, I had wondered if he had a mind of his own.

FAMILY WEEKLY: You seem to have made a career of becoming an endorser. Do you mind not having a profession?

MARK: Being an endorser is a profession. Whatever I do sells products. It's a basis of our society—to appeal to the public. After all, look at the cigarettes. They use a lot of beautiful women because they appeal to men who might smoke cigarettes.

FW: Then you don't mind being just an endorser?

MARK: Why should I? A lot of people like Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer do it as well. They cash in on what they're good at.

FW: But they don't spend all of their time endorsing. They play a pretty good game of golf on the side.

MARK: That's true, but they can't afford to live the way they do from what they earn, like $20,000 a game—something like that. That's why they are endorsers. They don't mind making a buck endorsing things.

FW: Just how many products do you endorse?

MARK: I've signed contracts with seven corporations and am discussing other deals but it is too early to talk about them.

FW: What do you actually do besides give your name?

MARK: I help coordinate the products I endorse. I inject my opinions. I wouldn't endorse anything I didn't thoroughly believe in. People like to believe in something, follow someone, identify. That's why I think I work out as an endorser. Young people want to identify with me.

FW: I understand you were offered a lot of acting roles. Have you settled on a film yet?

MARK: No. We are in the process of making a presentation of my first movie to the public. It takes 100 percent effort to get it going.

FW: What does it depend on?

MARK: Money. We have to find someone who will finance it.

FW: What kind of a part will you play in the film?

MARK: A young man—me.

FW: You mean a swimmer?

MARK: No, because people expect me to be a swimmer.

FW: Then someone entirely different?

MARK: Well, no, because if I play a bank robber, people might say "He's supposed to be a swimmer—how can he be a bank robber?" And I don't want to be identified with one type like Sally Struthers. She's in a series and can't do anything else. Same with Carroll O'Connor. He's Archie Bunker. I couldn't see him in a serious role. Or Lucille Ball. She's always Lucy. You can't see her in a serious part. And I wouldn't want to be known as Mark Spitz, the swimmer.

FW: If you feel people won't accept you in an entirely different role, what can you do?

MARK: I expect to play a character who is athletic and extremely motivated to win.

FW: I've heard various stories how you met your wife. What's the true one?

MARK: Well—I initiated it, but indirectly it was through our fathers that we got together. Both of our parents are in scrap iron. At least, mine used to be —he's now working for me . . . I mean, he's now working with me. The two men had a mutual friend and he had dinner with us one night and told me that if I ever came to Los Angeles, I should look up Herman Weiner's beautiful daughter. I looked her up, and that's how we became acquainted.

FW: In films, the director guides the actor; in acting school the drama coach does it. Isn't that just about the same as a swimming coach telling a swimmer what to do?

MARK: No one told me what to do for the last six years. I was just pampered.

FW: What did the coach do for you?

MARK: He was someone I could talk to. The workout I could do myself.

FW: But you think coaches are necessary?

MARK: They are—even after I became a successful champion swimmer I had to have one. It's a psychological necessity to have someone to talk to, to get psyched up. He provides a sounding board.

FW: What about Munich?

MARK: What about Munich!

FW: Why did you leave so hurriedly?

MARK: I didn't run away from any threats. I was already three and a half weeks late for dental school, and I couldn't wait around any longer. If I had stayed to the end of the second week of the Olympics, I would have had to take off a year.

FW: Was your life ever actually threatened?

MARK: No. If they had wanted to get me they could have and would have. Besides, if I would have stayed on in Munich, what could I have done?

FW: You had only one semester of dental school. What made you decide to give up dentistry?

MARK: When I got hepatitis early this year. It gave me time to think, and I figured with all the endorsements I'm giving, I would have no time for school or to practice oral surgery when I graduated. Besides, I like to win. I didn't want to be just another person doing a job. I like to be the best at whatever I am doing.

FW: Why did you pick oral surgery in the first place?

MARK: Because I love to work with my hands. I love to do mechanical things. Swimming, in a way, is a mechanical effort.

FW: What does financial success mean to you?

MARK: To be my own boss, to do what I want to do, to take time off as I want to.

FW: But what is it you want with the money? Couldn't you have made enough as an oral surgeon?

MARK: I looked into that too when I got started. The average doctor makes between $15,000 and $20,000 a year. Very few make over $100,000.

FW: What kind of a car do you have now?

MARK: A Mercedes 450.

FW: And your bride?

MARK: She has the same car.

FW: Do you like all the attention you get?

MARK: Sometimes it gets embarrassing. People will come up and say, "Are you really Mark Spitz?" Sometimes it also gets funny. I get offered an awful lot of free glasses of milk!

FW: Where do you think you got hepatitis?

MARK: I am told I may have caught it at the Olympic Games in Munich. I was in such great shape, it took that long to catch up with me.

THE KIDNEY FAMINE

Ralph S. advertised that he would pay $3,000 to the donor of a healthy kidney. Ralph suffered from total kidney failure, and his ad said he would commit suicide unless a transplant made it possible to end his sessions on the kidney machine.

On the day his notice appeared, 25 accident victims were buried in his state —most of them taking two healthy, transplantable kidneys to the grave with them.

Ralph's state, like others, has passed the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act, permitting people to carry cards willing healthy organs to others .

But as Ralph found out, very few people carry the cards, and there are not enough kidneys to go around. (It's estimated that more than 7,500 persons in the country have fatal kidney disease; fewer than 4,000 have access to kidney machines, and there are enough kidneys for only 1,500 transplants a year—leaving at least 2,000 people without hope. Some put the figure at twice that.)

Should the law be changed to make all healthy organs of the dead available for transplant? That is, unless the victim carries a card forbidding such use?

If the city can condemn a strip of private land for the public good, does it have the right—or duty—to "condemn" organs no longer of use to their original owners, for the survival of others?

BRAIN SURGERY OR IMPRISONMENT?

Ernest M., 38, is a huge, bright, good-natured and successful salesman—except once or twice a year when he flies into an uncontrollable rage. Then he may use his 265 pounds to fight seven police officers to a draw, or put his fist through a concrete block in his cell.

As the result of one such episode, and a subsequent courtroom threat to the judge, he now faces the equivalent of a life sentence in solitary confinement—in a hospital for the criminally insane.

Ernest's symptoms are similar to those of a rare form of epilepsy, associated with damage to the brain. And some neurosurgeons have had success in ending such attacks by making a tiny incision in one section of the brain.

But neurosurgeons have so far refused Ernest's case because there is no observable physical damage to his brain.

Should they take the case, and perhaps release Ernest from spending the rest of his life alone, under lock and key?

Those who say "no" would include those who oppose all psychosurgery (surgery on the brain for behavioral disorders), usually saying that the side effects are unpredictable, that there may be a blunting effect on the patient's emotional responses. They also say that slicing away some of a man's emotions means killing a part of him.

Others would argue that many operations have been performed without apparent side effects, that the patient has a right to treatment after all other methods have failed, even if there is no apparent physical damage—and that life on the outside with his family, even if the worst happens, would be preferable to a living death behind bars.

She's Betty King Barker, industrial designer who can list among her credits 4 careers, 3 grandchildren, 2 sons, and 1 husband. She also manages to find time for tennis, golf and looking after her good looks. To keep her silvery hair bright and beautiful, she uses Silk & Silver, Clairol's long lasting color lotion in Silvery Pearl* #14.

"So easy," says Mrs. Barker, "I just shampoo it in every few weeks —it colors away the yellow, adds lots of body and wonderfully rich deep color." And it has no peroxide.

Mr. Barker approves. "Gray hair looks so young on Betty."

In this section, Women's Editor Rosalyn Abrevaya takes you on a beauty safari starring two young Americans. "One reward in this business," she says, "is to see how a change of appearance can affect a girl's personality. Gay and Dianne went to Europe as teenagers. When they came back, they had blossomed into women!"

When Hometown Girl Meets Europe's Beauty Experts...

"Before." Dianne tours London before getting the beauty "works" at two prominent salons.

Photos by Normand Menard

"After." Dianne Risius, a bright, recent high school graduate (who has seldom been out of Bricelyn, Minn.), flashes her irrepressible smile after being "transformed." A study in contrasts, Dianne is a former "Miss Bricelyn," has won the President's Physical Fitness Award, and is a fine clarinet and saxophone player. Dianne's happy reaction: "It was such a change—I hardly recognized me."

The last thing Dianne Risius ever thought she had was an exquisite set of cheekbones! Her new beauty asset emerged after an exciting one-day make-over session in London that included cosmetic and hairstyle transformations.

Dianne, who lives in Bricelyn, Minn. (she gets FAMILY WEEKLY in the Albert Lea Tribune), was one of the three finalists in the annual coast-to-coast hairstyling contest sponsored by John H. Breck, Inc. As a finalist she was given a trip to Europe in addition to a college scholarship. Here's how Dianne's exclusive make-over began:

The first stop on her beauty safari was the Michaeljohn salon, a young "with-it" establishment known for the elegant heads it turns out, from Princess Anne to Elizabeth Taylor.

Enter Dianne, whose hair is immediately swooped up and away from her face to the cry, "Look what it does for her cheekbones and how it adds height!" The Michaeljohn philosophy "that a woman doesn't start from the neck up, that you can't isolate the head, but must look at the whole shape" was beginning to take root. There remained one problem. Since a good cut is what any top hairdresser recommends and the trend is toward short, manageable hair, the stylist began sharpen-

Don't Let This Summer Destroy Your Complexion

The summer months may be a recreation season for you, but a near-disaster for your complexion. You enjoy a change of pace that ought to bring your face a relaxed, younger-looking expression. But instead you may end the three-month summer season looking decidedly older.

A single summer day can be a little like a whirlwind tour through all the climates of the world. You swim, then bake yourself on a sandy beach under a desert-like sun. You take windswept car rides. You step from sun-baked pavements, squinting against the glare, into chill air-conditioned restaurants or stores. A sudden summer storm leaves the air steaming and humid. Your complexion is exposed to a wide variety of environments, each with shocking suddenness.

Is it any wonder that your skin becomes dryer as the days pass? The dryer your skin, the more that dryness emphasizes little lines and wrinkles. And the older you look. But there's no need to despair. It is possible to enjoy the pleasures of summer and still maintain your youthful look.

Many younger-looking women, from Acapulco to Sydney, discovered that they can barely get through the summer happily without their beautiful secret, the unique fluid known in the United States as Oil of Olay beauty lotion. This summer, share the secret, the lovely benefits of this world-renowned blend. Oil of Olay was created by beauty researchers to soften and silken a woman's complexion. The complexion-cherishing lotion contains a wealth of natural moisture, tropical moisturizing oils and other emollients.

Oil of Olay, available at drugstores, penetrates the important surface layer of the skin quickly, working with nature to ease away the dryness that can make you look older. The beauty blend helps maintain the oil-moisture balance, an essential element necessary for your complexion to look as young as possible. The skin-loving liquid also sets up an effective barrier to keep nature's own moisture from surrendering to sudden environmental changes.

You will know when your skin would welcome Oil of Olay. Whenever it feels dry or slightly tight or rough to the touch, your complexion is asking for, and needs, all the help it can get from the beauty blend.

No matter how often you soothe on cherishing Oil of Olay during the day, apply at bedtime, so it can work its wonders during nocturnal hours. And in the morning, as a moisty, nongreasy makeup base that lets cosmetics stay fresh for hours.

Summer Beauty Hints

Gently bathe away your sun-protective lotion after sunning. Pat your body almost dry, then soothe your still-damp skin with Oil of Olay wherever the sun's rays have reached you.

During these months when the need for Oil of Olay® is great, always carry a bottle with you . . . to the beach, on weekend trips, when going shopping.

ing his scissors. But Dianne wasn't having any of that. Because of contest obligations in which her own hairdo design was still to be judged by a London jury, there could be no haircut. So the salon gave Dianne the short tousled look that seems so right for her. It was accomplished with tiny rollers, a brushout, then curls pinned all over her head.

Next, on to Yardley of London, where cosmetic expert Sue Priston analyzed Dianne's facial features. Prescription: Accentuate her eyes and cheekbones, shape her eyebrows and lengthen her upper-lip line, which tends to curve down. The primary step: "Start with an absolutely clean face." Skin freshener was applied to remove traces of oil or grime, then a light moisturizer to replenish the skin. (Dianne's skin tends to be normal-to-oily. For dry skin, a cream would be applied instead.) Because Dianne's skin is evenly textured, no makeup base was needed. Her eyebrows, a bit too thick, were plucked and given more of an arch. (A tip: Eyebrows should only be plucked from under the brow, never above, or the natural guideline is lost. The result could be a mismatched set.) To keep Dianne's total look very natural, her lips were first covered with a brown-shaded lipstick, then highlighted with a peach color. Her upper-lip line was extended to balance her fuller bottom lip.

To bring out her cheekbones, a tawny cream rouge was blended in a circular motion out toward her hairline. An apricot eyeshadow was used on her eyelids; a medium-brown was applied in the crease to add depth, and a soft white highlighter was used on the brow bone. No dark liner was used, but Dianne's eyelids were polished off with a pearl-beige cream applied close to the upper lash line, to give sparkle. Upper and lower lashes were treated with a coat of mascara.

A Californian in Paris

Gay Dixon "before" and "after" her beauty make-over at famed Carita of Paris.

Gay Dixon of Lakewood, Calif., who was the winner of the Breck hair-styling competition as judged by a panel of prominent Londoners, had her beauty make-over in the chic French capital—where the smartest heads are sporting short hair and smoky, mysterious eyes. Gay's hairdo was changed to reflect a more sophisticated look and frame her face flatteringly. One side was parted, the other combed in a thirties-like wave caught up with a barrette. (Her hair, naturally curly, has to be straightened every three months.) Gay's cosmetic change was twofold: Her eyes, which have a distinctly round contour, had dark-blue liner applied at the base of the upper and lower lashes and extending slightly at the edge of eyes, to create an almond shape. Gay's full lips were de-emphasized by redrawing a thinner lip line with a coloring pencil, then filled in with tinted lip gloss.

Blend Your Own Beauty Recipes

Blend your own dry-hair conditioner with a mix of safflower oil, egg, avocado and lemon.

Today, with products from the supermarket, pharmacy, or garden, you can create natural beauty aids right in your own home, using a wire whisk, egg beater, hand mixer, or a blender, as we did.

But you won't be the first to devise your own beauty treatments. Cosmetic art, supposed to have started with the Egyptians about 5000 B.C., was the result of mixing natural ingredients. Queen Nefertiti designed her own foundation cream: a mixture of white lead, chalk powder, perfume and honey. During Cleopatra's day, wealthy women used overnight beauty masks made of honey, barley flour and narcissus balm, rinsed off the next morning with almond oil. Later in France, to prove their "blue blood," members of royalty painted the veins of their temples bright blue. They whitened their skins with creams of vanilla, cacao and almond paste.

Here are some simple beauty recipes you can whip up:

Apple-Yogurt Mask

1 large apple
6 tablespoons yogurt

Peel and core apple. Chop fine and mash, or slice into wedges and place in a blender. Set blender for high speed, and switch on and off until well blended. Add yogurt. Beat with a fork, use a hand mixer, or blend at medium speed, until mixture achieves a smooth consistency. Use: Smooth on face, leave for 20-30 minutes. Rinse with cool water. The acidity in the apple acts on excessive oiliness. The yogurt clears and tones oily or sallow skin and has a mildly drying effect.

Avocado Dry-Hair Conditioner

1 cup safflower oil
1 egg
⅓ ripe avocado, peeled and seeded
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Beat or blend ½ cup safflower oil and all other ingredients. While beating, gradually add remainder of safflower oil until smooth. Use: Massage mixture into scalp and work into hair, leaving on 2 minutes. If hair is extremely dry, cover with plastic shower cap, leaving on 20-30 minutes. Rinse and shampoo as usual. The lemon juice adds highlights to the hair. The safflower oil contributes necessary moisture while the egg and avocado are good protein derivatives.

After-Sun Dry-Skin Cream

¼ cup petroleum jelly
4 tablespoons lanolin
2 teaspoons spirits of peppermint

Combine ingredients, blending until smooth. Use: Apply liberally to skin until cream is absorbed. It will protect against dryness and peeling. Glycerin, petroleum jelly and lanolin are natural moisturizers. Lanolin is a natural oil from sheep's wool. Glycerin, a by-product in soap-making, has moisturizing properties. The peppermint soothes and cools skin.

Oily Skin Foaming Cleanser

½ cup liquid Castile soap
3 tablespoons rubbing alcohol
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 tablespoons witch hazel

Blend or beat vigorously all ingredients until smooth. Use: Dip washcloth into the solution and scrub the face. Rinse with warm water, followed by cold. The alcohol and witch hazel are drying, disinfecting agents desirable for oily, blemished skin. Baking soda contains grains that deep-cleanse the pores. The Castile soap has olive oil to replace natural moisture and balance the effects of the two astringents.

Beauty Effects You Couldn't Get Last Year

Starting at the top, with your eyebrows in mind, Maybelline has formulated the first automatic brush-on eyebrow color. It's called Liquimatic Brow Color, and it comes in four shades. There's also an automatic Lightener that lets you tone your eyebrows to match your hair.

Consumers are demanding cosmetics that do more than one thing. How about a product that lets you shade a lid, line an eye, color cheeks, line and fill in lips and highlight anywhere? Elizabeth Arden's Creative Coloring Pencils fill the bill. Or a new waterproof makeup that weathers all climates without caking or requiring touchups? The protein-formulated foundation, called Great Coverage All Day Makeup, comes in six shades and is made by Coty. Studies show that air pollution and the stresses of modern-day living affect the skin. After a year of developing and testing, Dorothy Gray introduces the Basic Formula collection: a cleanser, toner and moisturizer—fragrance free, with no artificial coloring. Importantly, the formula is balanced to maintain the skin's ideal 5.5 pH factor, (acid mantle). Cosmetic technology moves ahead in nail-color application with new press-on polish. You simply stick colored nail shapes on top of your own and trim to fit. The finish is flawless and there's a wide range of colors to choose from. These are called Swinger-Tips.

Lamb Shanks With Noodles

Served over noodles and garnished with slices of lemon, these Lemony Lamb Shanks are a great food buy.

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a family dinner of economical lamb shanks. "Lamb shanks are one of the best meat buys in the country right now," says Marilyn, "yet I often hear from women that they don't know how to use them. This tangy lemon-flavored recipe is just right for a cool fall day."

*Recipe given

LEMONY LAMB SHANKS WITH NOODLES

2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon thyme leaves
4-6 lamb shanks (1-1½ lbs. each)
2-3 tablespoons flour
3-4 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 cup thinly sliced onion
2 cloves garlic, minced
4 peppercorns
1 bay leaf
2 sprigs parsley, chopped
2 tablespoons grated lemon rind
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup water
12 ozs. noodles, cooked
2 tablespoons capers, optional
1 lemon, thinly sliced

1. Combine salt, pepper, paprika and thyme on sheet of waxed paper. Rub seasonings well over all sides of lamb. Coat lightly with flour.

2. Heat vegetable oil slowly in large heavy skillet or Dutch oven. Brown shanks, a few at a time, very slowly on all sides. Remove from pan.

3. Sauté onion and garlic in remaining oil about 5 minutes, until limp and transparent.

4. Return shanks to pan. Add peppercorns, bay leaf, parsley, lemon rind, lemon juice and water.

5. Bring to boiling. Cover; reduce heat and simmer 2 hours, or until tender. Turn shanks once or twice for even cooking. Add small amount of water if necessary.

6. Place meat on warm serving platter and keep warm. Blot up surface grease from pan gravy with paper towel; discard.

7. Heat gravy and stir briskly. Thicken if desired with mixture of 1 tablespoon flour and 2 tablespoons water. Bring to boiling, stirring. Let simmer 2-3 minutes.

8. Arrange cooked, drained noodles on platter, top with lamb shanks. Sprinkle with capers and pour some of gravy over lamb. Pass remaining gravy in sauce boat. Garnish platter with lemon slices. Makes 4-6 servings

Once upon a time there was a paper towel.

It was strong, soft and very, very absorbent.
But it was plain.
So Chiffon decorated it with all sorts of pretty things that grow.
Now the towel was warm and pretty.

So Chiffon called the towel Sun Fresh™.
And made it in two designs and three colors.

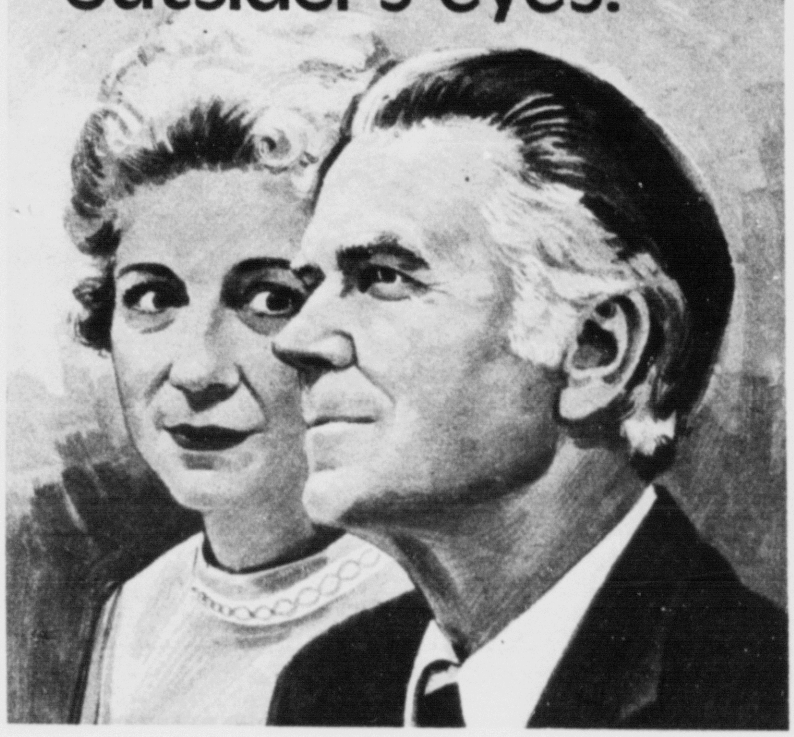
Look inside the Mass through an outsider's eyes!



A man meets a woman on her way to Sunday Mass. She invites him to come along. He does. The result is a Sunday morning he will long remember.

Why? Because he discovers that the Mass can be a warm experience of people worshipping together. He senses the presence of Christ, feels moved to pray, finds a new sympathy for the beliefs of others which differ from his own, listens to the word of God calling all to love.

The woman's whispered comments guide him through the ritual and explain away the strangeness. He asks questions and gets straight answers. Pleased and impressed, he concludes that it was God's providence which provided him with this experience.

Now you can share his experience. Read the full story in our free pamphlet: "Pilgrim Goes to Mass." Mail the coupon today. No one will call.

GARY MADDOX:
Can He Fill Willie Mays' Shoes?

If Gary Maddox of the San Francisco Giants hadn't known when to duck, he wouldn't be alive today to be in the race to capture the National League batting championship. He was on patrol in Vietnam in 1970 when a Vietcong mortar shell came screaming toward his bunker. He ducked just in time to escape the impact of the explosion. When he dug himself free, he found he was unhurt. . . . Gary has found enemy pitchers easier to defeat than the Vietcong. In June he was hitting the ball at a .345 clip. If he wins the batting title he will be in a very select class of major-leaguers who were able to win a crown after less than two seasons in the majors. Maddox, 23, is a native of Cincinnati who grew up in California. He only played half a season in organized ball before getting shipped to Vietnam. "I grew up very fast in Vietnam and decided baseball wasn't my thing," he says. "I felt I should go to college. But my father had a heart attack and my mother became ill, so I wanted to go out and support the family."... Maddox's biggest thrill came when he was told he was being groomed to fill the shoes of his boyhood idol, Willie Mays. Maddox has displayed some of Mays' talent in making spectacular catches. He also has been given special dispensation by manager Charlie Fox to wear thick fuzz on his face—his skin is sensitive to the razor's touch.—By Barry Abramson

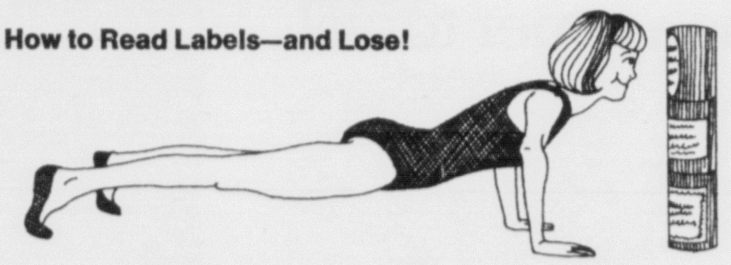
How to Read Labels—and Lose!



Reading the labels on canned groceries can make you skinnier. Canned stewed tomatoes, for example, contain sugar, but if you buy plain canned tomatoes and add a sugar substitute, you save calories. Checking the labels on canned fruits is important—canned sweetened applesauce, for instance, has 230 calories per cup, but the unsweetened has 100 calories; canned sweetened grapefruit juice has 130 calories per cup, but the unsweetened has only 100 per cup. Fruits packed in light syrup have fewer calories than those in heavy syrup, and water-packed fruits have fewest calories. Keep an eye out, too, when buying uncanned foods: A container of creamed cottage cheese has 260 calories per cup, but plain cottage cheese has only 170 per cup. A dieter needs plenty of nutrition, so cottage cheese might be called the "ideal" food for dieters. It's inexpensive, and a mere half-cupful gives you 20 protein grams, which is a third of our day's protein needs. That's about the same number as you get from a quarter pound of expensive steak.

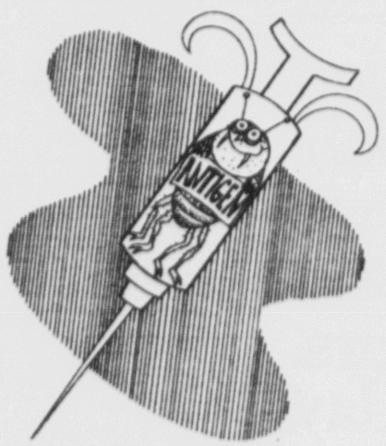
How Long Does A Vaccination Last?



Do you believe that once you're immunized you're always safe? As with many other common beliefs—this is also wrong. The body does build up immunity through vaccination, but revaccination is necessary to have continuous protection. Here is how it works: A vaccine called an antigen, made from microorganisms that cause a disease, is injected in minute amounts into the body. It stimulates the body to produce another substance, called an antibody, that fights the disease. But protection conferred by immunization tapers off with the years. For example, a smallpox vaccination lasts only five to seven years. People should get revaccinated when exposed to smallpox or when traveling to areas in which smallpox occurs, like the Far East. (By the way, did you know that a combined vaccine made from six live antigens has been developed recently but is still under study? It consists of a combination of diphtheria-tetanus-whooping-cough-measles-mumps-German-measles antigens—plus a polio vaccine, too!)

CLAIRE BLOOM:
She Needs Three Locks on Her Dressing Room Door

"When I was acting in 'Hedda Gabler' on the stage in New York, the stage pistols were stolen off the wall, the tape recorder on which we played the music for the show was stolen, and I needed three locks on my dressing room door. When my husband knocked, I had to ask his middle name before I dared to let him in. What will our cities be like a few years from now if something isn't done to stop the deterioration?" asks Claire Bloom, whose latest film is "A Doll's House." "It isn't only in New York that life is unsafe and filled with hatred between people. I have found a similar atmosphere in other cities around the country that I have visited. Least afflicted are the rural areas, and these are the parts of America I enjoy most. But the problem will spread to the rural areas, too, if it is allowed to continue. I have no formula for changing things. But I hope those who have the power to take action will at least try to come to grips with the situation and not just let things drift. Surely we can't just sit back and watch the deterioration without doing something about it."

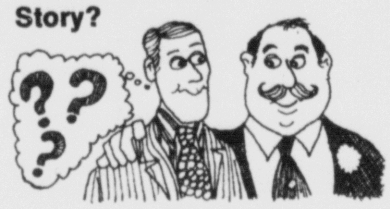
Jobmanship

Praise: What's the Real Story?



Do supervisors often express appreciation for a job well-done? One cause of friction between supervisors and workers is that they don't see the answer as the same one. According to one study: "My supervisor doesn't often show appreciation for a good job. Neither do I get more responsibility, a pat on the back or training for better jobs," was the response of almost 90 percent of the workers. But when the supervisors of these same people were asked how and when they reward good work, their replies were very different. "I give a pat on the back and thorough praise very often," said 80 percent of the supervisors. Somebody's fooling himself, but who?

People and You

Getting Kids to "Brush!"

Perhaps like so many others you have the "brush your teeth" problem in your home. At last, they've discovered where many of us go wrong. Seems that explaining to children and reasoning with them isn't enough. "Brushing will make your teeth healthy and strong," and other such talk is all well and good, but you have to add rewards. That is the finding of an in-depth investigation of children's health behavior. Heavy disciplinary methods fail.

Like other parents, you've probably read that children were supposed to take to good routines because you explained and treated them "like people." Not so, says the study. To create good health habits, you need three things: (1) provide the child with the explanation; (2) encourage your child to take responsibility for his own good health habits; (3) then polish up your words of praise and perhaps add some other rewards.

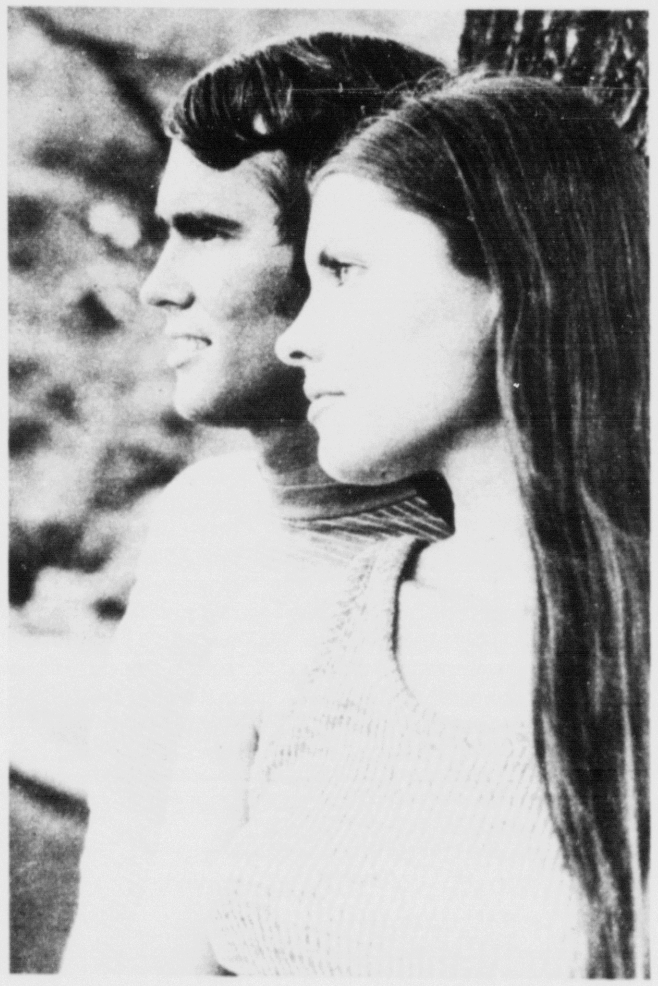
YOUR NERVES CAN CURE THEMSELVES

once you learn how to de-sensitize them, this doctor's ingenious new way...



If You Suffer From A Single One Of These Torturous Symptoms Of Nerves, Tension Or Chronic Anxiety, THEN THE FACTS BELOW MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT YOU HAVE EVER READ IN YOUR LIFE!

Because they reveal, for the first time, how your nerves have tricked you into the following mental symptoms:

constant nervousness and over-irritation... indecision... depression ...loss of confidence in yourself and others... feelings of unreality... overwhelming obsession with one or two horrible thoughts...

a hopeless feeling that your entire personality is coming apart... that your identity is dissolving... or that you may be helplessly drifting into a nervous breakdown!

And—equally as bad—how your nerves have tricked you into the following physical symptoms:

chronic fatigue, that starts in the morning, and grows worse as the day goes on...

"missed" heartbeats—"racing" heart—palpitations—or sudden sharp pains under the heart...

sweating hands—or "pins and needles" in either your hands or your legs...

"churning" stomach... nausea... choking feeling in the throat... inability to take a deep breath... tight band of pain around the head..."ready to jump out of your skin"... strange tricks of vision ...weak spells... insomnia, that goes on night after night after night...

hand shaking... panic spasms... knots in your chest... dizziness... difficulty in swallowing... vomiting... and all the other physical tortures that turn your life into one continuous hell!

And Every One Of These Nervous Symptoms Can Be Controlled... And Then Diminished ...And Then Eliminated—OFTEN BY AS LITTLE AS THIS ONE SINGLE INSIGHT INTO THEIR HIDDEN CAUSE!

And that insight is this:

If you suffer from any of the nervous symptoms listed above, then you must understand at once that your nerves are not ill... they have not deteriorated... they have not lost their true physical health in any way! What has happened to them instead is that they have simply become OVER-SENSITIZED..."rubbed raw" by too much outside irritation ...and are now ready to discharge the emotional and physical symptoms of panic at even the slightest thing that goes wrong!

Thus, the depression... indecision... loss of confidence and all the other emotional symptoms you feel are all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves! And the churning stomach... palpitating heart... never-ending headaches and all the other physical nervous-symptoms you feel are—again—all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves!

And therefore the way to treat ALL these symptoms is NOT with drugs... NOT with shock... NOT with medical formulations or hospitalizations at all! The way to treat these nerves is to change the poisonous-thoughts that are rubbing them raw!

And this is done (as proven by this internationally-famed physician on thousands of patients) in four simple steps! The first of which stops nervous symptoms (both physical and emotional) from multiplying from that moment on! The second of which serves to tranquilize and quiet down those over-sensitized nerves far more powerfully (and permanently) than any drug a pharmacist could ever give you!

The third of which lets you stop fighting those symptoms (which only intensifies them in an ever-increasing spiral of sheer torment), and—instead—leave them alone in an ingenious way that lets them start healing themselves!

And the fourth of which—the great reward—brings you slowly-but-surely back to the person you used to be! With a new, enduring feeling of control and confidence that nothing can destroy! So much so that this doctor actually comes right out and states bluntly: "The advice given here will definitely cure you, if you only follow it"!

In Fact, Case History After Case History Proves That Cure May Be So Dramatically Quick That Your Friends And Family Will Beg You To Tell Them Your Secret!

Once again, it doesn't matter what physical or emotional symptoms you are now suffering from... how "deeply entrenched" they are... how long you have been plagued by them... how "old" or "weak" or "out-of-control" you may feel today! Here is specific, step-by-immediate-step advice that will (again to quote directly from the doctor) "banish every unwelcome sensation and regain peace of mind and body"!

For example:

The two-minute self-treatment (you perform one ingenious little action with your chest) that ends sudden panic seizures on the spot—including all their side effects such as dizziness, pins and needles, involuntary stiffening of the joints, inability to breathe, and all the rest.

That "lump in the throat that won't go away"—how to banish it in minutes... and enjoy eating any food you wish to once again!

Physical weakness—perhaps the most dreaded of all symptoms—and (surprisingly) perhaps the fastest of all to banish!

How to deal with the twin monsters of fatigue and guilt! And leave behind emotional exhaustion... morning depression... thoughts that once raced around and around in your mind without cessation! (And leave them all behind—for good!)

Why so many patients who tried these simple techniques actually came out of their nervous sicknesses as far finer and stronger people than they ever were before!

How to recover from chronic tension caused by an insoluable problem! The only sane way to overcome it! How to avoid unnecessary suffering, for both yourself and others! And, perhaps, actually turn your worst defeat into crowning success!

The surest and most permanent way to cure obsessions!

How to tap the forces of Nature, every morning, that are just waiting to cure you!

How to bring happiness back into your everyday life! Not by waiting for some great event or reward... but simply by developing the eyes to see joy in the little things all around you!

And—the final goal: How to develop the kind of nervous control that automatically turns panic off the instant it starts! That frees you forever from "nerve-crutches" such as drugs or alcohol! That lets you pick up your life again from the point where over-sensitized nerves forced you to abandon it, with absolute confidence that you now have the poise and self-possession to accomplish the goals you have always wanted!

Already a best-seller in nine foreign nations, as well as the United States! Read it from cover to cover. We take all the risk! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon—TODAY!

WHAT THE PUBLISHER SAYS:

HOPE AND HELP FOR YOUR NERVES has sold over 250,000 copies and has been endorsed by medical and mental-health associations throughout the world. Millions of Americans have heard Dr. Weekes on television and radio shows and have read excerpts from the book which recently appeared in Reader's Digest. If you are one of the many whose nerves are on edge and who sometimes feel panic and don't know why, this remarkable book was written for you.

VITAL NOTE!

To gain the wonder-working benefits of this book in every area of your life starting within the first five minutes after you pick it up—there is absolutely no need to STUDY this revolutionary new book or even read it from cover to cover, or expend any more "literary" effort on your part other than to browse through it at your leisure for one or two thrilling minutes a day!

This is NOT a textbook! NOT a study manual! There are no lectures—not a single "blue-sky" theory to ponder over anywhere!

Instead, for the first time; here are revolutionary new breakthroughs that HELP YOUR NERVES DE-SENSITIZE THEMSELVES... ACTUALLY DRAIN OUT TORTUROUS MENTAL AND PHYSICAL SYMPTOMS, STARTING THE VERY FIRST DAY—all through a few incredibly-simple techniques that you can put to work for you the very first time you pick it up.

Therefore, we do NOT want you to treat this amazing volume as you would an ordinary book! Instead, we ask you this:

Place it on your bedstand, entirely at our risk, for thirty days! Browse through just a few pages every night before you retire! Skip around if you like! But make absolutely no conscious effort to "study" this book, "work" on it, or even memorize a single one of the thrilling techniques you will find on every one of its pages!

Instead, you'll make this startling discovery in these very first thirty days alone. Instantly—simply by leafing through its pages—your mind will automatically absorb the wonder-working procedures laid out for you in this book! Effortlessly, you will respond to its convention-shattering breakthroughs!

Inevitably—hour after hour—day after day—week after week—you will find your body draining away, almost by itself, the tortures of constant nervousness... overwhelming depression... lack of confidence... chronic fatigue... 'skipping' or 'racing' heart... pins and needles in hands or feet... even nausea, shortness of breath, chest and stomach pains, weak spells, and never-flagging insomnia! And much, much more!

All these—gone! For just a few short moments a day!

The Subtle Art of Influencing Others—Do You Really Know How It Works?

True or False: Your chances of talking your boss into giving you a raise are better if he's either overweight or underweight. (See number 3)

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. When you're trying to sell someone on an idea or persuade him to do something you want, you should be careful not to repeat yourself—for this is likely to increase his sales resistance.
2. Don't waste your powers of persuasion on someone while he's in a worried or anxious state of mind. You aren't likely to get anywhere.
3. Your chances of talking your boss into giving you a raise are better if he's either overweight or underweight.
4. People who are the best at persuading others are the most difficult to influence.
5. If you're trying to talk somebody into doing something that's important to you, you should wait till you can get him alone, where there will be no distractions or interruptions.
6. When it comes to influencing people, flattery will get you somewhere.

ANSWERS

1. False. In studies at the University of Oklahoma, 120 subjects were exposed to various types of persuasive communications. Half of the subjects were exposed once, the other half three times. Results: "Speed of agreement was fastest for those who were exposed to persuasive communications three times." The moral seems to be that when you're knocking at the door of a man's mind, don't give up after just one try.
2. False. Studies at two universities have demonstrated that people tend to be much more receptive to suggestion, and thus easier to influence, when they're worried or anxious about something. (Note: If someone tries to sell you a bill of goods while you're in such a state of mind, postpone decision until you're in a different mood—tests show you'll be more astute and much less gullible.)
3. True—according to research sponsored by the National Science Foundation, in which over one hundred men and women were subjected to psychological tests designed to evaluate persuadability. Conclusions of the investigators: "The results show that both overweight and underweight subjects were more persuadable than others." It's difficult to determine exactly why this is so, but in the case of the overweight individual, it isn't likely he would be overweight if he didn't lack the resistance to say "no" to the silent persuasion of food.
4. True. Studies show that the most persuasive people tend to be the most difficult to influence. Incidentally, investigators have found that people of high intelligence are more easily influenced than those of lesser mental stature, when confronted with impressive logical arguments. But they are the most resistant to persuasion "which relies on unsupported generalities, or false, illogical, irregular argumentation." Moral: If your idea or project has merit, the smartest man you can find will be the easiest to sell on it.
5. False. Consensus of psychological studies has demonstrated—on tests on men and women from all walks of life—that people are most influenced by a persuasive appeal when it is interrupted by casual distractions, such as other people talking, a radio going, or other incidental sounds and noises. This distraction, as investigators point out, is effective because "it curtails counter-arguing on the part of the person listening to the persuasive message and makes him more receptive to the attempt to influence him."
6. True—for some personality types, False for others. Studies have shown that while persons with high self-esteem and self-confidence tend ordinarily to be harder to influence than others, they are rendered much more persuadable when flattered or complimented, and are more susceptible to being influenced if "exposed to favorable messages about themselves." On the other hand, it was found that "low-esteem persons [lacking in self-reliance] were more persuadable with unfavorable messages about themselves." In other words, with them, compliments are likely to get you nowhere at all—for these personality types simply can't believe that they rate them, and thus are inclined to question your other statements.

HABAND of PATERSON

This child has a good home, nice clothes, a loving mother- and Pin-Worms!

A tormenting itch in the rectal area, nose-picking and fidgeting are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms. It can happen to anyone in any family—young or old, rich or poor. It's so common, medical authorities say that 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, have Pin-Worms without knowing it. And because Pin-Worms bring on itching and fidgeting, they can distract children and affect their school work!

What's more, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

What can you do about it? Fortunately there is an easy-to-take medication that gets rid of Pin-Worms. It's called Jayne's® P-W® tablets. Ask your pharmacist. He'll tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that gets Pin-Worms out of your system. Ask for Jayne's P-W tablets at your drug store.

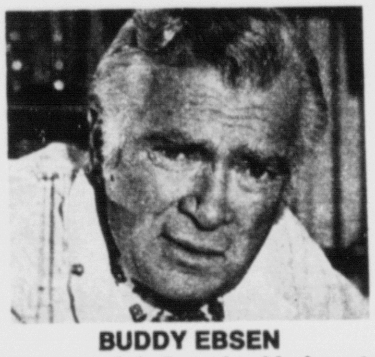
COME ON IN, THE PING-PONG'S FINE!
A new winter swimming idea?

Question: If you cross a swimming pool with 44,000 table-tennis balls, what do you get? If you said a pool table, sit down. What you get is this lovely waterscape in Duhrenbach, Germany. Here, they found that Danish-made plastic balls will act as a thermal insulation blanket when they cover the water. This lowers the cost of heating the water, and enables the pool to remain open year-round. The balls weigh only 3.8 grams each. This means that swimming can be done without any hindrance from the "blanket."

"High blood pressure, a major factor today in premature death from coronary disease, stroke, and also kidney disease, is strongly influenced by heredity. The brothers and sisters of any patient going to a doctor for high blood pressure are eight times as likely as other people to have high blood pressure themselves. If both your parents have had high blood pressure the chances are about 45 percent for you, and if one parent, 30 percent." From "How Not to Die Young," by Dr. Joan Gomez (Stein and Day, $6.98).



BUDDY EBSEN
A Broderick Crawford he's not

Actor Buddy Ebsen, TV's "Barnaby Jones," talks about the difficulties of learning lines: "When I started 'The Beverly Hillbillies,' I learned every word. For two years I had headaches. So I learned to 'wing' it. By that I mean that instead of sitting down every night with a tape recorder and learning the script verbatim, I use word association, with sounds, locations, and so forth. If you asked me today what I said yesterday, I couldn't tell you! I once saw Broderick Crawford come on a set, scan a page of dialogue—and he had it. Every word! Well, now, I don't have that kind of a mind! But once my method backfired. I did a stage play last year and on opening night I was fine. Had every line down pat. But the next night I was terrible! I had erased!"

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

ROBED THE WRONG WAY

There is a bathrobe that I wear
That has two moth holes and a tear.
It has no style, indeed it's drapeless;
It's wrinkled, rumpled, sadly shapeless.
But it, for me, is fine and dandy:
It's always hanging where it's handy,
It's not too heavy, not too thin,
It fits me like another skin.
Oh yes, I know it's old and ratty
And makes me, I am sure, look batty.
But who's to see me? That's the trick:
The doctor, maybe, when I'm sick,
My wife, my children; others not—
I'd lose what status I have got.

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Kids see life differently. Send original contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

Having one daughter five years old and a son three years old, we were pleased that our third child was another little girl. On my arrival home with the brand new baby, my daughter sat next to me. I was talking about my two beautiful little daughters when my son rambled over and asked sullenly, "Momma, do you like them girls better than me?" Of course I answered, "No, I love all of you, and especially you because you're my only son." With sheer delight and amazement he looked at me and said, "Oh Momma, am I really?"
